RUSSIA SAID TO HAVE MADE PEACE OFFER

Great Britain To Expand Royal Air Service at Once

Secret Appropriation Made without a Record Vote

SUCCESS CLAIMED FOR ALLIED AIRMEN IN WAR

Service Growing Faster than That of Germany, Wood Says

By EDWIN STOUT

London, March 7 (AP)—A secret appropriation to expand the Royal Air Force, which Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood declared is better and growing faster than Germany's was approved without a record vote by the House of Commons tonight.

The action came after Sir Kingsley assured the members that he and Winston Churchill, first Lord of the admiralty, were fighting Germany, not each other, and thus apparently quieted an incipient row over agitation for giving coastal units of the air force into navy control.

The air minister was aided in his efforts to keep the R. A. F. under its unified direction by a day of new exploits in driving off German air raiders and scouting German cities, and by British-French reports which boasted of growing air strength and naval supremacy. In the air itself, British pursuit pilots shot down a German war-plane in the afternoon off Scotland and drove off two others tonight off eastern England and long-range scouts during the night flew over German naval bases, ports and cities without loss despite anti-aircraft fire.

Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood, presenting air estimates for "the greatest expenditure" of its kind in British history, told the House of Commons that British-French aircraft production now was ahead of German's both in quality and quantity.

Simultaneously French Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi in a survey of six months of war asserted that the British and French navies had broken the back of Germany's threat to block the sea-lanes.

Praises French Navy

Reciting the exploits of the French navy, the navy minister said the 2,309-ton destroyer Dimoun "has just brought to a dozen the number of Nazi submarines 'lost'"—a figure which British said gave the Allies together a total of about 50 destroyed.

Sir Kingsley gave the House of Commons a highlight survey of the Royal Air Force in presenting estimates whose total figure was hidden behind the request for a 100-

Naval officers leaped aboard from a rescue vessel, pried open a hatch and freed all but two of the remaining crew. The missing men were in a torpedo chamber.

Baltimore Racing News Service Is Under Heavy Fire

Howard Sports Daily, Inc. Compared with Annenberg Service

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) — The Howard Sports Daily, Inc., of Baltimore was described as a link in a nationwide horse racing news dissemination service similar to the former Annenberg system in an affidavit filed today with the Public Service Commission.

The Annenberg service recently was discontinued after a federal government investigation of its operations, but Samuel Klaus, special assistant to the U. S. attorney for the northern district of Illinois, asserted in today's affidavit employes of the system had started a new one.

The affidavit was filed with the Western Union Telegraph Company's answer to the commission's order that it show cause why its service to the Howard Sports Daily should not be continued. The telegraph company, acting on information given it by the federal government, had given notice service would be discontinued Feb. 16. The Howard Sports Daily appealed to the PSC.

Frank Harper, commission secretary, said a hearing on the matter probably would be set next week. The telegraph company already has discontinued interstate service to the Sports Daily, as it is not under the commission's jurisdiction it now is seeking to discontinue service for the Sports Daily's operations within Maryland.

Klaus said "a nationwide plan has been discovered to be in operation for the continuance of essentially the same service as operated by Annenberg.

"Service is being obtained in one form or another from the race tracks and being sent through central clearing points to bookmakers . . .The plaintiff here (The Howard Sports Daily) appears clearly to be a participant in that plan."

Queen Elizabeth Safe In New York Harbor

Gigantic British Liner's Captain Silent about Atlantic Crossing

By JOHN A. MOROSO III

New York, March 7 (AP) —Capt. J. C. Townley brought the new 85,000-ton British liner Queen Elizabeth into the safety of New York harbor tonight after a six-day zigzag voyage which he declared was "just like a lovely cruise."

"Our average speed," he added, "was 24¼ knots over a zigzag course most of the way. The ship left without a trial, which is the greatest achievement — to leave on trial and find yourself in New York. (He referred to the fact that this was the maiden voyage of the still-incompleted queen).

"We carried no guns."

Told that seamen, shouting down from the ship's lofty decks after she had been docked, had said that the Elizabeth was convoyed for one day, the captain shrugged:

"Then you know all about it. I don't have to discuss that phase of the voyage."

Can Outrun Submarine

He added in a matter-of-fact voice that "his and all other" ships —presumably he meant those of the liner class — could outrun a submarine "at the present time."

"Nevertheless," he smiled, "I am not disappointed that we did not meet any on our way across."

The Elizabeth, a $28,750,000 vessel which the British sent here for safekeeping and as an obvious nose-thumbing gesture to illustrate their power at sea, required the services of ten tugs to be eased into her slip.

All visitors were kept away from her pier and a squad from the police criminal alien burau was reported to have been assigned to keep a twenty-four hour watch over her.

Captain Townley, a veteran of the British merchant marine, said that as the Elizabeth went down the Clyde river from her fitting-out basin, preparatory to making a run for it, she had an aerial escort "as a precaution against enemy bombing

Mrs. Hatzenbuehler, It Seems, Has No Love at All for Chas. Herrmeyer

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—As far as the widow Hatzenbuehler is concerned, love and Charles Herrmeyer don't mix.

She had her 58-year old admirer haled before Judge Mason Sullivan today for a judicial interpretation of what she has been telling him for the last ten years, to wit: "No."

"He rings the back door bell, then runs around and rings the front door bell," Mrs. Hatzenbuehler complained. "Then he runs back to see if he can get in the back way."

"Aw Rosie," Herrmeyer pleaded, but the object of his affections ignored him.

"And he breaks windows," she said. "Once he broke eight of them—all there are in my home—trying to get in."

Judge Sullivan put Herrmeyer under a $5,000 peace bond and gave him some food for thought. "Maybe she doesn't love you," the court said.

Seven Days Left To Pay State Tax

Less Than Ten Per Cent of Expected Returns Received

Annapolis, Md., March 7 (AP)—Citizens of Maryland who are subject to the state income tax law must begin shelling out quickly and generously to raise approximately $7,000,000 in the next seven business days, if the administration's estimated $8,000,000 goal is to be reached.

A checkup today of income tax returns from corporations and individuals showed that less than ten per cent, or $789,094, had been collected of the $8,000,000 expected to be raised under Governor O'Conor's plan.

Two days ago the governor announced he was confident that the income tax, most important item in the administration's fiscal program, would bring in the estimated amount by the March 15 deadline.

The chief executive said plans for reducing the income levy next year were being discussed by the state committee on finance.

The one and one-half per cent tax on corporate incomes was expected to return $1,250,000, but to date 226 corporations have sent in only $55,595.

Individual sources were looked to for the greatest amount, $6,750,000, but 15,296 filings have brought in a "mere" $723,576.

The individual levy is two and one-half per cent on earned income, designed to produce $1,950,000 and a six per cent levy on unearned income from securities and investments, estimated to bring in $4,800,000.

Income tax officials, however, expected a heavy rush of last-week filings would considerably boost the average collected since the first tax notices went out.

Committee Offers Plan To Replace The Labor Board

House Group Would also Change the Wagner Act Setup

By DONALD A. YOUNG

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A seventeen-point plan to replace the National Labor Relations Board with a new agency and to make other major changes in the Wagner act setup was laid before an election-year Congress today by a special House committee which investigated the board.

Representatives Smith (D-Va), Halleck (R-Ind) and Routzohn (R-Ohio), a majority of the committee, contended that the program would remove causes of the long and bitter controversy over the board and the act, but said the fundamental right of workers to bargain collectively would remain untouched.

Representatives Healey (D-Mass) and Murdock (D-Utah), the other two committeemen, heatedly dissented, arguing that the proposals "threatened the principles, purposes and objectives of the act."

This basic division within the committee, symbolic of the split in Congress, immediately raised the question whether both the House and Senate would act on amendments before they adjourn and go to political conventions in June and July.

Action This Year Doubted

Administration leaders kept their counsel while critics of the board and law saw only a slim chance that both chambers would act before adjournment. There was no immediate comment on the program from the labor board, the AFL or CIO.

Chairman Norton (D-NJ) of the House Labor Committee, to which Smith's amendments were referred, predicted that they would not pass in the House but called a committee meeting for next week to discuss procedure.

The proposals of the committee majority would authorize President Roosevelt to name a new board of three members. He might, if he chose, reappoint the present members, Chairman J. Warren Madden, Edwin S. Smith and William Leiserson.

But the majority would permit the new agency to sit only as a judicial body, placing administration of the law and prosecution of violations in the hands of a new officer, an administrator, who would have no organizational connection with the board. This proposal recalled complaints that the board had been acting as "judge, prosecutor and jury."

Probe Before Decision

Healey and Murdock said in a separate statement that the question of a new board should be held in abeyance until the committee completes its investigation. They disclosed, however, that they had

Carol Likely To Raise Big Army

King of Rumania Expected To Issue New Call to Arms

Bucharest, March 7 (AP) — Military sources reported tonight that a new Rumanian call to arms was imminent after King Carol, speaking to his parliament and people, had declared the nation's whole resources would be thrown behind the army as a "supreme guarantee of our independence and the integrity of our borders."

A peace time record army of 1,600,000 men is already under arms but informed military sources expected King Carol would call up additional thousands of reservists son to reinforce the watch along Rumania's World war-won borders.

The king revealed taxes would be increased to meet additional military expenses.

Strict neutrality will be maintained even in the fields of foreign commerce, he said, "in order to assure the essential flow of supplies to our army and our people."

The king declared Rumania's relations with other nations were good, but he mentioned specifically only Italy and Bulgaria.

Viroel Tilea, Rumanian minister to London, now on his way home to present a British proposal that Britain be accorded equal treatment with Germany on Rumanian exports, particularly oil. On the other side Germany is pressing Rumania for the 1,600,000 tons of oil for which she contracted during 1940 and for all this year's wool crop. This might force Rumania to "choose sides," observers agreed.

Russians Suffer Heavy Losses in Drive on Viipuri

Bloodiest Fighting of the War Finds Defenders Invincible

By MAX HARRELSON

Helsinki, March 7 (AP) — Bitter fighting, described by military men as the bloodiest of the war, raged today across frozen Viipuri Bay where the Red army, ignoring losses in men and equipment, has been trying for five days to gain a foothold on the coast southwest of Viipuri.

The Finnish high command said the Russians had lost more than thirty tanks and uncounted numbers of men as they charged across the open ice fields all day yesterday, raked by coastal batteries and bombed from the air, but declared the invaders were continuing the assault.

Asserting the attempts to encircle the beleaguered city from the west thus far had failed, the Finns said their lines were holding firm from the capes at the bay mouth to Viipuri itself.

The Finns, as usual, said nothing of their own losses, but indicated the need for replacement by calling to the colors the class of 1920—mostly youths of 19—and all men of other classes scheduled for reexamination this year or in succeeding years.

Far Reaching Demands

The official Finnish press bureau, meanwhile, issued a statement asserting that, according to information in the possession of the government, Soviet Russia was believed to be preparing—apparently as the price of peace—demands "even more far reaching" than those which preceded the outbreak of war last Nov. 30.

"The details of these demands, however, are so far lacking," the statement said.

(Reports from Stockholm said that Sweden is seeking to arrange an armistice in the Russian-Finnish war, and that Russian peace terms had recently been presented to Finland.)

East of Viipuri the Russians were reported to have suffered heavy losses in frontal attacks on Finnish positions yesterday, and the high command said that seventeen tanks hard been destroyed between Viipuri bay and the Vuoksi river. A Russian attack on Taipale at the eastern end of the Karelian isthmus also was repulsed, the Finns said, despite heavy artillery preparations.

Russians Fear Trap

Military observers expressed belief that the Russian troops now at the southern outskirts of Viipuri would not attempt to occupy the city until the Finns had been driven back on the east and west, lest they find themselves in a trap.

Meanwhile the Russians made new efforts to move across the frozen Gulf of Finland sixty miles west of Viipuri, launching attacks yesterday on Haapasaari island and the Virolahti arcipelago.

The Finns said the attacks had been repulsed. Haapasaari island is about sixteen miles from the port of Kiotka on the south Finnish coast.

A Russian success on the northern shore of Lake Ladoga was acknowledged by the Finnish high command, which said the invaders had captured "a few" islands near Pitkaranta.

The Russian air force concentrated its activities yesterday on the vicinity of Viipuri Bay, but ranged as far along the south coast as Kotke, bombing that city and Virolahti, Vuokatti and Sotkamo in northern Finland also were reported bombed.

The Finns said they had shot down two of the raiders.

Closely Guarded Negotiations Reported under Way in Copenhagen; Demands Drastic

Helsinki, March 7 (AP)—The Finnish government disclosed tonight it had received word that Soviet Russia was planning a peace offer, but indicated the details were not yet known. However, in some usually well-informed quarters it was stated the Soviet proposals already had been received.

These sources said the Soviet proposals were in the nature of an ultimatum, with the threatened alternative of intensified attacks if Finland failed to accept the Russian demands (Copenhagen reports said the ultimatum deadline was March 8).

Despite official reluctance to admit knowledge of details of the proposals, it was believed their general nature was known to the Finnish government.

It was taken as a foregone conclusion that if the Soviet demands exceed those which preceded the Soviet invasion, they have no chance of Finnish acceptance.

(Scandinavian reports indicated the demands do exceed the previous ones, the Russians now wanting all the Karleian Isthmus, Viipri, Lake Ladoga, the naval port of Hanko, the Hanko peninsula and part of the Arctic Petsamo district).

Regarded as more significant here than terms of the proposals, however, was the fact that Russia was willing to discuss terms at all with the Helsinki government now. The Kremlin had refused this regularly constituted government any recognition at all, declaring it would deal only with a puppet "people's government" in the extreme southern edge of Finnish territory.

France To Crush Nazis First, Then Consider Peace

Welles Finds Paris Leaders Determined To Continue War

By JOHN LLOYD

Paris, France, March 7 (AP)—Sumner Welles came to the third of western Eprope's four strong men today—inscrutable Edouard Daladier of France—to register the points of France's case for President Roosevelt in grave and lengthy conference.

Official France and the United States president's fact-finding emissary were equally silent about what went on in the hour and forty minute talk between Daladier and Welles and the time Welles spent with gentle old Albert Lebrun, France's president, beforehand.

However the press, which is under strict official control, made it plain that France is avowed to crush Nazi regime in Germany before it thinks about peace. From the widely quoted Le Temps came ridicule for Adolf Hitler's efforts to draw Welles a parallel between the American Monroe Doctrine and Germany's so-called "vital living space" in central Europe. Le Temps said this fooled nobody; the first defends the independence of small states; the second "is aimed at their destruction."

Child Taken from School and Slain By Young Farmer

Latter Commits Suicide; Mother of Girl Finds Bodies

Mansfield, O., March 7 (AP)—Nine-year old Marjorie Gamble, taken on pretext from her schoolroom today, was shot and killed in her own home by a man who turned the gun on himself.

Sheriff E. P. Long of Richland County said the slaying occurred while the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Gamble, left their farm near nearby Lexington for a shopping trip to Mansfield.

Her body was found on a bed in the room of Theodore Smith; 27-year old farm hand employed by Gamble. Smith's body, a bullet hole in the forehead, was found in the first floor living room of the home. The girl was shot in the right chest.

Smith's room was in wild disarray and most of the girl's clothing had been torn from her body. Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler said apparently the man attempted to assault the child but she was able to fight off his advances.

Smith went to a rural school shortly before noon, Long said he was told, and told the teacher of Marjorie's fourth-grade class that the girl's mother was seriously ill and had asked that she be sent home.

This occurred shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Gamble left home. The latter returned about 3 p. m., and found the bodies.

Edwin Markham, Famous Poet, Dies On Staten Island at the Age of 87

New York, March 7 (AP)—Edwin Markham, 87, author of "The Man With the Hoe" and other famous poems, tonight made good a promise to himself. He went "to explore the mysteries of the dead."

Declared incompetent by the courts, plagued by a failing memory, beset by age and infirmities he would not admit, the aged poet said recently, that when death overtook him it would find "not a querulous old man but a young fellow intrigued with the greatest adventure of all."

Markham was almost—but not quite—ready to die when pneumonia

Hatch Act Wins Another Victory In Senate Vote

Proposal To Liberalize It Is Rejected 42 to 35

Washington, March 7 (AP) — The Senate stood fast today against a determined, last-ditch effort to abolish the Hatch act's ban on political activity by government workers.

It rejected the proposal by a vote of forty-two to thirty-five—as compared with a ballot of forty-four to forty-one on a similar proposition yesterday. The trend of the voting encouraged Senator Hatch (D-NM) and his supporters to predict passage of the pending bill extending the law's restrictions to state employes paid from federal funds. A vote on this measure is expected tomorrow.

The extension legislation would delegate the enforcement of the no-politics provision to the civil service commission, empowering it to dismiss any federal-state jobholders for playing politics, or to direct that the federal funds involved be withheld from the state or locality.

Two Limitations Asked

Two limitations upon these provisions were written into the bill today. The first would give the dismissed employe the right of appeal to the courts, and provide that he

Baltimore Racing News Service Is Under Heavy Fire

Howard Sports Daily, Inc. Compared with Annenberg Service

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) — The Howard Sports Daily, Inc., of Baltimore was described as a link in a nationwide horse racing news dissemination service similar to the former Annenberg system in an affidavit filed today with the Public Service Commission.

The Annenberg service recently was discontinued after a federal government investigation of its operations, but Samuel Klaus, special assistant to the U. S. attorney for the northern district of Illinois, asserted in today's affidavit employes of the system had started a new one.

The affidavit was filed with the Western Union Telegraph Company's answer to the commission's order that it show cause why its service to the Howard Sports Daily should not be continued. The telegraph company, acting on information given it by the federal government, had given notice service would be discontinued Feb. 16. The Howard Sports Daily appealed to the PSC.

Frank Harper, commission secretary, said a hearing on the matter probably would be set next week. The telegraph company already has discontinued interstate service to the Sports Daily, as it is not under the commission's jurisdiction it now is seeking to discontinue service for the Sports Daily's operations within Maryland.

Klaus said "a nationwide plan has been discovered to be in operation for the continuance of essentially the same service as operated by Annenberg.

"Service is being obtained in one form or another from the race tracks and being sent through central clearing points to bookmakers . . .The plaintiff here (The Howard Sports Daily) appears clearly to be a participant in that plan."

Queen Elizabeth Safe In New York Harbor

Gigantic British Liner's Captain Silent about Atlantic Crossing

By JOHN A. MOROSO III

New York, March 7 (AP) —Capt. J. C. Townley brought the new 85,000-ton British liner Queen Elizabeth into the safety of New York harbor tonight after a six-day zigzag voyage which he declared was "just like a lovely cruise."

"Our average speed," he added, "was 24¼ knots over a zigzag course most of the way. The ship left without a trial, which is the greatest achievement — to leave on trial and find yourself in New York. (He referred to the fact that this was the maiden voyage of the still-incompleted queen).

"We carried no guns."

Told that seamen, shouting down from the ship's lofty decks after she had been docked, had said that the Elizabeth was convoyed for one day, the captain shrugged:

"Then you know all about it. I don't have to discuss that phase of the voyage."

Can Outrun Submarine

He added in a matter-of-fact voice that "his and all other" ships —presumably he meant those of the liner class — could outrun a submarine "at the present time."

"Nevertheless," he smiled, "I am not disappointed that we did not meet any on our way across."

The Elizabeth, a $28,750,000 vessel which the British sent here for safekeeping and as an obvious nose-thumbing gesture to illustrate their power at sea, required the services of ten tugs to be eased into her slip.

All visitors were kept away from her pier and a squad from the police criminal alien burau was reported to have been assigned to keep a twenty-four hour watch over her.

Captain Townley, a veteran of the British merchant marine, said that as the Elizabeth went down the Clyde river from her fitting-out basin, preparatory to making a run for it, she had an aerial escort "as a precaution against enemy bombing

Mrs. Hatzenbuehler, It Seems, Has No Love at All for Chas. Herrmeyer

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—As far as the widow Hatzenbuehler is concerned, love and Charles Herrmeyer don't mix.

She had her 58-year old admirer haled before Judge Mason Sullivan today for a judicial interpretation of what she has been telling him for the last ten years, to wit: "No."

"He rings the back door bell, then runs around and rings the front door bell," Mrs. Hatzenbuehler complained. "Then he runs back to see if he can get in the back way."

"Aw Rosie," Herrmeyer pleaded, but the object of his affections ignored him.

"And he breaks windows," she said. "Once he broke eight of them—all there are in my home—trying to get in."

Judge Sullivan put Herrmeyer under a $5,000 peace bond and gave him some food for thought. "Maybe she doesn't love you," the court said.

Seven Days Left To Pay State Tax

Less Than Ten Per Cent of Expected Returns Received

Annapolis, Md., March 7 (AP)—Citizens of Maryland who are subject to the state income tax law must begin shelling out quickly and generously to raise approximately $7,000,000 in the next seven business days, if the administration's estimated $8,000,000 goal is to be reached.

A checkup today of income tax returns from corporations and individuals showed that less than ten per cent, or $789,094, had been collected of the $8,000,000 expected to be raised under Governor O'Conor's plan.

Two days ago the governor announced he was confident that the income tax, most important item in the administration's fiscal program, would bring in the estimated amount by the March 15 deadline.

The chief executive said plans for reducing the income levy next year were being discussed by the state committee on finance.

The one and one-half per cent tax on corporate incomes was expected to return $1,250,000, but to date 226 corporations have sent in only $55,595.

Individual sources were looked to for the greatest amount, $6,750,000, but 15,296 filings have brought in a "mere" $723,576.

The individual levy is two and one-half per cent on earned income, designed to produce $1,950,000 and a six per cent levy on unearned income from securities and investments, estimated to bring in $4,800,000.

Income tax officials, however, expected a heavy rush of last-week filings would considerably boost the average collected since the first tax notices went out.

Carol Likely To Raise Big Army

King of Rumania Expected To Issue New Call to Arms

Bucharest, March 7 (AP) — Military sources reported tonight that a new Rumanian call to arms was imminent after King Carol, speaking to his parliament and people, had declared the nation's whole resources would be thrown behind the army as a "supreme guarantee of our independence and the integrity of our borders."

A peace time record army of 1,600,000 men is already under arms but informed military sources expected King Carol would call up additional thousands of reservists son to reinforce the watch along Rumania's World war-won borders.

The king revealed taxes would be increased to meet additional military expenses.

Strict neutrality will be maintained even in the fields of foreign commerce, he said, "in order to assure the essential flow of supplies to our army and our people."

The king declared Rumania's relations with other nations were good, but he mentioned specifically only Italy and Bulgaria.

Viroel Tilea, Rumanian minister to London, now on his way home to present a British proposal that Britain be accorded equal treatment with Germany on Rumanian exports, particularly oil. On the other side Germany is pressing Rumania for the 1,600,000 tons of oil for which she contracted during 1940 and for all this year's wool crop. This might force Rumania to "choose sides," observers agreed.

This occurred shortly after Mr. d Mrs. Gamble left home. The ther returned about 3 p. m., and nd the bodies.

Edwin Markham, Famous Poet, Dies On Staten Island at the Age of 87

By PAT McGRADY

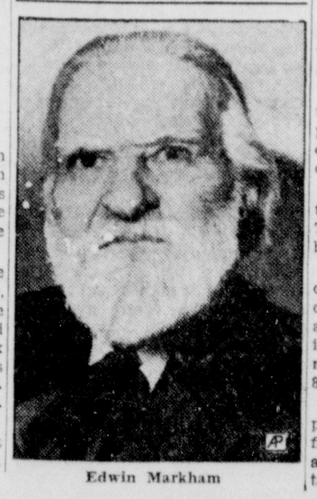

New York, March 7 (AP)—Edwin Markham, 87, author of "The Man With the Hoe" and other famous poems, tonight made good a promise to himself. He went "to explore the mysteries of the dead."

Declared incompetent by the courts, plagued by a failing memory, beset by age and infirmities he would not admit, the aged poet said recently, that when death overtook him it would find "not a querulous old man but a young fellow intrigued with the greatest adventure of all."

Markham was almost—but not quite—ready to die when pneumonia

Hatch Act Wins Another Victory In Senate Vote

Proposal To Liberalize It Is Rejected 42 to 35

Washington, March 7 (AP) — The Senate stood fast today against a determined, last-ditch effort to abolish the Hatch act's ban on political activity by government workers.

It rejected the proposal by a vote of forty-two to thirty-five—as compared with a ballot of forty-four to forty-one on a similar proposition yesterday. The trend of the voting encouraged Senator Hatch (D-NM) and his supporters to predict passage of the pending bill extending the law's restrictions to state employes paid from federal funds. A vote on this measure is expected tomorrow.

The extension legislation would delegate the enforcement of the no-politics provision to the civil service commission, empowering it to dismiss any federal-state jobholders for playing politics, or to direct that the federal funds involved be withheld from the state or locality.

Two Limitations Asked

Two limitations upon these provisions were written into the bill today. The first would give the dismissed employe the right of appeal to the courts, and provide that he

Boy Bank Robber Pleads Guilty in Baltimore Court

Mack L. Wilt Admits Hold-up of Union Trust Co. Branch

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) —A City college football player pleaded guilty today to the $1,500 holdup of the Westport branch of the Union Trust Company, one of his friends was convicted as an accessory, another was convicted of receiving stolen goods and another was acquitted.

The guilty plea was entered by Mack Lloyd Wilt, 19, quarterback on the City College Jay-Vee team. Lester E. DeWitt, 19, was convicted as an accessory after the fact and Dean Dentry, 21, was convicted of receiving stolen goods.

Acquitted was William Julian De Bullett, 19, accused of being an accessory before and after the fact by driving Wilt to and from the scene of the holdup Feb. 19, and later going to Washington with him to consult his mother.

De Bullett was tried before a criminal court jury. De Wilt and Dentry chose trials before Judge Edwin T. Dickerson, who deferred sentence and announced he would call the youths before him tomorrow.

Wilt was charged with the armed robbery of William Anthon and Gerald E. Mergenthaler, branch bank employes; with larceny of a pistol, and larceny of an automobile which the state contended were used in the robbery.

De Witt was convicted as an accessory after the fact by keeping a pistol that Wilt had turned over to him. Dentry was found guilty of receiving stolen goods by borrowing $10 of the loot from Wilt, keeping it and failing to report to police.

Testimony in De Bullett's case was that he drove Wilt to a place near the bank but did not know of the robbery until after they were driving away and then helped Wilt get to Washington to consult with his mother.

Defense attorneys asserted the boys and Wilt's mother came to Baltimore to return the money, but police were looking for the youths and arrested them.

pound ($400) "token" appropriation in keeping with wartime secrecy.

He said the production of spitfires and hurricanes, Britain's No. 1 and No. 2 fighter planes, had been doubled since the outbreak of war and that the output of the bigger and heavier bomber types had been increased by fifty per cent.

Of quantity, Sir Kingsley expressed confidence "that even on a numerical basis the output of aircraft now accruing to us and to France today is in excess of that of Germany."

Of quality, he said that "I would sooner have 100 Wellingtons (a bomber type) or 100 Spitfires of Hurricanes than a much larger number of their German counterparts."

Down 44 Nazi Planes

In surveying Royal Air Force activities he said British airman had carried out more than a thousand sorties into German territory by day and night and had brought down forty-four German aircraft near the British coast "without a single loss on our side" in addition to which others were forced down at sea or on neutral territory.

There was only a faint note of discord.

Colonel Josiah C. Wedgewood, Laborite, referred to the Royal Air Force's "confetti raids"—dropping of pamphlets—over Germany and said he hoped "we shall soon tackle the Germans with their own weapons on their own ground . . . drop bombs on military objectives."

Meanwhile, he added, "let us stop this farcical waste of lives, valuable machines and petrol which we shall need if anything serious comes aling."

Archbishop Stritch Is Installed As Head of Largest Catholic See

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—Slender, scholarly Archbishop Samuel Alphonsus Stritch ascended the throne of the nation's largest Catholic See today.

The prelate was installed formally as head of the Chicago Archiocese in a brilliant ceremony in the capacity-taxed Holy Name cathedral.

The ancient ritual was witnessed by fourteen archbishops and ninety bishops—representing the greatest gathering of the American hierarchy here since the Eucharistic Congress in 1926—and hundreds of clergymen, public officials and communicants.

They looked on while the archbishop, robed in a white and gold cope and crowned with a tall, peaked, brimless mitre, took his place on a high-backed, hand-carved, velvet-canopied chair on the right side of the altar. At that moment he became the spiritual leader of 1,400,000 members of the faith in the city and surrounding counties. They constitute the largest Catholic population in any episcopal district in the U. S.

Archbishop Stritch dedicated himself to the task of carrying on the mission begun by Father Marquette, explorer-priest who brought the cross to Lake Michigan's shores.

Betsey Roosevelt Granted Divorce

Gets Interlocutory Decree against James Roosevelt

Los Angeles, March 7 (AP) —Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, whose brother testified "she had no desire for a divorce," was granted an interlocutory decree today from James Rosevelt, oldest son of the president.

Superior Judge Thomas C. Gould approved terms of a property settlement under which she receives $65,000 immediately and has a choice between $50,000 additional in five years or $5,000 annually until she remarries.

In addition, the two children, Sara Delano, and Kate, 4, will receive monthly payments until they are 21, totaling more than $78,000.

"The court is of the opinion that the testimony ofered in this case is sufficient to support the granting of an interlocutory decree of divorce, and the decree is hereby granted," Judge Gould said in the one-minute proceeding.

Mrs. Roosevelt did not appear in court today.

Roosevelt did not contest the divorce. He is in Chicago completing organization of a nickle-in-the-slot-movie enterprise.

The marriage of Betsey Cushing and Roosevelt in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930, two days before his graduation from Harvard, was a society event of note.

Roosevelt entered the insurance business and formed his own firm in 1935. He became administrative assistant to his father Jan. 1, 1937, and resigned that post the next November. After recuperating from an illness, he came to California as fiscal agent for Samuel Goldwyn and vice-president of Goldwyn, Inc., a motion picture production company. Recently he became president of his own company, Globe pictures.

Roosevelt has appeared infrequently at Hollywood social functions. Romelle Schneider, his nurse when he was ill at Rochester, Minn., eighteen months ago, has been his occasional companion.

set in on Tuesday and drew him down to his death tonight. He had collected some 1,500 of his poems, as he had said he would, but he never saw the greatest poem of all time, which he fondly hoped some younger man would produce before his death .

Strong Against War

"That," he said, "would be five or six stanzas which would disperse the armies of the world. If I had the time, the youth, the strength to write one great poem, it would be against war. If I could have one wish fulfilled, it would be for a poem that would expose the mockery, the futility, the sterility of war in such a way as to warn every man who loves the world and humanity to watch vigilantly against war."

Markham did not have the time, the youth and the strength; and no other poet had the ability.

Like Child Near Last

He lived his last few months again as a child in the west, where he was once a cowboy. The 30,000 volumes that covered the walls of the old house in which he lived he saw as open cow country. He huddled, even on warm days, indoors in a great brown fur coat; but he talked continually of horses and hills. The people about him he fancied as his long-dead parents and companions.

The patriarchal philosopher believed his best lines concluded his poem, "Lincoln, the Man of the People":

"And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
"As when a lordly cedar, green with boughs,
"Goes down with a great shout upon the hills,
"And leaves a lonesome place against the sky."

Radcliffe Offers Promises, Results

Senator also Explains His Votes against the New Deal

Bethesda, Md., March 7 (AP)—Declaring that his opponents for his seat in the United States Senate "must rely on promises," Senator George L. Radcliffe of Maryland told the Bethesda Congressional Club tonight "I would offer both promises and results."

Radcliffe, who is in a spirited campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination with Howard Bruce of Baltimore, said that "no reason has been advanced why I should be removed from the Senate.

"The burden of proof is certainly upon anyone challenging my right to the Senate to prove why I should be dropped."

Admitting that he had on certain occasions opposed President Roosevelt's program, Radcliffe said:

"I have assisted in the drafting of many measures making changes in our legislation which promised to be permanent. I have reference to the SEC, social security, labor legislation and many others.

"I believe that President Roosevelt has sought the welfare of the people and has been indefatigable in his efforts to promote them.

"It is true I have not always approved of the remedies suggested by him and occasionally I have found it necessary to vote in opposition to his recommendations.

The French provided a heavy police guard from the moment of Welles's arrival and he rode around in a bullet-proof automobile.

Tonight Daladier had Welles to dinner at the foreign office.

Tomorrow Welles will talk with Justice Minister Georges Bonnet, Edwouard Herriot, president of the Chamber of Deputies; Jules Jeanneney, president of the Senate, and Vice Premier Camille Chautemps. During his three days' visit he also will see leaders of the Polish emigre government.

He will fly to London Sunday, to see Prime Minister Chamberlain, then proceed to Rome for another talk with Mussolini before sailing for home.?

Welles's arrival found no letup in determined French war announcements dealing with both land and sea action. A military communique said a German raid on the western front, east of the Moselle, was repulsed; Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi announced the French navy had sunk a dozen German submarines, seized 18,000 tons of German shipping and, with the British navy, broken Germany's effort to block the Allied sea lanes.

Dr. John H. Finley Dies in New York

New York, March 7 (AP)—Dr. John H. Finley, 76, editor emeritus of the New York Times, educator and director of the Hall of Fame of New York University, died in his sleep early today at his home in Gramercy Park.

His health had failed in the past two years and recently he underwent an operation for hernia. He returned to his home three weeks ago and apparently recovered, for he visited his office at the Times yesterday and seemed to be in high spirits.

Dr. Finley, born at Grand Ridge, Ill., was a former New York state commissioner of education, and at one time was president of Knox College at Galesburg, Ill., and of the College of the City of New York.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Two striking items stand out in the recent grist of war news:

(1) The arrival of Britain's huge merchant liner, Queen Elizabeth, to take refuge in American waters and (2) the rumors of Swedish-fostered peace feelers in the Russo-Finnish conflict.

The two incidents are related in one respect: Both stem out of fears that the spring may bring new horrors of war to Europe's neutrals and belligerents alike. And both are tinged with implications that fascinate students of the situation.

The certainty that the 85,000-ton British sea queen would be a major target for German bombers, if a Nazi air blitzkrieg were unleashed against Britain, was reason enough for risking the liner's dash to New York.

Yet safeguarding the vessel from German air attack might not be the only British purpose. With the Queen Elizabeth and her dowager colleague, the Queen Mary, secure in American waters, Britain has twin sea-power units available on this side of the Atlantic for more spectacular use, if she desires to put them to it.

Either could be converted readily from palatial liners to giant cargo craft for transporting American and Canadian food supplies to England. Or they could be re-fashioned in a Canadian port into mighty aircraft carriers.

Those two ships are a potential war threat to Germany as well as a symbol of British sea power so long as they remain afloat and free to go and come on the open sea.

The safe arrival of the Queen Elizabeth in New York has important psychological values for the Allies as well. It gave British public opinion, attuned to look first for security to the British navy and merchant marine, a stimulant hardly less important than that supplied by the defeat and scuttling of the Nazi pocket battleship Graf Spee.

Uncontradicted reports of Swedish peace moves, with possible Berlin support, to end the war in Finland fall into another category. Some such development has been foreshadowed as a result of Russian successes on the Karelian Isthmus, bringing perilously close the hour when Sweden might no longer be able to maintain a role of neutrality.

For Germany, as for Sweden, termination of the conflict in Finland is urgently desirable before Russia overruns her little neighbor and menaces Scandinavia, or before possible Allied intervention in Finland makes the Baltic an active theater of the bigger war. Yet the reputed terms on which Russia might consider an armistice make doubtful that diplomatic moves to that end will succeed.

There are symptoms that Red commanders have reached a point near desperation in their supreme effort to smash across the isthmus into the heart of Finland before a weather change again stalls them.

In the circumstances, Finnish rejection of any such terms as Stockholm dispatches attribute to Moscow seems a foregone conclusion. The Finns are fighting for time.

Three weeks or less could see the weather break to save Finland again, or developments in London Paris or Scandinavia could insure ultimate help for her. Failure of Swedish peace moves might mean revision of both Swedish and Norwegian neutrality roles, changing the whole European war picture.

Economy-Spending Battle Gets Right Of Way in Senate

Farm State Senators Hope To Get $200,000,000 Above Budget

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A farm bill expected to total at least $1,000,000,000—or more than $200,000,000 above President Roosevelt's budget estimates—got the right of way in the Senate today and the session's biggest test of economy vs. spending was thereby hastened.

Farm state senators won from administration leaders an agreement that the Senate would consider the bill next week.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Financial Committee said he had agreed to lay aside, after brief explanation Monday, the House-approved legislation to continue the reciprocal trade agreements program. This measure had been scheduled to be the Senate's principal business next week.

This farm bill is the annual appropriations measure for the agricultural department. As approved by the House, it carries $713,896,084. Farm-minded senators, however, have spoken confidently of adding 200 to 300 millions of dollars to the bill when an appropriations subcommittee votes on it tomorrow morning.

Finland

Hanko peninsula and part of the far northern Petsamo region.

These demands are far more inclusive than those presented by Russia in Kremlin negotiations which broke down and preceded the Red army's invasion of Finland on Nov. 30.

In the pre-war negotiations the Russians asked for cession of a strip of territory north of Leningrad on the Karelian isthmus in exchange for a part of Soviet Karelia; naval bases on Finland's southern coast; some concessions on the Arctic coast and demilitarization of the Finnish-Russian border. Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff specified then that Russia was not asking for Viipuri, now objective of the main Russian offensive.

That Russia had hiked her demands was confirmed in part by the Finnish official press bureau in Helsinki which issued this statement:

"According to information in possession of the Finnish government the Soviet government is believed to have planned presentation of demands to Finland more far reaching in character than those presented last autumn. Details of these demands, however, are so far lacking."

Sweden Censors News

Swedish authorities this afternoon imposed a sudden censorship on all telephoned news relating to the reported negotiations.

Informed opinion here tonight was that the Soviet demands, as far as could be learned, are excessive but might serve as a basis for negotiations leading to an armistice.

The Soviet ultimatum, if the Russian demands were so phrased, was believed to give the alternative of continuance of the war on an increasing scale.

Aside from the possibility that the ultimative character of the Soviet demands might be forcing the issue, foreign observers expressed the opinion that Sweden was being motivated as negotiator by the belief that, if the war in Finland is not stopped, events might complicate Swedish neutrality beyond endurance.

Not only is Finland believed ready to appeal to the western powers for direct assistance but the expected arrival of a greater flow of foreign volunteers—especially British — has led to reports of a German warning to Sweden that such volunteers must not be allowed to pass over Swedish territory.

Sweden therefore faces pressure from two sides which might force her into war. This situation, it was assumed, has led Swedish statesmen to bend every effort for restoration of peace in Finland.

Coal Price Fixing Funds Cut a Million

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A $1,000,000 cut in the appropriation of the Bituminous Coal Division was ordered today by the House.

The reduction pared to $1,187,000 the funds proposed for operation of the coal price-fixing agency for the next fiscal year.

Representative Allen (D-Pa), long an opponent of the Guffey coal act, proposed the cut. He asserted the division had failed to accomplish its purpose of setting minimum prices for sale of coal at the mines after five years of effort.

Wagner Act Amendment Favored by Majority of a House Committee

Seventeen Changes Proposed by Group of Investigators

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Following are the Wagner Act amendments recommended today by a majority of a special House investigating committee:

1. A new national labor relations board of three members would be created, but there would be no prohibition against reappointment of the present members.

2. The board's prosecuting, administrative and judicial functions would be separated.

3. The new board would sit only as a judge, with a new administrator handling investigations and prosecutions.

4. A move for a collective bargaining election could be made only by the employer or his workers, not by the board; the board's services could not be invoked in a controversy between unions over the type of bargaining unit.

5. An employer could discuss any subject, including labor problems, with his men provided there was no threat of discrimination, intimidation or coercion.

6. Neither an employer nor a union would be compelled to reach a collective bargaining agreement or make counter proposals, although they would be required to meet and make every "reasonable effort" to compose differences.

7. A charge of violating the act would have to be filed within six months after the alleged infraction; no board order for back pay could cover more than six months.

8. Language saying that the United States' policy is to encourage collective bargaining would be eliminated from the law, leaving only the statement that Congress should do all it can to protect workers' exercise of that right.

9. Collective bargaining elections in a unit could not be more frequently than every twelve months.

10. The board could reinstate no workers who willfully engaged in violence or unlawful seizure or destruction of property.

11. The economics division headed by David Sapos would be abolished.

12. Board hearings would have to conform to usual rules of evidence.

13. Issuance of subpoenas for appearances at hearings would be mandatory upon request either of an employer, worker or union.

14. The courts would be permitted to review board decisions in representation cases.

15. In a court review of any type of board action, the board finding would be conclusive if based on a preponderance of evidence and unless it were "clearly erroneous."

16. The intermediate (preliminary) report of a trial examiner would be final unless either employer or employee objected.

17. Employees of farm cooperatives would be exempted from the act.

should hold his job until a final decision was handed down. The second would limit the amount of funds to be withheld to twice the annual salary of the offending employe.

But, the foes of the Hatch act were still dissatisfied. They rallied behind an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo) to eliminate from the original law a single sentence forbidding political activity to government employes.

Like Miller Amendment

This was generally considered essentially the same thing as the Miller (D-Ark) amendment, repected yesterday. Broader in scope, the Miller amendment would have eliminated the provision in question both as it applied to a federal and to federal-state jobholders.

"It is a matter of good morals and good citizenship that we should not deny to these people the right to proper participation in politics," Adams shouted, adding that the influence of federal employes in his opinion had been generally "wholesome."

Hatch replied that "the result, purpose and effect of the Adams and Miller amendments were "exactly the same."

"I thought that on yesterday that issue was settled," he said.

Music Teachers To Meet at Frederick

Frederick, Md., March 7 (AP) — Music teachers and supervisors in public schools and colleges of Virginia, Maryland the District of Columbia, members of the national capital in-and-about music club, will meet at Hood college here Saturday.

C. W. Wilkins, director of music education at Norfolk, Va., is president of the organization.

Various discussions and short musical programs will be given in the morning to be followed by a luncheon.

At an afternoon session, Dean Ernest F. Griffiths of the graduate department, American University, Washington, is to talk on "the next peace treaty."

Special music will be presented by the Frederick elementary school orchestra under the direction of Charles C. Stull; the Frederick High School Girls Glee Club, directed by Miss Martha Pettit, and the Hood College choir, under direction of Paul Beckhelm.

Committee Offers

recommended that the present board be increased to five members.

The nearest the majority and minority came to an agreement was on a proposal to relieve the board of the duty of determining an appropriate bargaining unit in cases where two labor organizations disagree. Healey and Murdock objected only to the majority's phraseology on this point.

Smith, chairman of the committee, explained that this recommendation, suggested by Lloyd Garrison, former board chairman, would compel the board to stay out of cases where, for example, unions were fighting over whether a craft or industrial union should be the one in which a collective bargaining election should be held.

Smith said that where two unions were striving to gain representation for the same classes of workers, the Garrison prohibition would not apply and the employer, whom Smith described as "caught in the middle," could petition the board for an election. The board would have to grant his request.

Propose Drastic 'Change'

The majority proposed to redefine the phrase "bargain collectively" so that neither an employer nor a union would be compelled to reach an agreement or make counter proposals.

Healey and Murdock argued that the definition was "so drastically restrictive as to undermine the very foundation of the act" by specifically excluding "most essential elements of genuine and effective bargaining."

Smith, Halleck and Routzohn also proposed that the present law be altered to permit employers to discuss any subject with their workers, provided there is no element of discrimination, intimidation or coercion. They suggested, too, that a union's charge of unfair labor practices should not be entertained unless it were filed within six months of the alleged violation. The board would be forbidden to make back pay awards covering a period of more than six months.

The majority recommended abolution of the board's economics division of thirty persons headed by David Saposs. Testimony was presented at the committee hearings intended to show that Saposs was a radical. Saposs denied implications of the testimony and contended writings of his which were introduced were reports of other persons' views.

Rexroad, acting warden, to begin the routine that all convicts must experience—fingerprints, photographs, a bath, a coarse uniform.

Manton will spend the required thirty days in a quarantine ward and then will be assigned a job—probably as a clerk.

Tears moistened the former jurist's eyes but his face was twisted in his customary scowl as he entered Marshall Lowenthal's office at 9:30 a. m., to begin the 200-mile journey here.

Four hours later he was in prison, stripped of the dignity of twenty-three years on the federal bench; clad in prison gray instead of the velvet-collared blue overcoat and expensive business suit he wore on the motor trip.

As a prisoner here, the once-respected arbiter of the law joins men like many of those on whom he passed judgment before his downfall. He was convicted last June.

McCormick Laboring Under 'Suicide Complex,' Witness Testifies

Cleveland, March 7 (AP)—John L. McCormick's defense drew from a state witness today testimony to bolster its theory that McCormick was laboring under a "suicide complex" when he shot and killed a special policeman in a holdup here Jan. 8.

The twenty-one-year-old University of Pittsburgh student, on trial for first degree murder, has pleaded insanity.

Under cross-examination, Detective Sergeant James Hogan declared McCormick told him "his home was always cold and his car was warm," and that was the reason he started out on a brief crime career.

"That is a touchy thing to talk to a boy about—his parents," Sergeant Hogan testified. "I asked him how he was doing in school and he said 'I was doing all right.' I asked if his parents had fussed with him over his school work, and he said they had."

Defense counsel in its preliminary statement to the jury of nine women and three men said it would show McCormick developed a "suicide complex" following arguments with his well-to-do parents.

McCormick, assused in the death of Theodore Nichols, confessed robbing three Western union offices, Hogan said.

Grand Jury Dismisses Blue Law Charge

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) — The grand jury dismissed without comment today a Sunday "blue law" case brought against a merchant by Mrs. Alice Hession, self-appointed crusader against Sabbath violations.

The case was that of Joseph Lozinki, who Mrs. Hesion charged sold her a ten-cent can of pepper, which is not among the articles that may be sold on Sunday.

The case of another merchant who Mrs. Hession said sold her a can of tomatoes on Sunday was dismissed earlier by a magistrate.

Queen Elizabeth

planes." He said no submarines were sighted.

Sailed Under Sealed Orders

He disclosed that he and his 378 crew members and technicians had sailed under sealed orders—orders not opened until they were at sea, although he acknowledged that even before that he had "put two and two together' 'and figured her destination was New York.

The liner carried a new protective device designed to nullify Magnetic mines.

As to the trip itself, Captain Townley said it was made for reasons of "safety", adding:

"The underwriters had something to do with it."

"She's a good running mate to the Queen Mary," he said proudly of theElizabeth, "and will be faster."

William Sutcliffe, the Elizabeth's chief engineer, thus described the voyage:

Engineer Describes Voyage

"When we slept, we slept with one eye open."

One source asserted that the Elizabeth carried about a dozen passengers whose identities were kept secret but this was not confirmed.

The convoy of four destroyers, a sailor said, remained with the Elizabeth until noon Sunday, having picked her up near the start of her voyage.

"It was a fine trip," he added. "We were not at all frightened although, of course, we took all precautions. We sailed without lights at night but we followed a direct northerly course at all times.

To berth here safe from German bombs—and to exhibit the power of the King's navy—the Elizabeth had dared the swift fatal thrust that might have come from German submarines lying watchfully here and there under the 3,000 miles of cold ocean between Scotland and New York.

And she had won.

But as she came up the bay she made it a ponderously routine business, without the slightest hint of fanfare.

She was a deliberately ugly monster, her clean, functional lines almost obscured by the dirty grey paint that had been slapped all over her vast surface as camouflage, and by the black smoke trailing from her funnels in the sharp March wind.

Two mounted pillbox housings which looked like observation posts were visible on the deck.

Seamen Wave and Cheer

Her officers lounged casually on deck, the collars turned up on their jackets, but the seamen were less unbending. Some of them ran up and down, waving and cheering.

Farther up the bay, a cluster of nondescript vessels offered an unofficial welcome and then Elizabeth dropped her hook at quarantine for several hours' ride at anchor before proceeding on to her dock.

One customs officer, two immigration officials and two officers of Cunard-White Star, the owners, swung aboard from a bobbing coast guard cutter; all others were barred and there was a general air of secrecy all through the proceedings.

"Hello," said Capt. John Barlow, the company's assistant marine superintendent.

"Well," replied Capt. Townley, "we're here."

Urged to tell what he had learned of the trip, Barlow announced that it was "just a normal crossing."

Crosses in Six Days

The great ship had made the crossing from Greenock, Scotland—where she had halted briefly on her voyage that actually had begun from her fitting-out basin on the Clyde river—in six days.

Ten tugs were called into service to assist her into berth—a berth in which the Elizabeth will be like money in a foreign bank to the British—alongside the next-best British merchant marine pride, the 81,000-ton Queen Mary, and the 83,000-ton Normandie of the French line.

So careful were the British that among those barred from going aboard the liner at quarantine was a U. S. officer of naval intelligence.

The vessel's interior—and this was on the description of Captain Barlow, "looked like a completed ship," her paint and polish glistening.

The line itself, however, issued a statement saying that interior accommodations were not "wholly complete," and adding: "No plans have been made for the vessel beyond tieing her up with the Queen Mary."

While the liner's progress up the lower bay was wholly unspectacular, her short run up North River to her berth was saluted by the whistles of dozens of craft by circling and dipping airplanes.

Policemen kept spectators estimated at 10,000 back seventy-five feet.

The crews of the nearby Queen Mary and Normandie assembled on the ships' afterdecks to cheer and shout welcome to the newcomers.

Mack L. Wilt Admits Hold-up of Union Trust Co. Branch

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) —A City college football player pleaded guilty today to the $1,500 holdup of the Westport branch of the Union Trust Company, one of his friends was convicted as an accessory, another was convicted of receiving stolen goods and another was acquitted.

The guilty plea was entered by Mack Lloyd Wilt, 19, quarterback on the City College Jay-Vee team. Lester E. DeWitt, 19, was convicted as an accessory after the fact and Dean Dentry, 21, was convicted of receiving stolen goods.

Acquitted was William Julian De Bullett, 19, accused of being an accessory before and after the fact by driving Wilt to and from the scene of the holdup Feb. 19, and later going to Washington with him to consult his mother.

De Bullett was tried before a criminal court jury. De Wilt and Dentry chose trials before Judge Edwin T. Dickerson, who deferred sentence and announced he would call the youths before him tomorrow.

Wilt was charged with the armed robbery of William Anthon and Gerald E. Mergenthaler, branch bank employes; with larceny of a pistol, and larceny of an automobile which the state contended were used in the robbery.

De Witt was convicted as an accessory after the fact by keeping a pistol that Wilt had turned over to him. Dentry was found guilty of receiving stolen goods by borrowing $10 of the loot from Wilt, keeping it and failing to report to police.

Testimony in De Bullett's case was that he drove Wilt to a place near the bank but did not know of the robbery until after they were driving away and then helped Wilt get to Washington to consult with his mother.

Defense attorneys asserted the boys and Wilt's mother came to Baltimore to return the money, but police were looking for the youths and arrested them.

pound ($400) "token" appropriation in keeping with wartime secrecy.

He said the production of spitfires and hurricanes, Britain's No. 1 and No. 2 fighter planes, had been doubled since the outbreak of war and that the output of the bigger and heavier bomber types had been increased by fifty per cent.

Of quantity, Sir Kingsley expressed confidence "that even on a numerical basis the output of aircraft now accruing to us and to France today is in excess of that of Germany."

Of quality, he said that "I would sooner have 100 Wellingtons (a bomber type) or 100 Spitfires of Hurricanes than a much larger number of their German counterparts."

Down 44 Nazi Planes

In surveying Royal Air Force activities he said British airman had carried out more than a thousand sorties into German territory by day and night and had brought down forty-four German aircraft near the British coast "without a single loss on our side" in addition to which others were forced down at sea or on neutral territory.

There was only a faint note of discord.

Colonel Josiah C. Wedgewood, Laborite, referred to the Royal Air Force's "confetti raids"—dropping of pamphlets—over Germany and said he hoped "we shall soon tackle the Germans with their own weapons on their own ground . . . drop bombs on military objectives."

Meanwhile, he added, "let us stop this farcical waste of lives, valuable machines and petrol which we shall need if anything serious comes aling."

Archbishop Stritch Is Installed As Head of Largest Catholic See

Chicago, March 7 (AP)—Slender, scholarly Archbishop Samuel Alphonsus Stritch ascended the throne of the nation's largest Catholic See today.

The prelate was installed formally as head of the Chicago Archiocese in a brilliant ceremony in the capacity-taxed Holy Name cathedral.

The ancient ritual was witnessed by fourteen archbishops and ninety bishops—representing the greatest gathering of the American hierarchy here since the Eucharistic Congress in 1926—and hundreds of clergymen, public officials and communicants.

They looked on while the archbishop, robed in a white and gold cope and crowned with a tall, peaked, brimless mitre, took his place on a high-backed, hand-carved, velvet-canopied chair on the right side of the altar. At that moment he became the spiritual leader of 1,400,000 members of the faith in the city and surrounding counties. They constitute the largest Catholic population in any episcopal district in the U. S.

Archbishop Stritch dedicated himself to the task of carrying on the mission begun by Father Marquette, explorer-priest who brought the cross to Lake Michigan's shores.

PET BEAR SLAIN BY RUSSIAN BEAR

Gets Interlocutory Decree against James Roosevelt

Los Angeles, March 7 (AP) —Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, whose brother testified "she had no desire for a divorce," was granted an interlocutory decree today from James Rosevelt, oldest son of the president.

Superior Judge Thomas C. Gould approved terms of a property settlement under which she receives $65,000 immediately and has a choice between $50,000 additional in five years or $5,000 annually until she remarries.

In addition, the two children, Sara Delano, and Kate, 4, will receive monthly payments until they are 21, totaling more than $78,000.

"The court is of the opinion that the testimony ofered in this case is sufficient to support the granting of an interlocutory decree of divorce, and the decree is hereby granted," Judge Gould said in the one-minute proceeding.

Mrs. Roosevelt did not appear in court today.

Roosevelt did not contest the divorce. He is in Chicago completing organization of a nickle-in-the-slot-movie enterprise.

The marriage of Betsey Cushing and Roosevelt in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930, two days before his graduation from Harvard, was a society event of note.

Roosevelt entered the insurance business and formed his own firm in 1935. He became administrative assistant to his father Jan. 1, 1937, and resigned that post the next November. After recuperating from an illness, he came to California as fiscal agent for Samuel Goldwyn and vice-president of Goldwyn, Inc., a motion picture production company. Recently he became president of his own company, Globe pictures.

Roosevelt has appeared infrequently at Hollywood social functions. Romelle Schneider, his nurse when he was ill at Rochester, Minn., eighteen months ago, has been his occasional companion.

Edwin Markham

set in on Tuesday and drew him down to his death tonight. He had collected some 1,500 of his poems, as he had said he would, but he never saw the greatest poem of all time, which he fondly hoped some younger man would produce before his death .

Strong Against War

"That," he said, "would be five or six stanzas which would disperse the armies of the world. If I had the time, the youth, the strength to write one great poem, it would be against war. If I could have one wish fulfilled, it would be for a poem that would expose the mockery, the futility, the sterility of war in such a way as to warn every man who loves the world and humanity to watch vigilantly against war."

Markham did not have the time, the youth and the strength; and no other poet had the ability.

Like Child Near Last

He lived his last few months again as a child in the west, where he was once a cowboy. The 30,000 volumes that covered the walls of the old house in which he lived he saw as open cow country. He huddled, even on warm days, indoors in a great brown fur coat; but he talked continually of horses and hills. The people about him he fancied as his long-dead parents and companions.

The patriarchal philosopher believed his best lines concluded his poem, "Lincoln, the Man of the People":

"And when he fell in whirlwind, he went down
"As when a lordly cedar, green with boughs,
"Goes down with a great shout upon the hills,
"And leaves a lonesome place against the sky."

Mine Inspector Killed

Wheeling, W. Va., March 7 (AP) —John Steven Lucas, who inspected mines to see that they were safe, was killed today in the Windsor Coal Company mine at Power. He was inspecting the mine roof when a fall of stone occurred, crushing his body almost beyond recognition.

Radcliffe Offers Promises, Results

Senator also Explains His Votes against the New Deal

Bethesda, Md., March 7 (AP)—Declaring that his opponents for his seat in the United States Senate "must rely on promises," Senator George L. Radcliffe of Maryland told the Bethesda Congressional Club tonight "I would offer both promises and results."

Radcliffe, who is in a spirited campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination with Howard Bruce of Baltimore, said that "no reason has been advanced why I should be removed from the Senate.

"The burden of proof is certainly upon anyone challenging my right to the Senate to prove why I should be dropped."

Admitting that he had on certain occasions opposed President Roosevelt's program, Radcliffe said:

"I have assisted in the drafting of many measures making changes in our legislation which promised to be permanent. I have reference to the SEC, social security, labor legislation and many others.

"I believe that President Roosevelt has sought the welfare of the people and has been indefatigable in his efforts to promote them.

"It is true I have not always approved of the remedies suggested by him and occasionally I have found it necessary to vote in opposition to his recommendations.

to the war office to meet Daladier.

The French provided a heavy police guard from the moment of Welles's arrival and he rode around in a bullet-proof automobile.

Tonight Daladier had Welles to dinner at the foreign office.

Sees Chamberlain Sunday

He will fly to London Sunday, to see Prime Minister Chamberlain, then proceed to Rome for another talk with Mussolini before sailing for home.?

Welles's arrival found no letup in determined French war announcements dealing with both land and sea action. A military communique said a German raid on the western front, east of the Moselle, was repulsed; Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi announced the French navy had sunk a dozen German submarines, seized 18,000 tons of German shipping and, with the British navy, broken Germany's effort to block the Allied sea lanes.

Dr. John H. Finley Dies in New York

New York, March 7 (AP)—Dr. John H. Finley, 76, editor emeritus of the New York Times, educator and director of the Hall of Fame of New York University, died in his sleep early today at his home in Gramercy Park.

His health had failed in the past two years and recently he underwent an operation for hernia. He returned to his home three weeks ago and apparently recovered, for he visited his office at the Times yesterday and seemed to be in high spirits.

Dr. Finley, born at Grand Ridge, Ill., was a former New York state commissioner of education, and at one time was president of Knox College at Galesburg, Ill., and of the College of the City of New York.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Two striking items stand out in the recent grist of war news:

(1) The arrival of Britain's huge merchant liner, Queen Elizabeth, to take refuge in American waters and (2) the rumors of Swedish-fostered peace feelers in the Russo-Finnish conflict.

The two incidents are related in one respect: Both stem out of fears that the spring may bring new horrors of war to Europe's neutrals and belligerents alike. And both are tinged with implications that fascinate students of the situation.

The certainty that the 85,000-ton British sea queen would be a major target for German bombers, if a Nazi air blitzkrieg were unleashed against Britain, was reason enough for risking the liner's dash to New York.

Yet safeguarding the vessel from German air attack might not be the only British purpose. With the Queen Elizabeth and her dowager colleague, the Queen Mary, secure in American waters, Britain has twin sea-power units available on this side of the Atlantic for more spectacular use, if she desires to put them to it.

Either could be converted readily from palatial liners to giant cargo craft for transporting American and Canadian food supplies to England. Or they could be re-fashioned in a Canadian port into mighty aircraft carriers.

Those two ships are a potential war threat to Germany as well as a symbol of British sea power so long as they remain afloat and free to go and come on the open sea.

The safe arrival of the Queen Elizabeth in New York has important psychological values for the Allies as well. It gave British public opinion, attuned to look first for security to the British navy and merchant marine, a stimulant hardly less important than that supplied by the defeat and scuttling of the Nazi pocket battleship Graf Spee.

Uncontradicted reports of Swedish peace moves, with possible Berlin support, to end the war in Finland fall into another category. Some such development has been foreshadowed as a result of Russian successes on the Karelian Isthmus, bringing perilously close the hour when Sweden might no longer be able to maintain a role of neutrality.

For Germany, as for Sweden, termination of the conflict in Finland is urgently desirable before Russia overruns her little neighbor and menaces Scandinavia, or before possible Allied intervention in Finland makes the Baltic an active theater of the bigger war. Yet the reputed terms on which Russia might consider an armistice make doubtful that diplomatic moves to that end will succeed.

There are symptoms that Red commanders have reached a point near desperation in their supreme effort to smash across the isthmus into the heart of Finland before a weather change again stalls them.

In the circumstances, Finnish rejection of any such terms as Stockholm dispatches attribute to Moscow seems a foregone conclusion. The Finns are fighting for time.

Three weeks or less could see the weather break to save Finland again, or developments in London Paris or Scandinavia could insure ultimate help for her. Failure of Swedish peace moves might mean revision of both Swedish and Norwegian neutrality roles, changing the whole European war picture.

Economy-Spending Battle Gets Right Of Way in Senate

Farm State Senators Hope To Get $200,000,000 Above Budget

Washington, March 7 (AP)—A farm bill expected to total at least $1,000,000,000—or more than $200,000,000 above President Roosevelt's budget estimates—got the right of way in the Senate today and the session's biggest test of economy vs. spending was thereby hastened.

Farm state senators won from administration leaders an agreement that the Senate would consider the bill next week.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Financial Committee said he had agreed to lay aside, after brief explanation Monday, the House-approved legislation to continue the reciprocal trade agreements program. This measure had been scheduled to be the Senate's principal business next week.

This farm bill is the annual appropriations measure for the agricultural department. As approved by the House, it carries $713,896,084. Farm-minded senators, however, have spoken confidently of adding 200 to 300 millions of dollars to the bill when an appropriations subcommittee votes on it tomorrow morning.

Finland

Hanko peninsula and part of the far northern Petsamo region.

These demands are far more inclusive than those presented by Russia in Kremlin negotiations which broke down and preceded the Red army's invasion of Finland on Nov. 30.

In the pre-war negotiations the Russians asked for cession of a strip of territory north of Leningrad on the Karelian isthmus in exchange for a part of Soviet Karelia; naval bases on Finland's southern coast; some concessions on the Arctic coast and demilitarization of the Finnish-Russian border. Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar Molotoff specified then that Russia was not asking for Viipuri, now objective of the main Russian offensive.

That Russia had hiked her demands was confirmed in part by the Finnish official press bureau in Helsinki which issued this statement:

"According to information in possession of the Finnish government the Soviet government is believed to have planned presentation of demands to Finland more far reaching in character than those presented last autumn. Details of these demands, however, are so far lacking."

Sweden Censors News

Swedish authorities this afternoon imposed a sudden censorship on all telephoned news relating to the reported negotiations.

Informed opinion here tonight was that the Soviet demands, as far as could be learned, are excessive but might serve as a basis for negotiations leading to an armistice.

The Soviet ultimatum, if the Russian demands were so phrased, was believed to give the alternative of continuance of the war on an increasing scale.

Aside from the possibility that the ultimative character of the Soviet demands might be forcing the issue, foreign observers expressed the opinion that Sweden was being motivated as negotiator by the belief that, if the war in Finland is not stopped, events might complicate Swedish neutrality beyond endurance.

Not only is Finland believed ready to appeal to the western powers for direct assistance but the expected arrival of a greater flow of foreign volunteers—especially British — has led to reports of a German warning to Sweden that such volunteers must not be allowed to pass over Swedish territory.

Sweden therefore faces pressure from two sides which might force her into war. This situation, it was assumed, has led Swedish statesmen to bend every effort for restoration of peace in Finland.

Oliver Hardy Weds California Girl

Las Vegas, Nev., March 7 (AP)—Oliver Hardy, screen comedian, and Virginia Lucille Jones of Beverly Hills, Calif., were married today by Judge Roger Foley.

Hardy gave his age as 48. Miss Jones said she was 26 and that this was her first marriage.

The comedwian formerly was married to Myrtle Reeves, screen actress.

The Hardys said they would spend their honeymoon on an automobile tour of the country.

Coal Price Fixing Funds Cut a Million

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A $1,000,000 cut in the appropriation of the Bituminous Coal Division was ordered today by the House.

The reduction pared to $1,187,000 the funds proposed for operation of the coal price-fixing agency for the next fiscal year.

Representative Allen (D-Pa), long an opponent of the Guffey coal act, proposed the cut. He asserted the division had failed to accomplish its purpose of setting minimum prices for sale of coal at the mines after five years of effort.

Wagner Act Amendment Favored by Majority of a House Committee

Seventeen Changes Proposed by Group of Investigators

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Following are the Wagner Act amendments recommended today by a majority of a special House investigating committee:

1. A new national labor relations board of three members would be created, but there would be no prohibition against reappointment of the present members.

2. The board's prosecuting, administrative and judicial functions would be separated.

3. The new board would sit only as a judge, with a new administrator handling investigations and prosecutions.

4. A move for a collective bargaining election could be made only by the employer or his workers, not by the board; the board's services could not be invoked in a controversy between unions over the type of bargaining unit.

5. An employer could discuss any subject, including labor problems, with his men provided there was no threat of discrimination, intimidation or coercion.

6. Neither an employer nor a union would be compelled to reach a collective bargaining agreement or make counter proposals, although they would be required to meet and make every "reasonable effort" to compose differences.

7. A charge of violating the act would have to be filed within six months after the alleged infraction; no board order for back pay could cover more than six months.

8. Language saying that the United States' policy is to encourage collective bargaining would be eliminated from the law, leaving only the statement that Congress should do all it can to protect workers' exercise of that right.

9. Collective bargaining elections in a unit could not be more frequently than every twelve months.

10. The board could reinstate no workers who willfully engaged in violence or unlawful seizure or destruction of property.

11. The economics division headed by David Sapos would be abolished.

12. Board hearings would have to conform to usual rules of evidence.

13. Issuance of subpoenas for appearances at hearings would be mandatory upon request either of an employer, worker or union.

14. The courts would be permitted to review board decisions in representation cases.

15. In a court review of any type of board action, the board finding would be conclusive if based on a preponderance of evidence and unless it were "clearly erroneous."

16. The intermediate (preliminary) report of a trial examiner would be final unless either employer or employee objected.

17. Employees of farm cooperatives would be exempted from the act.

should hold his job until a final decision was handed down. The second would limit the amount of funds to be withheld to twice the annual salary of the offending employe.

But, the foes of the Hatch act were still dissatisfied. They rallied behind an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo) to eliminate from the original law a single sentence forbidding political activity to government employes.

Like Miller Amendment

This was generally considered essentially the same thing as the Miller (D-Ark) amendment, rejected yesterday. Broader in scope, the Miller amendment would have eliminated the provision in question both as it applied to a federal and to federal-state jobholders.

"It is a matter of good morals and good citizenship that we should not deny to these people the right to proper participation in politics," Adams shouted, adding that the influence of federal employes in his opinion had been generally "wholesome."

Hatch replied that "the result, purpose and effect of the Adams and Miller amendments were "exactly the same."

"I thought that on yesterday that issue was settled," he said.

Music Teachers To Meet at Frederick

Frederick, Md., March 7 (AP) — Music teachers and supervisors in public schools and colleges of Virginia, Maryland the District of Columbia, members of the national capital in-and-about music club, will meet at Hood college here Saturday.

C. W. Wilkins, director of music education at Norfolk, Va., is president of the organization.

Various discussions and short musical programs will be given in the morning to be followed by a luncheon.

At an afternoon session, Dean Ernest F. Griffiths of the graduate department, American University, Washington, is to talk on "the next peace treaty."

Special music will be presented by the Frederick elementary school orchestra under the direction of Charles C. Stull; the Frederick High School Girls Glee Club, directed by Miss Martha Pettit, and the Hood College choir, under direction of Paul Beckhelm.

Committee Offers

recommended that the present board be increased to five members.

The nearest the majority and minority came to an agreement was on a proposal to relieve the board of the duty of determining an appropriate bargaining unit in cases where two labor organizations disagree. Healey and Murdock objected only to the majority's phraseology on this point.

Smith, chairman of the committee, explained that this recommendation, suggested by Lloyd Garrison, former board chairman, would compel the board to stay out of cases where, for example, unions were fighting over whether a craft or industrial union should be the one in which a collective bargaining election should be held.

Smith said that where two unions were striving to gain representation for the same classes of workers, the Garrison prohibition would not apply and the employer, whom Smith described as "caught in the middle," could petition the board for an election. The board would have to grant his request.

Propose Drastic 'Change'

The majority proposed to redefine the phrase "bargain collectively" so that neither an employer nor a union would be compelled to reach an agreement or make counter proposals.

Healey and Murdock argued that the definition was "so drastically restrictive as to undermine the very foundation of the act" by specifically excluding "most essential elements of genuine and effective bargaining."

Smith, Halleck and Routzohn also proposed that the present law be altered to permit employers to discuss any subject with their workers, provided there is no element of discrimination, intimidation or coercion. They suggested, too, that a union's charge of unfair labor practices should not be entertained unless it were filed within six months of the alleged violation. The board would be forbidden to make back pay awards covering a period of more than six months.

The majority recommended abolition of the board's economics division of thirty persons headed by David Saposs. Testimony was presented at the committee hearings intended to show that Saposs was a radical. Saposs denied implications of the testimony and contended writings of his which were introduced were reports of other persons' views.

Tears moistened the former jurist's eyes but his face was twisted in his customary scowl as he entered Marshall Lowenthal's office at 9:30 a. m., to begin the 200-mile journey here.

Four hours later he was in prison, stripped of the dignity of twenty-three years on the federal bench; clad in prison gray instead of the velvet-collared blue overcoat and expensive business suit he wore on the motor trip.

As a prisoner here, the once-respected arbiter of the law joins men like many of those on whom he passed judgment before his downfall. He was convicted last June.

McCormick Laboring Under 'Suicide Complex,' Witness Testifies

Cleveland, March 7 (AP)—John L. McCormick's defense drew from a state witness today testimony to bolster its theory that McCormick was laboring under a "suicide complex" when he shot and killed a special policeman in a holdup here Jan. 8.

The twenty-one-year-old University of Pittsburgh student, on trial for first degree murder, has pleaded insanity.

Under cross-examination, Detective Sergeant James Hogan declared McCormick told him "his home was always cold and his car was warm," and that was the reason he started out on a brief crime career.

"That is a touchy thing to talk to a boy about—his parents," Sergeant Hogan testified. "I asked him how he was doing in school and he said 'I was doing all right.' I asked if his parents had fussed with him over his school work, and he said they had."

Defense counsel in its preliminary statement to the jury of nine women and three men said it would show McCormick developed a "suicide complex" following arguments with his well-to-do parents.

McCormick, assused in the death of Theodore Nichols, confessed robbing three Western union offices, Hogan said.

Grand Jury Dismisses Blue Law Charge

Baltimore, March 7 (AP) — The grand jury dismissed without comment today a Sunday "blue law" case brought against a merchant by Mrs. Alice Hession, self-appointed crusader against Sabbath violations.

The case was that of Joseph Lozinki, who Mrs. Hesion charged sold her a ten-cent can of pepper, which is not among the articles that may be sold on Sunday.

The case of another merchant who Mrs. Hession said sold her a can of tomatoes on Sunday was dismissed earlier by a magistrate.

Queen Elizabeth

planes." He said no submarines were sighted.

Sailed Under Sealed Orders

He disclosed that he and his 378 crew members and technicians had sailed under sealed orders—orders not opened until they were at sea, although he acknowledged that even before that he had "put two and two together' 'and figured her destination was New York.

The liner carried a new protective device designed to nullify Magnetic mines.

As to the trip itself, Captain Townley said it was made for reasons of "safety", adding:

"The underwriters had something to do with it."

"She's a good running mate to the Queen Mary," he said proudly of theElizabeth, "and will be faster."

William Sutcliffe, the Elizabeth's chief engineer, thus described the voyage:

Engineer Describes Voyage

"When we slept, we slept with one eye open."

One source asserted that the Elizabeth carried about a dozen passengers whose identities were kept secret but this was not confirmed.

The convoy of four destroyers, a sailor said, remained with the Elizabeth until noon Sunday, having picked her up near the start of her voyage.

"It was a fine trip," he added. "We were not at all frightened although, of course, we took all precautions. We sailed without lights at night but we followed a direct northerly course at all times.

To berth here safe from German bombs—and to exhibit the power of the King's navy—the Elizabeth had dared the swift fatal thrust that might have come from German submarines lying watchfully here and there under the 3,000 miles of cold ocean between Scotland and New York.

And she had won.

But as she came up the bay she made it a ponderously routine business, without the slightest hint of fanfare.

She was a deliberately ugly monster, her clean, funetional lines almost obscured by the dirty grey paint that had been slapped all over her vast surface as camouflage, and by the black smoke trailing from her funnels in the sharp March wind.

Two mounted pillbox housings which looked like observation posts were visible on the deck.

The first to greet her, a little pot-bellied tug pushing out on a work-a-day errand, loosed three blasts and the Elizabeth's hoarse whistle roared three solemn responses.

Seamen Wave and Cheer

Her officers lounged casually on deck, the collars turned up on their jackets, but the seamen were less unbending. Some of them ran up and down, waving and cheering.

Farther up the bay, a cluster of nondescript vessels offered an unofficial welcome and then Elizabeth dropped her hook at quarantine for several hours' ride at anchor before proceeding on to her dock.

One customs officer, two immigration officials and two officers of Cunard-White Star, the owners, swung aboard from a bobbing coast guard cutter; all others were barred and there was a general air of secrecy all through the proceedings.

"Hello," said Capt. John Barlow, the company's assistant marine superintendent.

"Well," replied Capt. Townley, "we're here."

Urged to tell what he had learned of the trip, Barlow announced that it was "just a normal crossing."

Crosses in Six Days

The great ship had made the crossing from Greenock, Scotland—where she had halted briefly on her voyage that actually had begun from her fitting-out basin on the Clyde river—in six days.

Ten tugs were called into service to assist her into berth—a berth in which the Elizabeth will be like money in a foreign bank to the British — alongside the next-best British merchant marine pride, the 81,000-ton Queen Mary, and the 83,000-ton Normandie of the French line.

So careful were the British that among those barred from going aboard the liner at quarantine was a U. S. officer of naval intelligence.

The vessel's interior—and this was on the description of Captain Barlow, "looked like a completed ship," her paint and polish glistening.

The line itself, however, issued a statement saying that interior accommodations were not "wholly complete," and adding: "No plans have been made for the vessel beyond tieing her up with the Queen Mary."

While the liner's progress up the lower bay was wholly unspectacular, her short run up North River to her berth was saluted by the whistles of dozens of craft by circling and dipping airplanes.

Policemen kept spectators estimated at 10,000 back seventy-five feet.

The Election Economy Challenge

PRESSURE is being brought to bear upon the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to accept the theory that it has no power to install the automatic voting machines for the elections this year because it can do nothing except upon recommendation of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors. The latter board is Democratically controlled and, in accordance with the prevailing Democratic theory, it is reluctant to do anything that may smack of economy or efficiency.

But, the theory being pressed is not tenable. It is a general rule of law that special acts of a legislature supersede general statutes. For example, a municipal charter, granted by a legislature to a particular community, may contain rules, regulations and authority differing from general laws affecting municipalities, and they generally do so, for which reason the charter is a special act. But the specific act supplants those of a general nature.

Now, the General Assembly of Maryland, at its last session, enacted a special act giving the authority to provide the automatic voting machines in this county to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners. Consequently, that special authority shifts the authority heretofore exercised under general law by the election board to the county commissioners. As a matter of fact and law, that was the purpose of the special act.

This newspaper has expressed its opinion that the Republican party of Allegany county faces an economy challenge in the opportunity to install these automatic voting machines. It faces it because party leaders and many others everywhere are emphasizing the need for economy in local and state governments as well as in the national government, where rising costs, continued extravagances and a prodigious public debt have alarmed the oppressed taxpayers. As this newspaper views the matter, it would be a good thing for the party to be placed on record as bringing about this salutary improvement, which will effect a desirable economy in the election costs.

As heretofore pointed out, the argument of unavailable funds as an excuse for not installing the machines, which was advanced when their use was first advocated, has not held up. Figures and data have been published in this newspaper to show that the machines are quite within the means of the county. The manufacturers will install them on a trial rental basis, which would be less expensive than the old system, and such rentals will be accepted in part payment for the machines in the event their practicability and utility are established. Certainly if there is any merit in that, the reasonable offer by the manufacturers would appear to substantiate it.

There is the other argument about "throwing men out of jobs." Nobody, of course, likes to see anybody thrown out of employment. But these election positions are not jobs in the ordinary acceptance of that word. They are merely perquisites, amounting to a short period of service and coming along only every two years or so. The work is extra and occasional, and has no relation to regular employment. Besides, not all the election clerks and commissioners would be eliminated. Some of them would. But that is a dire need in our government everywhere today. Facing the terrible debt that is hanging over them and paying the burdensome rising tax exactions they have to pay, the people are faced with the grave necessity of calling a halt to the spending that is exceeding the income. In many ways it is not particularly nice; but it is necessary and it must be done wherever and whenever the opportunity is presented.

The primary election, which will be held May 5 this year, will afford an exceptionally good opportunity to try out this economical voting method. The ballot will be short. The party voter will have to vote for one (possible) presidential preference, for one candidate for United States senator, for one representative in Congress and, in this county, for six delegates to a state convention. Thus, it would appear to be an ideal occasion to give the voters an opportunity to become familiar with the general operation of the machines. It would give an opportunity to the county officials, as well as to the voters generally, to view at first hand the reaction to this modern method of voting. It would be a valuable experience for the time when the question of adopting the machines permanently will come up for consideration later—as it surely will before a great while.

It is of interest to note that the manufacturers are in a position not only to install as many machines as may be desired for use at the May primary but also to supply plenty of help from the factory to instruct every one of the election officers; to superintend the placing of the machines in whatever parts of the county may be designated in order to give the voters ample opportunity to learn, before election day, how to operate them; and to furnish with each machine a mechanical model of part of the face of the machine to stand on the election officers' tables during the voting, on which each voter can practice before he enters the machine booth.

Certainly an effort to effect needed economy here should be made at least in part, rather than going ahead with the plans that have been made by the election board to create still more election precincts at various places in the county and thus to cause added expense, and possibly cause a deficit in the election expense allotment.

Militarizing the CCC

WHY the agitation for—and against—militarization of the Civilian Conservation Corps? Perhaps that question has puzzled many who have not given the subject much thought.

While in the city this week to deliver an address before the Rotary Club, enlightening answers were given to two such queries propounded to Charles H. Kenlan, of Washington, following his talk. Kenlan is assistant to the director of the CCC.

The advocacy of military training in the CCC camps, Kenlan noted, comes chiefly from the Army and the Navy men and for a good reason. They want recruits who are physically fit, who have had the benefit of some discipline and who have had experience away from home and the maternal apron strings. Obviously the CCC camps provide such material. And, as a matter of fact, the Army and the Navy are given opportunity of drawing upon the men who are processed by the camps. Now, these advocates argue, if they had a little military training, such material would be still better material for them.

On the other hand, Kenlan said, providing for that additional training, while it might be excellent, would serve to impair the chief objective of the corps. Money now utilized would have to be diverted to provide for much military equipment and staffing, and thus less would be available for conservation. In the opinion of the CCC directors, the need for meeting the problem of conservation is far greater than the military need.

So there you are—answers to both sides of the agitated question, and pretty good answers at that. In view of the fact that the CCC organization is pretty generally favored and supported by everybody, these answers are worth study.

Poor Batting

DESPITE all his plugging for the third term, Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, doesn't seem to be getting anywhere with the Washington administration. His batting record is getting rather poor.

President Roosevelt has named Dr. Herbert Funk Goodrich, dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, to be judge of the Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals to fill the vacancy caused by the recent appointment of Judge Francis Biddle as United States solicitor general. The appointment was made over the vigorous protest of Senator Guffey, who urged the selection of Judge John J. McCann, of Cambria county.

This appointment was a double blow to the senator, as the president, when he appointed Judge Biddle to the Circuit court, rejected Senator Guffey's request that the appointment go to Judge Michael A. Musmanno, of the Allegheny county court.

It may be a good guess that such developments provide a reason why Guffey is so frantically beating the tom-tom for the third term.

Big Error Realized

BALTIMORE reports that Governor O'Conor is "most anxious and determined to see that a revision is made downward" in the state income tax.

"The state is well able to stand a reduction in the tax," the governor is reported to have declared, adding that he doesn't "think there is any doubt that a tax reduction can be made."

This is tacit admission that the Democratic legislature of this state made a grave mistake in enacting the present outrageous income tax law, which this newspaper has all along contended. We can give the governor credit for seeing and realizing the enormity of the error.

The state can stand a reduction, the governor says. Well, the taxpayers of the state certainly can.

The average householder will be asked about 200 questions in the federal census. Uncle Sam must think his nephews know all the answers.

Brotherly Love Note: A Missouri weekly says of a neighbor town, "Platte City is demanding four more street lights, one for each corner."

That six-year-old Lama of Tibet is carried about in a sedan chair. Bet he'd prefer a tricycle or roller skates any old day.

Looking at You

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Everybody who looks at you sees somebody else. Everybody sees in you what interests him (or her) most.

Marshall Maslin

The tailor sees the fit of your clothes, the barber wonders who cut your hair, the skin specialist thinks one of his treatments might do you a lot of good.

The salesman looks at you and sees a "prospect." The dentist observes your teeth and the shape of your jaw. The doctor notices your posture and your color. The man in the complaint department sees a possible grouch. The actor sees his "public" in you. The newspaperman sees a reader. The detective sees a probable law-breaker. The street-sweeper sees "one of those people who throw things in the gutter instead of into the refuse can."

The forest ranger sees a careless smoker who might set the forest on fire. The pedestrian sees a reckless driver. The man in the automobile sees a slow-moving pedestrian. . . . The dog sees a man who may pet him—or kick him.

Your mother sees the cunning little boy you used to be.

Your wife sees the man you were and the man you have become—careless, brooding, timid, audacious, cheerful, grumpy and perhaps (let us hope) still lovable.

Every woman who looks at you makes a private judgment. So does every man.

You look in your mirror and you see a face that needs to be shaved entirely too often and a human being you have never completely understood.

And your God looks at you—and keeps His opinion to Himself. He, you hope, has not lost faith in you.

Indians Renounce Their Old Symbol

Edwin C. Hill

There are far horizons and lost horizons, too, over on the human side of the news. Nobody knows where and when the Indians got the swastika, but it was theirs ages before Adolf Hitler grabbed it, and now they are angry at its "desecration." Four Arizona tribes renounce it forever and, with a solemn ceremony, burn blankets, baskets and clothing bearing the emblem.

It has always been a symbol of well-being, of friendship and goodwill, from the days of the Bronze age, possibly earlier, where it was crudely scratched on implements and weapons. The small transverse bars on the Indian swatstika ran in opposite direction to those of Nazi emblem. It has been suggested that the Nazis unintentionally symbolized the turning back of the wheel of progress and well-being when they reversed their swastika. This does not appear to be supported by the somewhat meager evidence which anthropologists have gathered. The swastika has been turned left or right by various peoples, but always has stood for well-being and progress. Never before has it been considered an emblem of oppression, aggression, evil and cruelty.

Oldest Known

It is perhaps the oldest of known human symbols, far antedating the ancient Greek border as a detail of decoration. The Papagos, Navajos Hopis and Apaches, who now forswear and burn it, are ancient peoples, but the swastika was old long before their tribes were formed. In South American ruins it has appeared on utensils of a period far earlier than that of the Toltecs and Aztecs, peoples whose origins fade far into dim, long-forgotten centuries.

Its dispersal throughout the world has been one of the mysteries of archaeology. It was one of the sacred symbols of Jainism, which preceded Buddhism, in India. It spread, probably from India, through Tibet, China and Japan. It was noted and described in early Sanskrit writings. It was found, used decoratively, in the ruins of Troy.

Did man originate in many different regions, or did he range over the earth from the Valley of the Euphrates? This multiple origin theory, as against the "dispersal" theory, has been long pondered by anthropologists, and the virtual universality of the swastika has baffled them all.

Less Meaning Now

Symbols have far less meaning for us than they did for mediaeval or ancient man. Deal William Graham Sumner, in "Folkways," his classic study of the remote origins and inducements of human behavior, ascribes this to the fact that modern man has pictures, and we no longer need the graphic suggestive power of the symbol. He and other authorities in this field agree that any symbol, deeply rooted in the race life, is essentially a mass stimulus and that even a benign symbol, as the swastika always has been, may become an incitement to orgiastic crowd emotion, cruelty and barbarity.

Even the quick surface view of our tribal history shows that every great mass psychosis has been unleashed by a symbol. There could be none without it. I recently heard an intelligent friend deplore the fact that democracy never seemed to work up inspiring symbols like other forms of government. Perhaps it is just as well, considering the fact that a venerated symbol may be snatched by lunatics and killers.

Spooky Business

It'h a rather spooky business, this inventory of the deep crypts of the human spirit. Objective scientists like Sumner and Sir James Frazier see what they see and let it go at that, and later delvers, like Junge, the famous Viennese Psychologist, piece out something like demonology, in explaining the swastika for instance.

We were almost afraid to go home in the dark when we heard Junge's American lecture in a New York hotel several years ago. It was like this:

There is a 'buried stream of the unconscious" which runs underground, through race history, like the Hassiyampa River in Nevada. In times of great tribal tension and frustration, this steam is dammed and there wells up to surface an ancient symbol to unite, and possibly inflame the tribe. That was how the Nazis dredged up the swastika without knowing what they were doing.

Herr Junge showed the screen his "mandalas" or early racial swmbols, the swastika among them. And the jittery port of it was that if you get a faithful recording of the dreams of, say a Wall Street broker, you may find among them a swastika or a bit of decoration found on a buried Egyptian temple. Many persons, sketching their dream pictures, have drawn these symbols.

News Flood from Washington Gives Indication That FDR Is a Candidate

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, March 7.—Newspapers and radio listeners may have failed to understand completely a flood of news about Mr. Roosevelt and a third term, which spread out from Washington this week, excepting such as knew what preceded. From the whole series of incidents, some faint illumination may be had.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

On Monday, an especially arresting third-term story was published in the Washington Post. The writer, Mr. Ernest K. Lindley, is close to Mr. Roosevelt, has written a friendly biography of him, was chosen by Mr. Roosevelt as one of the board to manage the library containing the presidential papers at Hyde Park. In saying this, it is not meant to imply that Mr. Lindlye's story was inspired, but merely that Mr. Lindley would hardly have written it unless he had especially good reason to believe it accurate.

The Lindley story described a visit to Mr. Roosevelt some weeks ago by a southern Democratic congressman. The story represents Mr. Roosevelt as telling his visitor, in part:

Farley in Discard

That he was not going to run again, that he was tired. That if it should happen that the Germans over-ran England and head in our direction, he "won't desert the ship." But that it was time for some one else to take over the job of the presidency.

That Mr. Roosevelt regarded Secretary of State Hull as a good candidate for the presidency. That for the vice-presidency he mentioned Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, ex-Governor Paul V. McNutt, and Senator Wheeler, of Montana. That although he likes Postmaster-General Farley greatly, he did not feel it would be expedient to name Mr. Farley as the vice-presidential candidate.

Mr. Lindley's story ended with the White House visitor saying to friends, afterward, that he hoped Mr. Roosevelt would stick to his decision, but that he was not certain whether Mr. Roosevelt would.

All Queries Parried

That was printed Monday. The following day occurred the president's first press conference after his return from the South. An exceptionally large number of newspaper men trooped in. At once came questions about the third term story. Mr. Roosevelt took the questions with a good humor which seemed genuine, and not, as sometimes, a camouflage for evasion. He said his attention had been called to the story but that he had not read it. (Athough, somewhat maladroitly—if one can ever accuse Mr. Roosevelt of erring in adroitness—he later spoke of having read a different story in the same paper.) With infinite versatility, of parrying and fending, Mr. Roosevelt eluded a score of questions designed to bring out a comment on the story. Mr. Roosevelt gave the newspapermen many laughs, but no enlightenment. The newspapermen had a good time—but got no grist for their mill.

Cryptic Phrase

What shall we make of it all? Every newspaper man in Washington would like to know, for the sake of the best story of the year. Every Democrat in the country would like to know, to be able to guide his own course accordingly. There was, in the original story, a phrase that might be cryptic. Mr. Roosevelt had said to his visitor that if the Germans overrun England and head our way, he would not "desert the ship". Does that mean he would try to remain in the presidency? Or does that refer to another curious story that has bobbed in the current of Washington gossip, to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt, after his present term, would like to trade places with Mr. Hull—Mr. Hull to be president, Mr. Roosevelt to be secretary of state.

May Not Be Significant

If that is what Mr. Roosevelt meant by "won't desert the ship," then he has not yet taken a position on the third term as an abstract, impersonal issue; but if Mr. Roosevelt meant that in a given contingency he would run for president again, then he has said, in effect, that he sees no objection to a third term on principle. But perhaps we had better not attach too much significance to the words "won't desert the ship." After all, they passed through at least three transmissions from Mr. Roosevelt's lips to the printed story.

The story about Mr. Roosevelt's talk with his congressional visitor seems to make his running contingent upon the war going on and the Germans winning—it is in that case that he would not desert the ship. Much of Washington has assumed it would be the approach of peace that Mr. Roosevelt would see as justification for attempting to remain in office.

Peace Move Seen

When Mr. Roosevelt sent Undersecretary of State Welles abroad a few weeks ago; and when, about the same time, he sent Mr. Myron Taylor to be a kind of unofficial representative at the Vatican, it was widely assumed that these steps were meant by Mr. Roosevelt to set up a mechanism for peace. If Mr. Roosevelt, with the Pope, could bring about negotiations for peace, and if these negotiations were actively under way, in the sight of the world, as the Democratic national convention and the November election approach, there would be justification for Mr. Roosevelt hoping that the United States would wish to keep him in office until the peace negotiations were completed.

It is all speculative. The facts about the third term are, that Mr. Roosevelt's name is entered in several primaries; that he is unlikely to withdraw his name now, because that would make confusion even greater; that where Mr. Roosevelt's name is in, other candidates, excepting Vice-President Garner, stay out. And that in the primaries where Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner are pitted against each other, Mr. Roosevelt is likely to get the delegates. As things stand, Mr. Roosevelt is likely to have enough delegates in the convention to give him the nomination if he wants it.

An Opportunity For Industry

By B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine

Industry should take its case to the people. It should organize a nationwide campaign of enlightenment. Too long the majority of its leaders have suffered in silence the most unjustifiable misrepresentation, malignment, mud-slinging by politicians. Whenever a defendant does not appear in court a verdict of guilty is returned. In recent years unfair sentences have been passed against business and industry largely because no proper defense has been offered.

It would pay industry—and it would be profitable to workers and to the nation—if business and industry were to organize a $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 fund to present to the people fundamental economic facts.

The first need is for a leader to step forward, a leader commanding national respect—such a man as Wendell L. Wilkie or Owen D. Young or C. M. Chester or Thomas J. Watson or A. P. Sloan or Lewis H. Brown. I have reason to feel confident that such a movement, properly sponsored, would be readily financed.

Early action is imperative. The underlying purpose would be to enable voters to obtain fuller economic understanding before next November. For years the politicians have had their say and their sway. Most employment-givers have been mute. Afraid.

As I see it, the whole future destiny of America may be determined at the next Presidential election. Should the majority—through lack of proper light—conclude that the economic system which has made America the envy of the world is condemnable, that totalitarianism is preferable to democracy, then heaven help us if a candidate espousing such ideas should be elected! True, the trend of public sentiment has been running in the opposite direction. Yet, men of affairs, believers in America's institutions and economy, should not take too much for granted. They should, realizing the momentous issue at stake, leave no stone unturned to lay the full facts before the people.

Johnson Finds His Contention Upheld

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, March 7—Here are a few sketchy excerpts from the testimony of Army general staff officers before a Senate subcommittee on appropriation:

"The president's executive order * * * directed that the enlisted strength of the regular army be increased to 227,000 * * * National Guard to 235,000" (total 462,000 or about what Finland had) "* * * with the increase * * * we have been enabled to form * * * five new triangle infantry divisions" (peace strength each, 8,500 as compared with 30,000 in World war, or a total of 42,500 men) and also * * * corps troops for one army corps * * * We have conserved man-power and have been able to conserve fire-power with modern weapons * * *."

Question: "How many anti-aircraft guns will you have at the end of this fiscal year?"

Answer: "I would prefer not to put the figures in the record."

Question: "The statement is made in the press that the United States will thus have fewer anti-aircraft guns than is provided for the defense of the City of London?"

Four Guns a Month

Answer: "I understand that there are 144 heavy anti-aircraft and forty-eight medium caliber anti-aircraft in the defenses of London. The guns we have on order will be delivered by September 1941. All but forty-eight will be delivered by November 1940." (This figures a rate of delivery for the last forty-eight of a little over four guns a month).

Question: "How many new rifles have you?"

Answer: "We have got all five divisions equipped." (42,500 men, not all riflemen). * * * I do not believe that this ought to go into the record * * *."

Question: "Well it has all been in the press * * * that you have got about 22,000 or 23,000. I want to know whether that is so?" "They are being made." (Here the questioner, Senator Byrnes, mildly blew up and got this) "We are getting them at the rate of 4,000 a month and we have on hand 24,000 or 25,000 (for 42,500 men). By June 1942, we expect to complete those now on order, 149,628." (This figures a rate from all sources of less than 5,400 a month. It probably includes a speed-up at the end). But listen to this:

Two Hundred Daily

Answer: "Right now in the Springfield armory the production is 200 per day (6,000 a month—not 4,000). We have an order for 65,000 with the Winchester company. They will not come into maximum production for a period of eighteen months; but we expect them to complete the contract for 65,000 by June 30, 1942."

These answers taken thus unexplained, are contradictory, evasive and do not add up to make sense. If the rate is now 4,000 a month, by June 30, 1942, it would yield 132,000 rifles. Skipping the "200 a day" contradiction and allowing for a speed-up to get 149,628 in this period, that speed-up would be only thirteen per cent on the average—and then yield only 149,628 rifles for a force of 462,000 men by June 30, 1942.

Question: "Why $16,000,000 for new motor vehicles?"

Answer: "When we brought these five divisions into the field (only 42,500 men) * * * * they had never been equipped sufficiently to reach their peace allowance of motor transportation. Divisions could not function as divisions, nor corps as corps * * *."

This is the new streamlined organization which is going to expose fewer men but have more fire-power "with modern weapons."

Confirmation Seen

I do not take these fragments from the record to criticize the general staff. I know what they are up against—with a political civilian overhead. But if this column ever needed any confirmation of its repeated assertions that the country is being kidded and that we have no modern or even usable army either in existence or in reasonable prospect—here it is.

It simply hasn't got the stuff. It isn't prepared to get the stuff. Right now, in an election year, there is such apathy or opposition to appropriations to modernize it that it probably will be set back another full year in the great "economy" drive. Billions for boondoggling but not enough for modern defense to equip one decent army corps.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Election Economy Challenge

PRESSURE is being brought to bear upon the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to accept the theory that it has no power to install the automatic voting machines for the elections this year because it can do nothing except upon recommendation of the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors. The latter board is Democratically controlled and, in accordance with the prevailing Democratic theory, it is reluctant to do anything that may smack of economy or efficiency.

But, the theory being pressed is not tenable. It is a general rule of law that special acts of a legislature supersede general statutes. For example, a municipal charter, granted by a legislature to a particular community, may contain rules, regulations and authority differing from general laws affecting municipalities, and they generally do so, for which reason the charter is a special act. But the specific act supplants those of a general nature.

Now, the General Assembly of Maryland, at its last session, enacted a special act giving the authority to provide the automatic voting machines in this county to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners. Consequently, that special authority shifts the authority heretofore exercised under general law by the election board to the county commissioners. As a matter of fact and law, that was the purpose of the special act.

This newspaper has expressed its opinion that the Republican party of Allegany county faces an economy challenge in the opportunity to install these automatic voting machines. It faces it because party leaders and many others everywhere are emphasizing the need for economy in local and state governments as well as in the national government, where rising costs, continued extravagances and a prodigious public debt have alarmed the oppressed taxpayers. As this newspaper views the matter, it would be a good thing for the party to be placed on record as bringing about this salutary improvement, which will effect a desirable economy in the election costs.

As heretofore pointed out, the argument of unavailable funds as an excuse for not installing the machines, which was advanced when their use was first advocated, has not held up. Figures and data have been published in this newspaper to show that the machines are quite within the means of the county. The manufacturers will install them on a trial rental basis, which would be less expensive than the old system, and such rentals will be accepted in part payment for the machines in the event their practicability and utility are established. Certainly if there is any merit in that, the reasonable offer by the manufacturers would appear to substantiate it.

There is the other argument about "throwing men out of jobs." Nobody, of course, likes to see anybody thrown out of employment. But these election positions are not jobs in the ordinary acceptance of that word. They are merely perquisites, amounting to a short period of service and coming along only every two years or so. The work is extra and occasional, and has no relation to regular employment. Besides, not all the election clerks and commissioners would be eliminated. Some of them would. But that is a dire need in our government everywhere today. Facing the terrible debt that is hanging over them and paying the burdensome rising tax exactions they have to pay, the people are faced with the grave necessity of calling a halt to the spending that is exceeding the income. In many ways it is not particularly nice; but it is necessary and it must be done wherever and whenever the opportunity is presented.

The primary election, which will be held May 5 this year, will afford an exceptionally good opportunity to try out this economical voting method. The ballot will be short. The party voter will have to vote for one (possible) presidential preference, for one candidate for United States senator, for one representative in Congress and, in this county, for six delegates to a state convention. Thus, it would appear to be an ideal occasion to give the voters an opportunity to become familiar with the general operation of the machines. It would give an opportunity to the county officials, as well as to the voters generally, to view at first hand the reaction to this modern method of voting. It would be a valuable experience for the time when the question of adopting the machines permanently will come up for consideration later—as it surely will before a great while.

It is of interest to note that the manufacturers are in a position not only to install as many machines as may be desired for use at the May primary but also to supply plenty of help from the factory to instruct every one of the election officers; to superintend the placing of the machines in whatever parts of the county may be designated in order to give the voters ample opportunity to learn, before election day, how to operate them; and to furnish with each machine a mechanical model of part of the face of the machine to stand on the election officers' tables during the voting, on which each voter can practice before he enters the machine booth.

Certainly an effort to effect needed economy here should be made at least in part, rather than going ahead with the plans that have been made by the election board to create still more election precincts at various places in the county and thus to cause added expense, and possibly cause a deficit in the election expense allotment.

Militarizing the CCC

WHY the agitation for—and against—militarization of the Civilian Conservation Corps? Perhaps that question has puzzled many who have not given the subject much thought.

While in the city this week to deliver an address before the Rotary Club, enlightening answers were given to two such queries propounded to Charles H. Kenlan, of Washington, following his talk. Kenlan is assistant to the director of the CCC.

The advocacy of military training in the CCC camps, Kenlan noted, comes chiefly from the Army and the Navy men and for a good reason. They want recruits who are physically fit, who have had the benefit of some discipline and who have had experience away from home and the maternal apron strings. Obviously the CCC camps provide such material. And, as a matter of fact, the Army and the Navy are given opportunity of drawing upon the men who are processed by the camps. Now, these advocates argue, if they had a little military training, such material would be still better material for them.

On the other hand, Kenlan said, providing for that additional training, while it might be excellent, would serve to impair the chief objective of the corps. Money now utilized would have to be diverted to provide for much military equipment and staffing, and thus less would be available for conservation. In the opinion of the CCC directors, the need for meeting the problem of conservation is far greater than the military need.

So there you are—answers to both sides of the agitated question, and pretty good answers at that. In view of the fact that the CCC organization is pretty generally favored and supported by everybody, these answers are worth study.

Poor Batting

DESPITE all his plugging for the third term, Senator Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, doesn't seem to be getting anywhere with the Washington administration. His batting record is getting rather poor.

President Roosevelt has named Dr. Herbert Funk Goodrich, dean of the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, to be judge of the Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals to fill the vacancy caused by the recent appointment of Judge Francis Biddle as United States solicitor general. The appointment was made over the vigorous protest of Senator Guffey, who urged the selection of Judge John J. McCann, of Cambria county.

This appointment was a double blow to the senator, as the president, when he appointed Judge Biddle to the Circuit court, rejected Senator Guffey's request that the appointment go to Judge Michael A. Musmanno, of the Allegheny county court.

It may be a good guess that such developments provide a reason why Guffey is so frantically beating the tom-tom for the third term.

Big Error Realized

BALTIMORE reports that Governor O'Conor is "most anxious and determined to see that a revision is made downward" in the state income tax.

"The state is well able to stand a reduction in the tax," the governor is reported to have declared, adding that he doesn't "think there is any doubt that a tax reduction can be made."

This is tacit admission that the Democratic legislature of this state made a grave mistake in enacting the present outrageous income tax law, which this newspaper has all along contended. We can give the governor credit for seeing and realizing the enormity of the error.

The state can stand a reduction, the governor says. Well, the taxpayers of the state certainly can.

The average householder will be asked about 200 questions in the federal census. Uncle Sam must think his nephews know all the answers.

Indians Renounce Their Old Symbol

BY EDWIN C. HILL

There are far horizons and lost horizons, too, over on the human side of the news. Nobody knows where and when the Indians got the swastika, but it was theirs ages before Adolf Hitler grabbed it, and now they are angry at its "desecration." Four Arizona tribes renounce it forever and, with a solemn ceremony, burn blankets, baskets and clothing bearing the emblem.

Edwin C. Hill

It has always been a symbol of well-being, of friendship and goodwill, from the days of the Bronze age, possibly earlier, where it was crudely scratched on implements and weapons. The small transverse bars on the Indian swatstika ran in opposite direction to those of Nazi emblem. It has been suggested that the Nazis unintentionally symbolized the turning back of the wheel of progress and well-being when they reversed their swastika. This does not appear to be supported by the somewhat meager evidence which anthropologists have gathered. The swastika has been turned left or right by various peoples, but always has stood for well-being and progress. Never before has it been considered an emblem of oppression, aggression, evil and cruelty.

Oldest Known

It is perhaps the oldest of known human symbols, far antedating the ancient Greek border as a detail of decoration. The Papagos, Navajos Hopis and Apaches, who now forswear and burn it, are ancient peoples, but the swastika was old long before their tribes were formed. In South American ruins it has appeared on utensils of a period far earlier than that of the Toltecs and Aztecs, peoples whose origins fade far into dim, long-forgotten centuries.

Its dispersal throughout the world has been one of the mysteries of archaeology. It was one of the sacred symbols of Jainism, which preceded Buddhism, in India. It spread, probably from India, through Tibet, China and Japan. It was noted and described in early Sanskrit writings. It was found, used decoratively, in the ruins of Troy.

Did man originate in many different regions, or did he range over the earth from the Valley of the Euphrates? This multiple origin theory, as against the "dispersal" theory, has been long pondered by anthropologists, and the virtual universality of the swastika has baffled them all.

Less Meaning Now

Symbols have far less meaning for us than they did for mediaeval or ancient man. Deal William Graham Sumner, in "Folkways," his classic study of the remote origins and inducements of human behavior, ascribes this to the fact that modern man has pictures, and we no longer need the graphic suggestive power of the symbol. He and other authorities in this field agree that any symbol, deeply rooted in the race life, is essentially a mass stimulus and that even a benign symbol, as the swastika always has been, may become an incitement to orgiastic crowd emotion, cruelty and barbarity.

Even the quick surface view of our tribal history shows that every great mass psychosis has been unleashed by a symbol. There could be none without it. I recently heard an intelligent friend deplore the fact that democracy never seemed to work up inspiring symbols like other forms of government. Perhaps it is just as well, considering the fact that a venerated symbol may be snatched by lunatics and killers.

Spooky Business

It'h a rather spooky business, this inventory of the deep crypts of the human spirit. Objective scientists like Sumner and Sir James Frazier see what they see and let it go at that, and later delvers, like Junge, the famous Viennese Psychologist, piece out something like demonology, in explaining the swastika for instance.

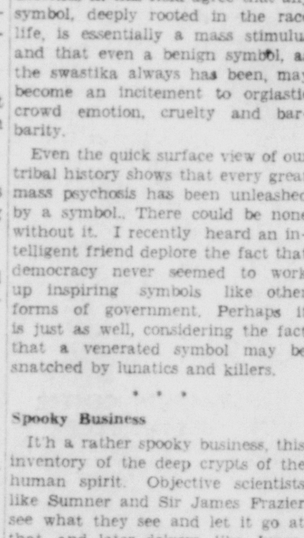

We were almost afraid to go home in the dark when we heard Junge's American lecture in a New York hotel several years ago. It was like this:

There is a 'buried stream of the unconscious" which runs underground, through race history, like the Hassiyampa River in Nevada. In times of great tribal tension and frustration, this steam is dammed and there wells up to surface an ancient symbol to unite, and possibly inflame the tribe. That was how the Nazis dredged up the swastika without knowing what they were doing.

Herr Junge showed the screen his "mandalas" or early racial swmbols, the swastika among them. And the jittery port of it was that if you get a faithful recording of the dreams of, say a Wall Street broker, you may find among them a swastika or a bit of decoration found on a buried Egyptian temple. Many persons, sketching their dream pictures, have drawn these symbols.

News Flood from Washington Gives Indication That FDR Is a Candidate

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, March 7.—Newspapers and radio listeners may have failed to understand completely a flood of news about Mr. Roosevelt and a third term, which spread out from Washington this week, excepting such as knew what preceded. From the whole series of incidents, some faint illumination may be had.

Franklin D. Roosevelt

On Monday, an especially arresting third-term story was published in the Washington Post. The writer, Mr. Ernest K. Lindley, is close to Mr. Roosevelt, has written a friendly biography of him, was chosen by Mr. Roosevelt as one of the board to manage the library containing the presidential papers at Hyde Park. In saying this, it is not meant to imply that Mr. Lindlye's story was inspired, but merely that Mr. Lindley would hardly have written it unless he had especially good reason to believe it accurate.

The Lindley story described a visit to Mr. Roosevelt some weeks ago by a southern Democratic congressman. The story represents Mr. Roosevelt as telling his visitor, in part:

Farley in Discard

That he was not going to run again, that he was tired. That if it should happen that the Germans over-ran England and head in our direction, he "won't desert the ship." But that it was time for some one else to take over the job of the presidency.

That Mr. Roosevelt regarded Secretary of State Hull as a good candidate for the presidency. That for the vice-presidency he mentioned Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, ex-Governor Paul V. McNutt, and Senator Wheeler, of Montana. That although he likes Postmaster-General Farley greatly, he did not feel it would be expedient to name Mr. Farley as the vice-presidential candidate.

Mr. Lindley's story ended with the White House visitor saying to friends, afterward, that he hoped Mr. Roosevelt would stick to his decision, but that he was not certain whether Mr. Roosevelt would.

All Queries Parried

That was printed Monday. The following day occurred the president's first press conference after his return from the South. An exceptionally large number of newspaper men trooped in. At once came questions about the third term story. Mr. Roosevelt took the questions with a good humor which seemed genuine, and not, as sometimes, a camouflage for evasion. He said his attention had been called to the story but that he had not read it. (Athough, somewhat maladroitly—if one can ever accuse Mr. Roosevelt of erring in adroitness—he later spoke of having read a different story in the same paper.) With infinite versatility, of parrying and fending, Mr. Roosevelt eluded a score of questions designed to bring out a comment on the story. Mr. Roosevelt gave the newspapermen many laughs, but no enlightenment. The newspapermen had a good time—but got no grist for their mill.

Cryptic Phrase

What shall we make of it all? Every newspaper man in Washington would like to know, for the sake of the best story of the year. Every Democrat in the country would like to know, to be able to guide his own course accordingly. There was, in the original story, a phrase that might be cryptic. Mr. Roosevelt had said to his visitor that if the Germans overrun England and head our way, he would not "desert the ship". Does that mean he would try to remain in the presidency? Or does that refer to another curious story that has bobbed in the current of Washington gossip, to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt, after his present term, would like to trade places with Mr. Hull—Mr. Hull to be president, Mr. Roosevelt to be secretary of state.

May Not Be Significant

If that is what Mr. Roosevelt meant by "won't desert the ship," then he has not yet taken a position on the third term as an abstract, impersonal issue; but if Mr. Roosevelt meant that in a given contingency he would run for president again, then he has said, in effect, that he sees no objection to a third term on principle. But perhaps we had better not attach too much significance to the words "won't desert the ship." After all, they passed through at least three transmissions from Mr. Roosevelt's lips to the printed story.

The story about Mr. Roosevelt's talk with his congressional visitor seems to make his running contingent upon the war going on and the Germans winning—it is in that case that he would not desert the ship. Much of Washington has assumed it would be the approach of peace that Mr. Roosevelt would see as justification for attempting to remain in office.

Peace Move Seen

When Mr. Roosevelt sent Undersecretary of State Welles abroad a few weeks ago; and when, about the same time, he sent Mr. Myron Taylor to be a kind of unofficial representative at the Vatican, it was widely assumed that these steps were meant by Mr. Roosevelt to set up a mechanism for peace. If Mr. Roosevelt, with the Pope, could bring about negotiations for peace, and if these negotiations were actively under way, in the sight of the world, as the Democratic national convention and the November election approach, there would be justification for Mr. Roosevelt hoping that the United States would wish to keep him in office until the peace negotiations were completed.

It is all speculative. The facts about the third term are, that Mr. Roosevelt's name is entered in several primaries; that he is unlikely to withdraw his name now, because that would make confusion even greater; that where Mr. Roosevelt's name is in, other candidates, excepting Vice-President Garner, stay out. And that in the primaries where Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner are pitted against each other, Mr. Roosevelt is likely to get the delegates. As things stand, Mr. Roosevelt is likely to have enough delegates in the convention to give him the nomination if he wants it.

An Opportunity For Industry

By B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine

Industry should take its case to the people. It should organize a nationwide campaign of enlightenment. Too long the majority of its leaders have suffered in silence the most unjustifiable misrepresentation, malignment, mud-slinging by politicians. Whenever a defendant does not appear in court a verdict of guilty is returned. In recent years unfair sentences have been passed against business and industry largely because no proper defense has been offered.

It would pay industry—and it would be profitable to workers and to the nation—if business and industry were to organize a $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 fund to present to the people fundamental economic facts.

The first need is for a leader to step forward, a leader commanding national respect—such a man as Wendell L. Wilkie or Owen D. Young or C. M. Chester or Thomas J. Watson or A. P. Sloan or Lewis H. Brown. I have reason to feel confident that such a movement, properly sponsored, would be readily financed.

Early action is imperative. The underlying purpose would be to enable voters to obtain fuller economic understanding before next November. For years the politicians have had their say and their sway. Most employment-givers have been mute. Afraid.

As I see it, the whole future destiny of America may be determined at the next Presidential election. Should the majority—through lack of proper light—conclude that the economic system which has made America the envy of the world is condemnable, that totalitarianism is preferable to democracy, then heaven help us if a candidate espousing such ideas should be elected! True, the trend of public sentiment has been running in the opposite direction. Yet, men of affairs, believers in America's institutions and economy, should not take too much for granted. They should, realizing the momentous issue at stake, leave no stone unturned to lay the full facts before the people.

Wanted: A Leader.

Johnson Finds His Contention Upheld

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, March 7—Here are a few sketchy excerpts from the testimony of Army general staff officers before a Senate subcommittee on appropriation:

"The president's executive order * * * directed that the enlisted strength of the regular army be increased to 227,000 * * * National Guard to 235,000" (total 462,000 or about what Finland had) "* * * with the increase * * * we have been enabled to form * * * five new triangle infantry divisions" (peace strength each, 8,500 as compared with 30,000 in World war, or a total of 42,500 men) and also * * * corps troops for one army corps * * * We have conserved man-power and have been able to conserve fire-power with modern weapons * * *

Question: "How many anti-aircraft guns will you have at the end of this fiscal year?"

Answer: "I would prefer not to put the figures in the record."

Question: "The statement is made in the press that the United States will thus have fewer anti-aircraft guns than is provided for the defense of the City of London?"

Four Guns a Month

Answer: "I understand that there are 144 heavy anti-aircraft and forty-eight medium caliber anti-aircraft in the defenses of London. The guns we have on order will be delivered by September 1941. All but forty-eight will be delivered by November 1940." (This figures a rate of delivery for the last forty-eight of a little over four guns a month).

Question: "How many new rifles have you?"

Answer: "We have got all five divisions equipped." (42,500 men, not all riflemen). * * * I do not believe that this ought to go into the record * * *."

Question: "Well it has all been in the press * * * that you have got about 22,000 or 23,000. I want to know whether that is so?" "They are being made." (Here the questioner, Senator Byrnes, mildly blew up and got this) "We are getting them at the rate of 4,000 a month and we have on hand 24,000 of 25,000 (for 42,500 men). By June 1942, we expect to complete those now on order, 149,628." (This figures a rate from all sources of less than 5,400 a month. It probably includes a speed-up at the end). But listen to this:

Two Hundred Daily

Answer: "Right now in the Springfield armory the production is 200 per day (6,000 a month—not 4,000). We have an order for 65,000 with the Winchester company. They will not come into maximum production for a period of eighteen months; but we expect them to complete the contract for 65,000 by June 30, 1942."

These answers taken thus unexplained, are contradictory, evasive and do not add up to make sense. If the rate is now 4,000 a month, by June 30, 1942, it would yield 132,000 rifles. Skipping the "200 a day" contradiction and allowing for a speed-up to get 149,628 in this period, that speed-up would be only thirteen per cent on the average—and then yield only 149,628 rifles for a force of 462,000 men by June 30, 1942.

Question: "Why $16,000,000 for new motor vehicles?"

Answer: "When we brought these five divisions into the field (only 42,500 men) * * * they had never been equipped sufficiently to reach their peace allowance of motor transportation. Divisions could not function as divisions, nor corps as corps * * *."

This is the new streamlined organization which is going to expose fewer men but have more fire-power "with modern weapons."

Confirmation Seen

I do not take these fragments from the record to criticize the general staff. I know what they are up against—with a political civilian overhead. But if this column ever needed any confirmation of its repeated assertions that the country is being kidded and that we have no modern or even usable army either in existence or in reasonable prospect—here it is.

It simply hasn't got the stuff. It isn't prepared to get the stuff. Right now, in an election year, there is such apathy or opposition to appropriations to modernize it that it probably will be set back another full year in the great "economy" drive. Billions for boondoggling but not enough for modern defense to equip one decent army corps.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Factographs

There were only ten cadets present when the United States Military Academy at West Point was opened, July 4, 1802.

There were 39,245,069 telephones in use in the world in 1939.

Cock fighting was introduced into England by the Romans.

The term cottage was originally applied to a small house without land in England.

On the Record

By United States Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado

If * * * the president has no intentions of accepting the nomination, his continued silence is terrible and he must accept the full responsibility for demoralizing and disrupting the Democratic party. If this silence continues, the Democratic nomination will be worthless to any other than himself, including his favorite.

Cops on Verge of Battle in Church

Los Angeles, March 7. (AP)—The police department would prefer it if this didn't get noised about too much:

Two eagle-eyed radio officers, passing a church, noticed a door ajar. They crept inside. Assistant Pastor John McConnell, from his study, peered out to see two figures with flashlights, tip-toeing.

He called police. Two patrolmen responded. The conversation went something like this:

"You're covered. Put 'em up," from one side of the church.

"Oh no you don't! We've got you covered, so drop your guns," from the other.

"Sez who?"

"In the name of the law, come out or we'll fire."

"The law? Say, what is this, anyway."

By that time a watchman had the lights on.

Roosevelt's Talk To Farmers Will Be on Networks

Three Chains Will Carry Address on Farm Relief Program

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, March 7—Broadcast of President Roosevelt's address to the nation's farmers is on the schedule of three chains for Friday night at 10. The talk is in connection with the president's farm relief program and its seventh anniversary. Also to be heard are Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Postmaster General James A. Farley. Networks broadcasting will be WEAF-NBC, WABC-CBS and MBS.

Prize Fight Listed

The WJZ-NBC schedule for 10 lists a prize fight with the hope that it won't encounter last week's disappointments when two battles were taken off the schedule because of postponements. This one is to be the lightweight go in New York between Lew Jenkins and Tippy Larkin.

Otherwise on the air will be found among the other items these features: WJZ-NBC 2, Music Appreciation hour and Dr. Walter Damrosch with some guest singers; WABC-CBS 8, Kate Smith Hour, dramatic visitors to include Sylvia Sidney.

Talk by Senator Clark

At 11:15 Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, discussing "Shall Student America Concern Itself with Politics," from the Westminster college institute of public affairs at Fulton, Mo. This will be carried by MBS.

Expected about Europe: NBC-chains 8 a. m.; CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 11 p. m.; MBS-network 7-15, 9.

Cops on Verge of Battle in Church

Los Angeles, March 7. (AP)—The police department would prefer it if this didn't get noised about too much:

Two eagle-eyed radio officers, passing a church, noticed a door ajar. They crept inside. Assistant Pastor John McConnell, from his study, peered out to see two figures with flashlights, tip-toeing.

He called police. Two patrolmen responded. The conversation went something like this:

"You're covered. Put 'em up," from one side of the church.

"Oh no you don't! We've got you covered, so drop your guns," from the other.

"Sez who?"

"In the name of the law, come out or we'll fire."

"The law? Say, what is this, anyway."

By that time a watchman had the lights on.

Roosevelt's Talk To Farmers Will Be on Networks

Three Chains Will Carry Address on Farm Relief Program

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

New York, March 7—Broadcast of President Roosevelt's address to the nation's farmers is on the schedule of three chains for Friday night at 10. The talk is in connection with the president's farm relief program and its seventh anniversary. Also to be heard are Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Postmaster General James A. Farley. Networks broadcasting will be WEAF-NBC, WABC-CBS and MBS.

Prize Fight Listed

The WJZ-NBC schedule for 10 lists a prize fight with the hope that it won't encounter last week's disappointments when two battles were taken off the schedule because of postponements. This one is to be the lightweight go in New York between Lew Jenkins and Tippy Larkin.

Otherwise on the air will be found among the other items these features: WJZ-NBC 2, Music Appreciation hour and Dr. Walter Damrosch with some guest singers; WABC-CBS 8, Kate Smith Hour, dramatic visitors to include Sylvia Sidney.

Talk by Senator Clark

At 11:15 Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, discussing "Shall Student America Concern Itself with Politics," from the Westminster college institute of public affairs at Fulton, Mo. This will be carried by MBS.

Expected about Europe: NBC-chains 8 a. m.; CBS 8 a. m., 6:30, 8:55, 11 p. m.; MBS-network 7-15, 9.

ild Will Become Lonely If Forced to Play Alone

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

ecently I was discussing Our dren and their Playmates with class of parents at the Western serve University. I told them of scores of letters I receive from ly youths, most of whom write of the lonely childhood forced them by parents who did not them play with other children the immediate neighborhood. I explained the hazards to the g child of being told that cer- other children are not good gh to play with him—how this d is poisoned by such a sugges- and how these other children their parents may become anent enemies of the family, all sorts of dire consequences ere are a few of the questions the class and my answers:

Suppose the old children steal estroy property, or play in dan- us places, what then?

Then you would forbid your d to be with them when they do. make sure, you would limit your g child's play with them to s when they were in full view all or under supervision. They not be in secret places, lest engage in sex experimenting other ill behavior.

Won't your child hear bad gs?

Yes; but this need not con- you much since you have his plete confidence and have an- ed all his questions.

Go Into House

Would you let your young d go into the house with his mates?

Not until I was sure the chil- there were properly super- d.

Would you welcome the chil- of the neighborhood into your e?

Certainly; but while they there, I should spend neces- time supervising them, provid- them and my child with ample things and means of creative constructive fun, having train- my own child not to romp and about the house. As soon as the hbor child violated the rules of home, which had been made to him, I would, after due ing, send him home. But I d try to make his visit there so want to him that he would se to return and try to con-

How about the pest or bully the neighborhood?

I might some special trips to his home this purpose. I should induce to do favors for me, even hir- him occasionally to run errands me. I should also try to induce parents to treat him in like on. I know this works.

Bodily Harm

Suppose the neighbor child, from two to five, will bite h or kick your little child, hit with anything in the hand, or w things at him?

Then you should keep your away from this other child for y, except while you can be on to intercept the assailant. At- th eother child to your prem- when you can supervise by per- e means. But while you will him home when he fails to rm, you won't punish him in other way unless you are sure parents wish you to do so. In extreme instances, to move be the only practical way out.

Suppose a mother visits you her tot and lets him deliber- mar your walls, books and ure.

Do the best you can. Her is increasing. I wish there were y to send such a mother to or at least a week. Her biggest e is not against you but against ery own little child.

when Ray T. Miller of Cleveland said he would not enter a slate pledged to James A. Farley.

The Cuyahoga county leader, home after a conference with the postmaster general in Washington, said such a delegation was not even discussed.

Capital politicians had heard that Miller would head a Farley-for-President movement in opposition to the state Democratic organization's plans to elect a delegation pledged to President Roosevelt for a third term if he wants it.

Also involved were reports that Miller's price for keeping out of the contest was the privilege of picking the oragnization delegates in the Twenty-first, Twenty-second and Twenty-third congressional districts.

DEAR DIARY—IT WAS SPRING WHEN WE MET ...

and every day seemed lovelier than the one before. We drove through the Park, walked and danced and talked ... together. How fortunate it was that I had such lovely clothes, and so many new Queen Quality Shoes. He admired my "pretty feet," but I'm sure it was the shoes that won him. I wore BARSTOW with my tweed suit that weekend in the country at his Mother's, and JONQUIL for the luncheon his sister gave. And when we went apartment-hunting, he loved the way I looked, he said ... I wore FAYE with my new coat. I bought a pair called CHARMER for my trousseau, they're elasticized and fit divinely. And when we flew West I wore my new patent and gabardines (MOSELLE). Oh diary dear ... it isn't a secret! Any girl would want to wear Queen Quality Shoes this Spring!

THE DAILY STORY

Nothing That Has Ever Been Bought or Sold Equaled the Treasure Old Matt Found One Day on the Beach

By MARTIN ROWAN

One day Rodger the postman came to Ballycladdy and stopped at Nora Doocey's door. He had a letter for Nora and the postmark said San Francisco. Rodger read the letter for her, for Nora could not read. It was from her son Frank, and there was a check for 20 pounds in it.

All that day the neighbors flocked to congratulate Nora. Every time a new group came, someone had to read the letter aloud, for Nora was very proud of it.

"I Got It, Paudheen!"

I accompanied Big Mick O'Donnell and the Druid to Nora Doocey's that night. At least a dozen neighbors were there before us. Nora handed the letter to the Druid.

The letter said that Frank had been sick for a long time and that there was a long time more when he had no work and no money and that he was ashamed to send an empty letter home but that now everything was all right and he had a successful grocery store.

When the Druid stopped reading, Michael Doogan spoke.

"Ye didn't finish it all, Thady. There's something else wrote on the back of it."

The Druid turned the letter over and read: "P. S. I would like very much to know if the secret of the precious stone was ever found out."

The Druid looked at Big Mick and both of them laughed.

"It's surprising," said Big Mick, "how many incidents of their youth people recall when they are far from home. Frank Doocey went to America 30 years ago and it was the week before he left that it happened."

The schoolmaster, newly arrived in Ballycladdy, asked: "Was there a precious stone in Ballycladdy?"

"There was," I said, "and a mystery attached to it."

"Right here in Ballcladdy," said the Druid.

"Arrah, tell the schoolmaster all about it, Thady," said Mickey Nellie.

Paudheen Roo O'Flaherty, who is dead this many a year (said the Druid) lived here in Ballycladdy. He and his grandfather, Old Matt, lived beyond at the foot of the hill. Old Matt was a great fisherman in his youth, and when he became old and too feeble for the sea, he spent most of his days walking along the shore picking up odds and ends of sea wrecks. Paudheen Roo often complained that old Matt cluttered up the house and the garden with paraphernalia that was of no value. But Matt paid no attention to him.

One day Old Matt returned earlier than usual. He walked excitedly into the kitchen where Paudheen Roo was sitting beside the fire, smoking his pipe. "I got it, Paudheen, I got it!" cried Old Matt.

"What is it this time?" said Paudheen Roo without looking up.

"The luck of the O'Flahertys," said old Matt, "that was lost in Galway town 300 years ago. There is a tradition that whoever possesses it will have good luck and will live to a great old age without ache or pain"—and Old Matt took out a white glistening stone from the depths of his ragged old pocket.

"It's only a stone," said Paudheen Roo. "The beach is covered with white glistening stones."

"Yes," said Matt, "but those are round stones."

"All right, all right," said Paudheen Roo, "and yours is conical, but 'tis not an ounce of tobacco you'd get for it."

"'Tis not for sale," said Old Matt proudly. "'Tis the luck of the Flahertys come home to stay."

Old Matt left the stone on the window sill. The neighbors all came in within the next few days to see it, but it was the usual nine-day wonder, and after a short time no further attention was paid to it. Some years afterward Old Matt died, admonishing Paudheen Roo to take good care of the stone.

In the course of time Paudheen himself became feeble with age—and even the stone could not help him.

One day a great surgeon named O'Leary came over from London to the grouse shooting in Ballycladdy, and as he was passing Paudheen Roo's house he saw the stone in the window sill, and he stopped in his tracks.

As soon as he recovered from his amazement he went inside.

"How much do you want for that stone in the window, my good man?" said the doctor.

"I'll give it to you for an ounce of tobacco," said Paudheen. "I haven't had a smoke since yesterday morning, and my hen has stopped laying—so I have not the price of tobacco."

"I'll give you £200 for it," said the doctor, and he took his purse from his pocket and counted the money out on the table.

Paudheen Roo's eyes opened wide. "It's yours," he said, and fainted.

When the Druid finished his story, the schoolmaster laughed loud and long. "I see it now. The usual mother-eaten plot. Peasant finds stone. Does not know it is valuable. Leaves it on window sill. City Sucker enters. Purchases stone of immense value for paltry sum."

"Not so fast, my friend," said the Druid. "We of Ballycladdy are not plagiarists of either plot or anecdote. As a matter of fact, the stone had no intrinsic value."

"Then why in heaven's name," said the schoolmaster, "should a brilliant surgeon pay £200 for a mere piece of rock?"

"The doctor told the landlord the reason several months later," said the Druid. "The doctor's grandmother had suffered from rheumatism for many a year, and medical science had not found a remedy. She was a wealthy resident of London who had offered a reward of £200 for the recovery of the stone. She was an O'Flaherty, too."

Happy Service Club of First Methodist Church Has Banquet at Hotel

The Fort Cumberland hotel was a scene last night of a beautifully arranged banquet given by the Happy Service Club of the First Methodist church, Bedford street.

St. Patrick's decorations served the motif for the evening with the table setting displaying Shamrocks and other decorations green with a dash of white. Green nut cups of Shamrock shape filled with green mints were in front of each plate and white candles adorned the table. The programs were of Shamrock shape and were tied with green satin ribbon.

The president, Mrs. Leah Hinkle was presented with a corsage of rose buds and each guest was presented with boutonieres of sweet peas tied with green ribbons.

Miss Cora V. Saville was toastmistress and the invocation was asked by Mrs. George E. Baughman, wife of the pastor of the church. Remarks were made by the president, Mrs. Hinkle. Mrs. A. R. Partleton sang a solo, "God Bless America," being accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Robert Shrout. Mrs. Shrout offered a story game, "The Astonishing Hour," and Mrs. Pearl Schaidt gave an interesting monologue entitled "Explaining a Gift."

Another attractive feature of the evening was a duet, "Alonette" sung by Mrs. George Sullivan and Mrs. William Sisler, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Pearl Schaidt. Mrs. Philip R. Lucas gave a reading and a play entitled "Columbine" was presented by Miss Cora V. Saville and Miss Ora Nave. The banquet was adjourned with group singing.

The guests included:

Mrs. Leah Hinkle, president; Mrs. B. A. Wolford, vice president; Mrs. George Sullivan, secretary; Mrs. Lou Hoffman, treasurer; Mrs. George E. Baughman, Mrs. Willia Sisler, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. Pearl Schaidt, Mrs. George Coleman, Mrs. Frederick Growden, Mrs. Stanley Bane, Mrs. John Beegle.

Mrs. Philip R. Lucas, Mrs. Nora Young, Mrs. Robert Stotler, Mrs. Virginia Zembower, Mrs. Valeria McElfish, Mrs. Bretton Shaffer, Mrs. Clinton Hardman, Mrs. Carl Koerner, Mrs. Lou Peterman, Mrs. A. R. Partleton, Mrs. Earl Connor, Miss Cora V. Seville, Miss Mary Barnard, Miss Ora Nave and Miss Helen Nader.

For Mrs. Freed

Mrs. Frederick F. Sutherland heads the committee in charge of arrangements for a welcoming reception to be given in honor of Mrs. Mary Freed, new superintendent of nurses of Memorial hospital, Tuesday evening at the nurses' home.

This is one of a series of parties to be given annually by the auxiliary of Memorial hospital.

Assisting Mrs. Sutherland will be the following women: Mrs. Howard L. Tolson, Mrs. Henry W. Schaidt, Mrs. Richard T. Lowndes, Mrs. R. Arden Lowndes, Mrs. G. William Bibby, Mrs. Carl P. Heintz, Mrs. Frederick T. Small, Mrs. Walter C. Capper, Miss Elizabeth R. Dickey and Miss Marie Holzshu.

President Resigns

At the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Keating Memorial Day Nursery yesterday afternoon at the nursery, a letter was read from the president, Mrs. Fred T. McIntyre, in which she resigned from the presidency because she has moved to Baltimore, whither her husband has been transferred.

The resignation was accepted with regret. For the present, Mrs. John L. Reed, the first vice president, will have charge of the auxiliary.

A committee was appointed to arrange for an Easter party and arrangements were made for painting and renovating the kindergarten, the living room and the halls of the nursery.

Club Is Organized

Organization is announced of the Crystal Roll-o-Way Club with a membership of sixty and the following officers:

Thomas Williams, president; Eleanor Taylor, vice president; Ursula Hartman, secretary, and Ralph Frantz, treasurer.

A skating party will be held in the near future at Crystal park by the new club.

Anniversary Event

Celebrating its fourteenth anniversary with a covered dish luncheon, The Valley Road Homemakers' Club met Wednesday at Emmanuel Episcopal parish house, Washington street.

Tables were decorated in St. Patrick's Day colors, and there was a large cake bearing fourteen candles. Mrs. Pearl Farster, nutritions chairman, was in charge. Mrs. George Kraft presided and reports were given by Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman and Mrs. Charles Buckle.

An announcement was made by Mrs. Joseph Squiliace of the annual flower meeting to be held April 10 at her home, Frederick street. Miss Maud A. Bean gave a demonstration on "How to Analyze Yourself for Individuality in Dress."

Officers Are Chosen

Officers for the ensuing year were elected for the Busy Bees' Club of Mount Pleasant Sunday school at a meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Arch Wentling, Hill Crest.

The officers include Marian Hardman, president; Gene Smith, vice-president; Helen Messick, treasurer; Geraldine Wentling, secretary; Osborne Ayers, devotional chairman; David Smith, recreational chairman and Alan Smith, publicity chairman.

Others present were Mrs. Mable Hardman, Betty Messick, Thelma Messick, Mrs. Irene Ayers, Mable Harper, Mrs. Arch Wentling and Mrs. Chester Smith.

Games were played and refreshments were served.

Old-Age Pensions Are Lauded by State Welfare Worker at Club Luncheon

The old age pension plan as a means of ending the old-time alms houses was advocated as a modern social need by Miss Anita Faatz, of Baltimore, representative of the state Welfare board, in an address at a luncheon meeting of the Allegany County Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday at the Central Y. M. C. A.

After noting the number of welfare workers present, Miss Faata said that she would attempt to present a composite picture of work of the entire state. In stressing the argument for old age pensions she said that in 1930 there were 575 occupants in almshouses in the state and that in 1940 there were 550.

Miss Faata said that the first almshouse was established in 1700 and at first would care for many needs such as the insane, vagrants, dependent children, deaf, blind, aged and ill. Gradually specialized agencies were created to care for the various types, leaving the almshouses to care almost entirely for the chronically ill aged person.

By a survey just completed by the state Welfare board, it was shown that inmates are mostly over 65 and that present problem is one of chronic hospital care. Miss Faatz stated that the state has fifteen almshouses, housing from ten to twenty-five persons each, many in very old buildings ranging in management from poor to reasonably good. The board will present its findings to legislative council in the near future.

Following her address, Miss Faata was asked, "What recommendation would you make?" and she replied, that "there should be centralized homes, possibly two, in which proper equipment and staff would be furnished, something between a home and a hospital." That, she said, seemed to be the best solution.

A business meeting followed the address at which time Mrs. Edward J. Ryan reported on the scholarship work, in which three students are at present being aided. Pioneer women chosen by the club were reported by Mrs. Paul McCoy as follows: Outstanding service, Miss Anne Sloan; continuous service, Mrs. J. W. Avirett Thomas, and pioneer member not living, Mrs. W. Q. Skelling.

An invitation from the Frostburg club to be hostess to the Federation for the annual meeting in May was received and accepted.

Several organizations were represented at yesterday's meeting, including the local Welfare board, Homemakers, the county nurses, the city nurses, the Red Cross, the Associated Charities, the Juvenile court and the Woman's Civic Clubs of this city, Frostburg and Westernport.

Mrs. Burton Housley, president of the County Federation of Women's Clubs, presided at the luncheon. Miss Faatz was introduced to the club by Mrs. A. M. Lichtenstein, public welfare chairman.

"Call the Fire Department!" is, figuratively speaking, the way many folks treat constipation: they rush to the medicine cabinet for emergency relief. It never occurs to them to look for the cause of the trouble or to avoid it with a common-sense "ounce of prevention."

Smart people are those who believe that the proper thing to do about constipation is simply not to get it. If it's the common kind that's due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet, a crisp, flavorful, ready-to-eat cereal—KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—will help you "Join the Regulars." Eat it every day and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Old-Age Pensions Are Lauded by State Welfare Worker at Club Luncheon

The old age pension plan as a means of ending the old-time almshouses was advocated as a modern social need by Miss Anita Faatz, of Baltimore, representative of the State Welfare board, in an address at a luncheon meeting of the Allegany County Federation of Women's Clubs yesterday at the Central Y. M. C. A.

After noting the number of welfare workers present, Miss Faata said that she would attempt to present a composite picture of work of the entire state. In stressing the argument for old age pensions she said that in 1930 there were 575 occupants in almshouses in the state and that in 1940 there were 550.

Miss Faata said that the first almshouse was established in 1700 and at first would care for many needs such as the insane, vagrants, dependent children, deaf, blind, aged and ill. Gradually specialized agencies were created to care for the various types, leaving the almshouses to care almost entirely for the chronically ill aged person.

By a survey just completed by the state Welfare board, it was shown that inmates are mostly over 65 and that present problem is one of chronic hospital care. Miss Faatz stated that the state has fifteen almshouses, housing from ten to twenty-five persons each, many in very old buildings ranging in management from poor to reasonably good. The board will present its findings to legislative council in the near future.

Following her address, Miss Faata was asked, "What recommendation would you make?" and she replied, that "there should be centralized homes, possibly two, in which proper equipment and staff would be furnished, something between a home and a hospital." That, she said, seemed to be the best solution.

A business meeting followed the address at which time Mrs. Edward J. Ryan reported on the scholarship work, in which three students are at present being aided. Pioneer women chosen by the club were reported by Mrs. Paul McCoy as follows: Outstanding service, Miss Anne Sloan; continuons service, Mrs. J. W. Avirett Thomas, and pioneer member not living, Mrs. W. Q. Skelling.

An invitation from the Frostburg club to be hostess to the Federation for the annual meeting in May was received and accepted.

Several organizations were represented at yesterday's meeting, including the local Welfare board, Homemakers, the county nurses, the city nurses, the Red Cross, the Associated Charities, the Juvenile court and the Woman's Civic Clubs of this city, Frostburg and Westernport.

Mrs. Burton Housley, president of the County Federation of Women's Clubs, presided at the luncheon. Miss Faatz was introduced to the club by Mrs. A. M. Lichtenstein, public welfare chairman.

"Call the Fire Department!" is, figuratively speaking, the way many folks treat constipation: they rush to the medicine cabinet for emergency relief. It never occurs to them to look for the cause of the trouble or to avoid it with a common-sense "ounce of prevention."

Smart people are those who believe that the proper thing to do about constipation is simply not to get it. If it's the common kind that's due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet, a crisp, flavorful, ready-to-eat cereal—KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—will help you "Join the Regulars." Eat it every day and drink plenty of water. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Sunset in Zion National Park To Be Setting of Easter Pageant

The Christus meets the "woman of sin" and rescues her from the mob which is about to stone her.

AP Feature Service

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah—Unlike most Easter ceremonials, which are held at dawn, the Zion National Park Easter pageant, now in rehearsal, will be held at dusk in the shadow of the "Altar of Sacrifice," a pinnacle in a natural amphitheater among the canyons of the Wasatch mountains. The principal roles are played year after year by the same Utah natives. They use quotations from the New Testament in their dramatization of the life of Jesus Christ. With a cast of more than 300 persons, an 80-piece symphony orchestra, and a 300-voice chorus, the spectacle reaches its climax as dusk changes to dark and the resurrected Christ appears on a cliff high above the spectators.

The book of the pageant was written by Grant H. Redford, instructor in speech at Branch Utah State Agricultural college, who portrays the Christus.

The Christus, taken by the Romans, starts his journey to the court of Herod and Pontius Pilate.

Magnetic Phone System Developed For Mine Disasters

New York, March 7 (AP)—A new two-way magnetic phone system for use in mine disasters has been announced by the American Television Corporation.

It converts the human voice into electric impulses and transmits them in the form of magnetic waves and thus enables emergency communication between the depths of a mine and the surface during rescue operations.

It was developed by research engineers of communicating systems incorporated, an A. T. C. subsidiary.

Samuel M. Saltzman, C. S. I. president, said the magnetic system succeeded where radio and the telephone were ineffective because its low frequency signal would reach a completely isolated mine section without the aid of wires.

Saltzman said the magnetic waves traveled effectively any distance up to five miles.

Westminster Business Leader Dies Suddenly

Westminster, Md., March 7 (AP)—Frank T. Shaeffer, about 70, prominent Westminster businessman and former president of the State Firemen's Association, died suddenly at his home last night.

Shaeffer became ill early this evening, just as he prepared to leave for a regular meeting of the Westminster fire department. He notified members he would be unable to attend, and before the meeting had ended, word was received of his death.

A life-long resident of this community, he had been engaged in the plumbing and hardware business and served at one time on the city council.

He joined the Westminster department in 1883, was named chief in 1920 and was elected president in 1928, serving until 1936. He was president of the state association through 1935-36.

In addition, he served as president of the Carroll County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Survivors include his widow, three daughters and one son.

Eight-Legged Pup Dies in Huntington

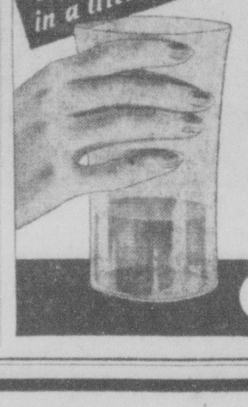

Huntington, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—An eight-legged pup has taken its place among the specimens at the Marshall college zoological laboratory.

The pup, which died soon after birth, was one of a litter of normal dogs.

The cord which keeps the two halves of castanets together must be strung as carefully as the strings of a violin, and they have pitches just as the violin's strings have.

Sunset in Zion National Park To Be Setting of Easter Pageant

The Christus meets the "woman of sin" and rescues her from the mob which is about to stone her.

AP Feature Service

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah—Unlike most Easter ceremonials, which are held at dawn, the Zion National Park Easter pageant, now in rehearsal, will be held at dusk in the shadow of the "Altar of Sacrifice," a pinnacle in a natural amphitheater among the canyons of the Wasatch mountains. The principal roles are played year after year by the same Utah natives. They use quotations from the New Testament in their dramatization of the life of Jesus Christ. With a cast of more than 300 persons, an 80-piece symphony orchestra, and a 300-voice chorus, the spectacle reaches its climax as dusk changes to dark and the resurrected Christ appears on a cliff high above the spectators.

The book of the pageant was written by Grant H. Redford, instructor in speech at Branch Utah State Agricultural college, who portrays the Christus.

The Christus, taken by the Romans, starts his journey to the court of Herod and Pontius Pilate.

Magnetic Phone System Developed For Mine Disasters

New York, March 7 (AP)—A new two-way magnetic phone system for use in mine disasters has been announced by the American Television Corporation.

It converts the human voice into electric impulses and transmits them in the form of magnetic waves and thus enables emergency communication between the depths of a mine and the surface during rescue operations.

It was developed by research engineers of communicating systems incorporated, an A. T. C. subsidiary.

Samuel M. Saltzman, C. S. I. president, said the magnetic system succeeded where radio and the telephone were ineffective because its low frequency signal would reach a completely isolated mine section without the aid of wires.

Saltzman said the magnetic waves traveled effectively any distance up to five miles.

Westminster Business Leader Dies Suddenly

Westminster, Md., March 7 (AP)—Frank T. Shaeffer, about 70, prominent Westminster businessman and former president of the State Firemen's Association, died suddenly at his home last night.

Shaeffer became ill early this evening, just as he prepared to leave for a regular meeting of the Westminster fire department. He notified members he would be unable to attend, and before the meeting had ended, word was received of his death.

A life-long resident of this community, he had been engaged in the plumbing and hardware business and served at one time on the city council.

He joined the Westminster department in 1883, was named chief in 1920 and was elected president in 1928, serving until 1936. He was president of the state association through 1935-36.

In addition, he served as president of the Carroll County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Survivors include his widow, three daughters and one son.

Eight-Legged Pup Dies in Huntington

Huntington, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—An eight-legged pup has taken its place among the specimens at the Marshall college zoological laboratory.

The pup, which died soon after birth, was one of a litter of normal dogs.

The cord which keeps the two halves of castanets together must be strung as carefully as the strings of a violin, and they have pitches just as the violin's strings have.

Young Man Gets Short Term in Auto Death of Two Girls

Greensburg, Pa., March 7 (AP)—Throwing himself upon the court's mercy, James B. George, 27, of Canton, O., pleaded guilty here today to charges of driving the automobile which killed two small girls last May 3, failure to stop and give assistance after the accident and driving while drunk.

After listening to testimony of state witnesses, Judge Hilary Keenan imposed a $100 fine, a six to twelve-month jail sentence and placed George on probation for six years.

Ruth Decker, 13, and her sister Mary, 9, daughters of a WPA worker, their hands filled with violets picked enroute home from a store, were hit while walking facing traffic. One was dragged fifty feet, the other seventy, Coroner H. A. McMurray reported.

George was arrested five hours later at New Castle, almost 100 miles away.

Carelessness Is Blame for Most Mine Accidents

Charleston, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Cut off two-thirds of the state's mining fatalities, the department of mines says and "we would feel like reasonable precautions have been taken by everyone."

Two-thirds of the 266 mine deaths in 1939 were attributed to carelessness on the part of the workmen or the management.

The other third, Department Chief N. P. Rhinehart said, were listed as "normal" accidents.

Rhinehart doesn't expect the annual toll from mine mishaps to reach the "normal" accident stage in years—if ever, but his department is campaigning to materially reduce the number of fatalities.

"The chances of an accident in any form would be very slim," he asserted, "if they observed all the safety rules.

"I don't mean that the regulations are wilfully ignored. Lots of things happen in a mine. Many cases result from failure to observe department of mines rules, but not intentionally."

"Oldest Old Maid" Claims New Title

Lovely, Ky., March 7 (AP)—It's leap year and "Aunt Biddy" Webb is the claimant of a new title.

Happy, serene and 93, she claims she is the "oldest old maid" of eastern Kentucky.

"Marriage certainly isn't necessary for happiness," she says; and she knows because she's lived alone almost seventy-five years and liked it.

Miss Webb resides with a niece, Mrs. Tola Parsley, now, and spends a greater part of her time keeping track of the geneological record of the Webb family.

"Death and births are entered carefully in the big family Bible which she says has been in the family for 125 years.

"Each event written here brings to mind a lot of memories," she murmured as she thumbed the pages.

The first entry:

"Thomas Webb, born October 4, ——"

Thomas Webb was Aunt Biddy's father.

New Soybean Grows In European Climate

Berlin (AP)—After long and difficult tests, German scientists are reported as having succeeded in growing soybean seeds which will grow in the climate of Central Europe.

From 185 various kinds of soybeans more than 380,000 cross-breedings were raised from which eventually one developed which was found suitable for German climate and soil.

It was further stated that the growing of soybeans cultivates the soil. Tests have proven that wheat, planted on the same field of which soybeans grew previously, yielded a harvest exceeding the average by one-and-a-half.

"EXTRA" HELPS quickly relieve DISTRESS of CHILDREN'S COUGHS DUE TO COLDS

Don't "take chances" with unknown products to relieve discomfort of your child's spasmodic croupy coughs caused by colds. Use "Children's" Musterole! Musterole gives such QUICK relief because it's not "just an ordinary salve." Rub it well on your kiddie's chest, throat and back. It soothes and stimulates surface circulation and helps break up local congestion and pain. Its soothing vapors relieve breathing. 40¢. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau.

$40,000,000 Cash And Bonds Stored In State Vaults

Barricade of Steel, Alarms and Electric Devices To Foil Bandits

Charleston, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Stored in statehouse vaults today is maybe $40,000,000 in cash and bonds—there for the taking, but the man who does will earn the money.

Few banks, certainly only the large ones, have a barricade of steel, alarms, electricity and foil-the-bandit devices comparable to the one the state treasury has set up around its valuables.

Certainly no banks has a detachment of state troopers posted in emergency drills and ready to surround the place within forty seconds.

Hundreds of persons pass through the halls of the state capital and by a small unpretentious doorway and never know that almost within arm's reach is wealth enough to draw a sultan's envy.

Valuable Securities

Bonds—U. S. Government, West Virginia's gilt-edge securities and the bonds of municipalities. Securities—worth more than their weight in gold. Cash—thousands of dollars in stacks.

Getting to it—if there breathes a crook so rash—would be a job for a regiment.

Starting from the inside out, the securities are locked in heavy steel boxes — safes in themselves, with two sets of combinations. The boxes are in a vault, of steel and concrete, with a single door—fifteen inches of solid steel and weighing fifteen and one-half tons.

The vault is entered from a room wired with alarm devices and fronted with a "bandit-proof" barricade of "bullet-proof" glass and steel.

Men calmly working inside can easily see out, and they have "one-way" loopholes to shoot through.

Actually the bullet-proof barricade is only intended to delay any would-be bandits. The place inside is sprinkled with push buttons and every one rings in state police headquarters around the corridor corner.

Troopers Are Ready

The troopers have a plan of action worked out which would see the entire statehouse wing surrounded by police in exactly four-sixths of a minute.

Two men—Treasurer R. E. Talbott and Chief clerk Fred Diddle—have the combination to the vault door. But neither of them, alone, could get into the boxes.

Both have half of the combination.

Bond custodians who know the box combinations, have to wait on Talbott or Diddle to get into the vault.

Topping everything off, all employes of the department are bonded with the amounts ranging up to $500,000 for Treasurer Talbott.

No Ball Club Complete Without One DiMaggio

By JOHN LARDNER

Tampa, Fla., March 7—No baseball club is complete without a Di Maggio these days. There is a Di Maggio with the Yankees, a Di Maggio with the Cincinnati Reds, and a Di Maggio (guaranteed genuine) with the Boston Red Sox.

Progressive magnates like Leland Stanford MacPhail, of Brooklyn, are combing the country for more Di-Maggios. Mr. MacPhail is even now believed to be attempting to sign up one To mDiMaggio, hitherto strictly a business man.

"He don't have to play ball for me," says the Brooklyn brain. "He can handle the hot dog franchise, just so I have a DiMaggio. I hate to be out of date."

Here in Tampa, Deacon Will McKechnie of the Cincinnati club is studying Vincent DiMaggio, one of the two ophthalmological or glasses-bearing DiMaggios. The other bespectacled DiMaggio is Dominick, now in the showcase of Uncle Tom Yawkey, the wealthy Boston collector. Like their obscure brother Joe, both are outfielders and both are fugitives from a fishing smack. It was a black day for San Francisco's crab-fishing fleet when the DiMaggios discovered baseball. Half of the fleet automatically disappeared.

Is Dom a Big Leaguer?

It's too soon to tell for sure whether Dominick is a big league ball player. It's even too soon to say for sure about Vince, though Vince has been in the business longer than any other DiMaggio.

Vince is no stranger to his new manager, Will McKechnie. William had the young man in Boston, with the Bees, where he employed him regularly in center field. Vince could pull down any fly ball within the limits of the law, and there were times when his work bordered on larceny. For my money, he could also throw a ball harder and straighter than his brother Joe.

He had pretty good power at the plate, too. Smaller than Joseph, he could still bust the stuffing out of the ball, when he could find it. He found it often enough to suit McKechnie. But for Casey Stengel, who succeeded the Deacon in Boston, it was too long to wait between hits.

"DiMaggio certainly powdered that one," said a critic one day. "I think it travelled even further than the last one he hit."

"Yeah?" said Mr. Stengel. "You have a wonderful memory."

Vincent broke the league record for strikeouts that year and woke up next spring in Kansas City. Kansas City is not a bad place to be. Advancement is restricted, but the Yankees will always sell you to the National League if they can't use you themselves and the other guy can get up $40,000.

Hit 46 Home Runs

The man who got up the forty grand in Vincent's case was Powel Crosley, of Cincinnati, on the advice of none other than Vince's first big league boss, Will McKechnie. For Kansas City he had hit forty-six home runs. The old power seemed to be there, and McKechnie heard that Vince's new glasses brought his hits closer together. No longer were they spaced by intervals of fifteen strikeouts each.

Vincent is still not as well "set," officially, as Joe or young Dominick, a youth who hits 'em sharp and often, if not so far, and shares the family talent for flagging a fly ball. Dominick is the regular Red Sox left fielder until we hear otherwise. The Sox showed their faith in him by discarding the veteran Joe Vosmik to make room for Dom in the pasture.

"I need a left fielder, and young DiMaggio is with us, so figure it out for yourself," says Manager Joe Cronin.

McKechnie, speaking of Vince, is more cautious. McKechnie is always more cautious.

"I've got room for a new left fielder myself, if Vince can make the grade, says the Deacon. "But he's got competition. Young Myron McCormick looks good out there, and then there's always Walter Berger. We'll see what we'll see."

That's not exactly the point. We'll see what Vincent will see. If he can see the ball well enough through his new tailor-made cheaters to get his shoulders behind it, the job is his, because you won't find a better outfielder in the game. Mike Kreevich, of the Chicago White Sox, may be a little cannier than Vince, but no better.

When you get right down to it, how can the Cincinnati club dispense with its new-found DiMaggio? No team is complete without one.

Reds and Dodgers Hook Up Today in Grapefruit Loop

Pilot Straps Martin's Bat as Safety Measure

Tampa, Fla., March 7 (AP) — The National League champion Reds all but marked time today for their first exhibition game—with Brooklyn's Dodgers tomorrow.

Only a light workout featured the day, regulars and rookies being chased from the lot shortly after noon to make way for a game between teams of news men and photographers covering camps of the Reds and the Giants, at nearby Winter Haven.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The inventive genius of Manager Ray Blades of the St. Louis Cardinals may make baseball safer for both players and spectators when Pepper Martin is at bat.

For years the wild horse's habit of unexpectedly letting go of the bat in taking a healthy cut at the ball has thrown opposing players into a wild panic.

So Blades ordered a leather strap and had it taped at the handle end of the bat, forming a loop into which Pepper is supposed to put his left hand. Then if he loses his grip on the bat as he swings, the loop will hold it and nobody will be injured.

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today denied emphatically Dolph Camilli, holdout first baseman, has signed his contract or accepted terms.

"Camilli could have had $15,000 for this season, an increase of $1,000 over each of the last two years, had he signed and reported for training Feb. 25," said MacPhail. "Now the best he can get is the same amount he received last year. That is our final offer to him and he can take it or stay on his California sheep ranch."

Travis Stars at Old Stand

Orlando, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Back to his old position at third base for the first time since 1936, Cecil Travis is getting praise from the Washington Senators' coaches.

Travis, who has been playing shortstop, returned to third after Buddy Lewis was shifted to the outfield. Travis' practice play at the hot corner has been sensation.

Lakeland, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Dick Bartell whacked a homer over the left field wall with two mates on base in the fifth inning today to give Bing Miller's Cats a 3 to 2 verdict over Wish Egan's Rats in a Detroit Tiger intra-squad game.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7 (AP) — After better than a week of spring training, the Cleveland Indians will get down to business tomorrow with their first intramural game, a six-inning affair.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 7(AP) —Manager Frankie Frisch, who in his playing days was a humdinger at stealing base, trained his Pittsburgh Pirates today in the "lost art" of base running.

He also gave them pointers on bunting, saying the Bucs "are woefully weak in laying down bunts as well as lying down while attempting to advance. Some of them actually go into a base on their knees."

Industries Aided by Conservation Research

New uses for coal mine refuse and the utilization of waste quarry and mill slate in connection with the manufacture of silica brick are included among the studies under the national conservation program carried on by the Bureau of Mines at laboratories in College Park, Md., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Norris, Tenn., and Seattle, Wash.

Conducted by the Nonmetals Division of the Bureau, the research also indicates that American ball and china clays and kyanite may replace imported minerals used in the manufacture of ceramic wares.

Utilization of the low-grade oolitic iron-bearing sandstones of Alabama may be rendered possible by the investigations, while the scientific tests already have resulted in the development of a device for determining the properties of drilling muds used in petroleum production, and another for the detection of destructive embrittlements on steam boiler surfaces.

Famiglietti Engaged

Boston — Gary Famiglietti, fullback on the Chicago Bears National Football League team, announces his engagement to Miss Mercedes Tietz of Chicago. The football star, who has returned to his alma mater, Boston U., for post-graduate work, plans to marry after the close of the 1940 season.

Bi-State Circuit Admits Keyser as Three Post Bonds

Hyndman, Cumberland and Westvaco in Line Meeting Mar. 14

Circuit To Inquire as to Organized Ball Connection

Three teams of the Bi-State League posted their $50 forfeit fees for the 1940 season and Keyser Moose Lodge No. 662 was voted a franchise in the circuit, at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. here last night.

Eugene T. Gunning, president of the circuit, again refused to reconsider the resignation he tendered as pressure was brought to bear to have him retain the post. Gunning presided at last night's session.

Hyndman, Cumberland and Westvaco were the three members to post their forfeits, while Midland which was not represented asked that the date be held off for the deadline on putting up the forfeit fee. It was agreed that this be done, and another meeting of the league will be held next Thursday night, March 14, at the "Y" here.

Frostburg also failed to have a representative at the session but it is felt that the Mountain City club will retain its franchise.

James F. McGuire, former manager of the Cumberland Colts, addressed the group and suggested the possibility of the league having a tie-up with organized baseball. He indicated that the circuit could do this in such a way as to guarantee the club's protection for its players who would show sufficient ability to warrant their being wanted by teams of organized baseball.

Elmer M. Daily, president of the Mid-Atlantic League and the Penn State Baseball Association, will be contacted at McGuire's suggestion, to advise just what requirements are necessary to have the league registered with the National Association of Minor League Clubs.

Barnhart of Hubs Top Scorer In CVA League

Barnhart, forward on the Hagerstown High School basketball team, captured Cumberland Valley Athletic League scoring honors for the 1940 campaign with 61 points, according to records compiled by the sports department of The Evening Times.

Don Edmunds, Martinsburg Bulldog forward who led Coach John Cobourn's quintet to the championship, took runnerup laurels with 47 points while Junior Rice of the Fort Hill Sentinels was third with 40.

Paul Flick of Martinsburg nosed out Jack Carnell of Fort Hill for fourth place, gathering 38 points, one more than Carnell. Bachtell of Hagerstown was sixth with 32, Wayne Stewart of Martinsburg seventh with 27, Billy Dean of Fort Hill and Tom Ritter of Handley tied for eighth with 24 apiece and Stewart Laidlow of Martinsburg tenth with 21.

MEET AMERICA'S BEST HUNTER

If there are any quail within smelling distance of Lester's Enjoy Waboo at the National Field trials at Grand Junction, Tenn., they are in for trouble. This 4-year-old pointer was named America's best hunting dog of 1940 at the running trials known as the "World Series" of such events. The dog is shown with J. S. Gates, a trainer. Its owner is Dr. B. S. Lester of Birmingham, Ala.

GRANTLAND RICE

ON THE BENCH

Side by side on the sun-baked bench the rookie and veteran sat.
One heard the roar from a thousand crowds and the drum of a busy bat.
One heard the cheers from the far-off years, as he lifted a weary arm,
But the other looked to the years ahead, and never again the farm.

One was yearning to burn one through with the wing of a hurtling bird,
The other thought of his fading legs on the journey from first to third.
One looked beyond to the day of fame, to meeting the mob's appeal,
As the other thought of his first spring trip with an arm that was made of steel.

They talked of this, and they talked of that—but neither could understand
The great divide of the drifting years they knew on the southern sand.
But each in his way knew the road that leads to the ultimate goal of truth—
The rookie dreamed of an older head—the veteran dreamed of youth.

All-Star At Tampa

Miami Beach, March 7 (N.A.N.A.) —The National League will have to call upon some fancy pitching to handle its cause against the American outfit at Tampa shortly.

The older circuit has little chance to match Bill Dickey back of the bat, Foxx at first, Gordon or Gehringer at second, Cronin at short, and Red Rolfe at third, and DiMaggio, Williams and possibly Greenberg in the outfield.

This makes up a fair country delegation, as such things come and go. With Ruffing, Bridges, Grove, Feller, and one or two other pitchers on hand, the going will be none too soft.

Only air-tight pitching can save the day for Ford Frick's earnest young men. Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and the remaining cast will have to be at peak form to stop the attack that will be thrown against them from so many busy bombing bats.

The National League can match neither outfield nor infield in either offense or defense, so the main burden will have to fall upon a number of stout right and left arms.

After the Yankees

It has been charged before by more than a few that too many American rivals gave up all hope in any Yankee series, saving their better pitchers for other clubs in place of shoving them into the fiery furnace. This has happened more than once in the general belief that it was useless to beat Joe McCarthy's club, no matter what men you used.

If you listen to the general comment it will be different this season.

Four pennants and four World Series in a row is bad enough for the others, but here's also a fifth mop-up in sight which seven A. L. teams hope to suppress.

There is no such animal as a superman, nor is there any such thing as complete invincibility. There is also no use in being beaten before a ball is thrown.

No one can keep a pennant spirit flaming forever as the old urge begins to fade and die from too much success. This happened to the Cubs of 1909 and the Athletics of 1912 when both looked to be unbeatable machines—good enough to win four years out of five—but not good enough for five in a solid cluster.

The Big Killing

Big Bill Tilden Still "Big Time" In Tennis World

While Other Greats of His Day Are Done He Remains "Tops"

New York, March 7 (AP)—Ten years ago Bobby Jones played his last serious competitive golf. Eight years ago Jack Dempsey laced on the gloves for the last time. Five years ago Ruth hit his last big league homer.

But William Tatem Tilden II still is playing—and talking—big-time tennis.

Yesterday, at a luncheon, he took charge of the situation and promptly revised the Finnish Relief Fund program to be staged Sunday night at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. Because of that revision, star billing on the program will be given to the match between Tilden and Don Budge, for the best three sets.

Greatest for One Game

Big Bill is 47 years old now. Yet there are mighty few who will give you odds that Big Bill doesn't take at least one set from Budge Sunday night, which is something none of the younger pros were able to do in the recent Miami tournament.

They still regard Tilden as one of the world's best when it's a question of playing a single match. But he can no longer stand the strain of prolonged tournament play.

Big Bill, as always, is outspoken in his views. Starting with Wilbur (Junior) Coen, he has been a notably bad assessor of tennies talent. Yet that doesn't stop him from pronouncing the following verdicts:

He Rates Players

That Don Budge is the greatest player he's ever seen.

That Bobby Riggs "couldn't have lived on the same courts with the big-timers of fifteen years ago."

That Young Welby Van Horn, Forest Hills finalist against Riggs last September, has "too colossal" an ego for his own good, and that Don McNeill, to amount to something, will have to learn that there's more to tennis than "just closing your eyes and clouting the ball."

Who, then, is the nearest thing to another Budge—or Tilden? The old master had a surprise in store.

"Ted Schroeder, the 18-year-old junior champion from Glendale, Calif.," he said. "He has hitting power, knows when to use it and when not to, and has a sound defense. He's the only one I know of with possibilities of true greatness."

The pace is so smoking hot today that it is difficult for even a star golfer to keep on edge through two weeks. Demaret has been sharp for two months, with little rest between shows.

Golf is a game in which mental

By JOHN LARDNER

Tampa, Fla., March 7—No baseball club is complete without a Di Maggio these days. There is a Di Maggio with the Yankees, a Di Maggio with the Cincinnati Reds, and a Di Maggio (guaranteed genuine) with the Boston Red Sox.

Progressive magnates like Leland Stanford MacPhail, of Brooklyn, are combing the country for more Di-Maggios. Mr. MacPhail is even now believed to be attempting to sign up one To mDiMaggio, hitherto strictly a business man.

"He don't have to play ball for me," says the Brooklyn brain. "He can handle the hot dog franchise, just so I have a DiMaggio. I hate to be out of date."

Here in Tampa, Deacon Will McKechnie of the Cincinnati club is studying Vincent DiMaggio, one of the two ophthalmological or glasses-bearing DiMaggios. The other bespectacled DiMaggio is Dominick, now in the showcase of Uncle Tom Yawkey, the wealthy Boston collector. Like their obscure brother Joe, both are outfielders and both are fugitives from a fishing smack. It was a black day for San Francisco's crab-fishing fleet when the DiMaggios discovered baseball. Half of the fleet automatically disappeared.

Is Dom a Big Leaguer?

It's too soon to tell for sure whether Dominick is a big league ball player. It's even too soon to say for sure about Vince, though Vince has been in the business longer than any other DiMaggio.

Vince is no stranger to his new manager, Will McKechnie. William had the young man in Boston, with the Bees, where he employed him regularly in center field. Vince could pull down any fly ball within the limits of the law, and there were times when his work bordered on larceny. For my money, he could also throw a ball harder and straighter than his brother Joe.

He had pretty good power at the plate, too. Smaller than Joseph, he could still bust the stuffing out of the ball, when he could find it. He found it often enough to suit McKechnie. But for Casey Stengel, who succeeded the Deacon in Boston, it was too long to wait between hits.

"DiMaggio certainly powdered that one," said a critic one day. "I think it travelled even further than the last one he hit."

"Yeah?" said Mr. Stengel. "You have a wonderful memory."

Vincent broke the league record for strikeouts that year and woke up next spring in Kansas City. Kansas City is not a bad place to be. Advancement is restricted, but the Yankees will always sell you to the National League if they can't use you themselves and the other guy can get up $40,000.

Hit 46 Home Runs

The man who got up the forty grand in Vincent's case was Powel Crosley, of Cincinnati, on the advice of none other than Vince's first big league boss, Will McKechnie. For Kansas City he had hit forty-six home runs. The old power seemed to be there, and McKechnie heard that Vince's new glasses brought his hits closer together. No longer were they spaced by intervals of fifteen strikeouts each.

Vincent is still not as well "set," officially, as Joe or young Dominick, a youth who hits 'em sharp and often, if not so far, and shares the family talent for flagging a fly ball. Dominick is the regular Red Sox left fielder until we hear otherwise. The Sox showed their faith in him by discarding the veteran Joe Vosmik to make room for Dom in the pasture.

"I need a left fielder, and young DiMaggio is with us, so figure it out for yourself," says Manager Joe Cronin.

McKechnie, speaking of Vince, is more cautious. McKechnie is always more cautious.

"I've got room for a new left fielder myself, if Vince can make the grade, says the Deacon. "But he's got competition. Young Myron McCormick looks good out there, and then there's always Walter Berger. We'll see what we'll see."

That's not exactly the point. We'll see what Vincent will see. If he can see the ball well enough through his new tailor-made cheaters to get his shoulders behind it, the job is his, because you won't find a better outfielder in the game. Mike Kreevich, of the Chicago White Sox, may be a little cannier than Vince, but no better.

When you get right down to it, how can the Cincinnati club dispense with its new-found DiMaggio? No team is complete without one.

Pilot Straps Martin's Bat as Safety Measure

Tampa, Fla., March 7 (AP) — The National League champion Reds all but marked time today for their first exhibition game—with Brooklyn's Dodgers tomorrow.

Only a light workout featured the day, regulars and rookies being chased from the lot shortly after noon to make way for a game between teams of news men and photographers covering camps of the Reds and the Giants, at nearby Winter Haven.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The inventive genius of Manager Ray Blades of the St. Louis Cardinals may make baseball safer for both players and spectators when Pepper Martin is at bat.

For years the wild horse's habit of unexpectedly letting go of the bat in taking a healthy cut at the ball has thrown opposing players into a wild panic.

So Blades ordered a leather strap and had it taped at the handle end of the bat, forming a loop into which Pepper is supposed to put his left hand. Then if he loses his grip on the bat as he swings, the loop will hold it and nobody will be injured.

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today denied emphatically Dolph Camilli, holdout first baseman, has signed his contract or accepted terms.

"Camilli could have had $15,000 for this season, an increase of $1,000 over each of the last two years, had he signed and reported for training Feb. 25," said MacPhail. "Now the best he can get is the same amount he received last year. That is our final offer to him and he can take it or stay on his California sheep ranch."

Travis Stars at Old Stand

Orlando, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Back to his old position at third base for the first time since 1936, Cecil Travis is getting praise from the Washington Senators' coaches.

Travis, who has been playing shortstop, returned to third after Buddy Lewis was shifted to the outfield. Travis' practice play at the hot corner has been sensation.

Lakeland, Fla., March 7 (AP) — Dick Bartell whacked a homer over the left field wall with two mates on base in the fifth inning today to give Bing Miller's Cats a 3 to 2 verdict over Wish Egan's Rats in a Detroit Tiger intra-squad game.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 7 (AP) — After better than a week of spring training, the Cleveland Indians will get down to business tomorrow with their first intramural game, a six-inning affair.

San Bernardino, Calif., March 7(AP) —Manager Frankie Frisch, who in his playing days was a humdinger at stealing base, trained his Pittsburgh Pirates today in the "lost art" of base running.

He also gave them pointers on bunting, saying the Bucs "are woefully weak in laying down bunts as well as lying down while attempting to advance. Some of them actually go into a base on their knees."

Industries Aided by Conservation Research

New uses for coal mine refuse and the utilization of waste quarry and mill slate in connection with the manufacture of silica brick are included among the studies under the national conservation program carried on by the Bureau of Mines at laboratories in College Park, Md., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Norris, Tenn., and Seattle, Wash.

Conducted by the Nonmetals Division of the Bureau, the research also indicates that American ball and china clays and kyanite may replace imported minerals used in the manufacture of ceramic wares.

Utilization of the low-grade oolitic iron-bearing sandstones of Alabama may be rendered possible by the investigations, while the scientific tests already have resulted in the development of a device for determining the properties of drilling muds used in petroleum production, and another for the detection of destructive embrittlements on steam boiler surfaces.

Towson Loses to Frostburg 57-33

Rice Scores 10 Field Goals, 2 Free Throws for Winners

Baltimore, March 7 (AP)—Towson State Teachers College wound up it's basketball season tonight by losing to Frostburg Teachers, 57 to 33.

Rice, visiting forward, was the chief figure in the Frostburg triumph, dropping in ten field goals and a pair of free throws for 22 points.

Famiglietti Engaged

Boston — Gary Famiglietti, fullback on the Chicago Bears National Football League team, announces his engagement to Miss Mercedes Tietz of Chicago. The football star, who has returned to his alma mater, Boston U., for post-graduate work, plans to marry after the close of the 1940 season.

Bi-State Circuit Admits Keyser as Three Post Bonds

Hyndman, Cumberland and Westvaco in Line Meeting Mar. 14

Circuit To Inquire as to Organized Ball Connection

Three teams of the Bi-State League posted their $50 forfeit fees for the 1940 season and Keyser Moose Lodge No. 662 was voted a franchise in the circuit, at a meeting held in the Y. M. C. A. here last night.

Eugene T. Gunning, president of the circuit, again refused to reconsider the resignation he tendered as pressure was brought to bear to have him retain the post. Gunning presided at last night's session.

Hyndman, Cumberland and Westvaco were the three members to post their forfeits, while Midland which was not represented asked that the date be held off for the deadline on putting up the forfeit fee. It was agreed that this be done, and another meeting of the league will be held next Thursday night, March 14, at the "Y" here.

Frostburg also failed to have a representative at the session but it is felt that the Mountain City club will retain its franchise.

James F. McGuire, former manager of the Cumberland Colts, addressed the group and suggested the possibility of the league having a tie-up with organized baseball. He indicated that the circuit could do this in such a way as to guarantee the club's protection for its players who would show sufficient ability to warrant their being wanted by teams of organized baseball.

Elmer M. Daily, president of the Mid-Atlantic League and the Penn State Baseball Association, will be contacted at McGuire's suggestion, to advise just what requirements are necessary to have the league registered with the National Association of Minor League Clubs.

Barnhart of Hubs Top Scorer In CVA League

Barnhart, forward on the Hagerstown High School basketball team, captured Cumberland Valley Athletic League scoring honors for the 1940 campaign with 61 points, according to records compiled by the sports department of The Evening Times.

Don Edmunds, Martinsburg Bulldog forward who led Coach John Cobourn's quintet to the championship, took runnerup laurels with 47 points while Junior Rice of the Fort Hill Sentinels was third with 40.

Paul Flick of Martinsburg nosed out Jack Carnell of Fort Hill for fourth place, gathering 38 points, one more than Carnell. Bachtell of Hagerstown was sixth with 32. Wayne Stewart of Martinsburg seventh with 27, Billy Dean of Fort Hill and Tom Ritter of Handley tied for eighth with 24 apiece and Stewart Laidlow of Martinsburg tenth with 21.

MEET AMERICA'S BEST HUNTER

If there are any quail within smelling distance of Lester's Enjoy Wahoo at the National Field trials at Grand Junction, Tenn., they are in for trouble. This 4-year-old pointer was named America's best hunting dog of 1940 at the running trials known as the "World Series" of such events. The dog is shown with J. S. Gates, a trainer. Its owner is Dr. B. S. Lester of Birmingham, Ala.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

ON THE BENCH

Side by side on the sun-baked bench the rookie and veteran sat.
One heard the roar from a thousand crowds and the drum of a busy bat.
One heard the cheers from the far-off years, as he lifted a weary arm,
But the other looked to the years ahead, and never again the farm.

One was yearning to burn one through with the wing of a hurtling bird,
The other thought of his fading legs on the journey from first to third.
One looked beyond to the day of fame, to meeting the mob's appeal,
As the other thought of his first spring trip with an arm that was made of steel.

They talked of this, and they talked of that—but neither could understand
The great divide of the drifting years they knew on the southern sand.
But each in his way knew the road that leads to the ultimate goal of truth—
The rookie dreamed of an older head—the veteran dreamed of youth.

All-Star At Tampa

Miami Beach, March 7 (N.A.N.A.) —The National League will have to call upon some fancy pitching to handle its cause against the American outfit at Tampa shortly.

The older circuit has little chance to match Bill Dickey back of the bat, Foxx at first, Gordon or Gehringer at second, Cronin at short, and Red Rolfe at third, and DiMaggio, Williams and possibly Greenberg in the outfield.

This makes up a fair country delegation, as such things come and go. With Ruffing, Bridges, Grove, Feller, and one or two other pitchers on hand, the going will be none too soft.

Only air-tight pitching can save the day for Ford Frick's earnest young men. Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer and the remaining cast will have to be at peak form to stop the attack that will be thrown against them from so many busy bombing bats.

The National League can match neither outfield nor infield in either offense or defense, so the main burden will have to fall upon a number of stout right and left arms.

After the Yankees

It has been charged before by more than a few that too many American rivals gave up all hope in any Yankee series, saving their better pitchers for other clubs in place of shoving them into the fiery furnace. This has happened more than once in the general belief that it was useless to beat Joe McCarthy's club, no matter what men you used.

If you listen to the general comment it will be different this season.

Four pennants and four World Series in a row is bad enough for the others, but here's also a fifth mop-up in sight which seven A. L. teams hope to suppress.

There is no such animal as a superman, nor is there any such thing as complete invincibility. There is also no use in being beaten before a ball is thrown.

No one can keep a pennant spirit flaming forever as the old urge begins to fade and die from too much success. This happened to the Cubs of 1909 and the Athletics of 1912 when both looked to be unbeatable machines—good enough to win four years out of five—but not good enough for five in a solid cluster.

The Big Killing

While Other Greats of His Day Are Done He Remains "Tops"

New York, March 7 (AP)—Ten years ago Bobby Jones played his last serious competitive golf. Eight years ago Jack Dempsey laced on the gloves for the last time. Five years ago Ruth hit his last big league homer.

But William Tatem Tilden II still is playing—and talking—big-time tennis.

Yesterday, at a luncheon, he took charge of the situation and promptly revised the Finnish Relief Fund program to be staged Sunday night at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. Because of that revision, star billing on the program will be given to the match between Tilden and Don Budge, for the best three sets.

Greatest for One Game

Big Bill is 47 years old now. Yet there are mighty few who will give you odds that Big Bill doesn't take at least one set from Budge Sunday night, which is something none of the younger pros were able to do in the recent Miami tournament.

They still regard Tilden as one of the world's best when it's a question of playing a single match. But he can no longer stand the strain of prolonged tournament play.

Big Bill, as always, is outspoken in his views. Starting with Wilbur (Junior) Coen, he has been a notably bad assessor of tennies talent. Yet that doesn't stop him from pronouncing the following verdicts:

He Rates Players

That Don Budge is the greatest player he's ever seen.

That Bobby Riggs "couldn't have lived on the same courts with the big-timers of fifteen years ago."

That Young Welby Van Horn, Forest Hills finalist against Riggs last September, has "too colossal" an ego for his own good, and that Don McNeill, to amount to something, will have to learn that there's more to tennis than "just closing your eyes and clouting the ball."

Who, then, is the nearest thing to another Budge—or Tilden? The old master had a surprise in store.

"Ted Schroeder, the 18-year-old junior champion from Glendale, Calif.," he said. "He has hitting power, knows when to use it and when not to, and has a sound defense. He's the only one I know of with possibilities of true greatness."

The pace is so smoking hot today that it is difficult for even a star golfer to keep on edge through two weeks. Demaret has been sharp for two months, with little rest between shows.

Golf is a game in which mental

Eight W. Va. Regional Tourneys Tonight

17 of 32 Competing Teams Were Not in Last Year's Round

Kingwood - Shepherdstown and Thomas-Keyser Meet at Keyser

Winner of First Game Is Favored To Win Tourney

Charleston, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—The new faces will outnumber the old in the eight regional scholastic basketball tournaments tomorrow and Saturday, for seventeen of the thirty-two competing teams were among those absent last year.

The opening round of the eliminations for the eight places in the state tournament next week at Morgantown will begin tomorrow, with the finals Saturday.

All the teams are new this year in the region six tourney at Charleston while region three at Grafton went to the other extreme—all those competing this year won their sectional competitions last year.

Through the rest of the state it is a mixture of the perennials and those who fought their way through the sectionals for the first time in at least two years.

In region three, where they grow the basketball teams tall and tough, Fairmont West, defending state champions, Buckhannon, Grafton and Elkins again will settle things among themselves.

Kingwood Repeater

It was a wide open race in region six, however, and Madison, Mt. Hope, South Charleston and Gassaway came out on top, leaving last year's contenders—East Bank, Montgomery, Clendenin and Clay—to nurse their bruises.

Wheeling and Pine Grove replace Benwood and New Martinsville in region one, with Weirton and Sistersville back to round out the quartet. It is Washington Irving of Clarksburg, with Glenville and Victory of Clarksburg succeeding Spencer and Roosevelt-Wilson of Clarksburg.

Kingwood is the only repeater in region four, with Keyser, Thomas and Shepherdstown finishing ahead of Piedmont, Davis and Martinsburg in the sectionals. Hinton, Beckley and Richwood returned to region five while Summersville replaced Richwood.

There are three more familiar outfits in region seven, Logan, Huntington and Point Pleasant. St. Albans beat out Hurricane to round out the roster. In region eight it is half and half; Gary and Princeton to represent the old guard and Glen Rogers and Williamson to take the places of Mullens and Gilbert.

The regional pairings, with last year's winners in parenthesis:

Region one at Wheeling—Weirton vs Wheeling, Pine Grove vs Sistersville (Sistersville).

Region two at Clarksburg—Washington Irving vs Glenville, West Union vs Victory (Washington Irving).

Region three at Grafton—Fairmont West vs Elkins, Buckhannon vs Grafton (Fairmont West).

Region four at Keyser—Kingwood vs Shepherdstown, Keyser vs Thomas (Davis).

Region five at Ronceverte—Hintonvs Greenbank, Beckley vs Summersville (Hinton).

Region six at Charleston—Madison vs Gassaway, Mt. Hope vs South Charleston (East Bank).

Region seven at St. Albans—Logan vs Pt. Pleasant, Huntington vs St. Albans (Huntington).

Region eight at Bluefield—Gary vs Princeton, Glen Rogers vs Williamson (Gary).

First round games or semi-finals in the annual regional tournament at Keyser, with the winner qualifying for the West Virginia state championship tourney to be held at Morgantown March 14, 15, and 16, are on tap at Keyser with the finals to be staged Saturday evening.

It will be Shepherdstown High against Kingwood High and Keyser High against Thomas High this evening with unbeaten Kingwood and Thomas slight favorites.

Kingwood, which copped the sectional crown at Kingwood and at the same time extended its season winning streak to 23 games, should take across either Thomas or Keyser if it manages to get by Shepherdstown, which has bowed only twice this year.

Keyser has the poorest record of the four contenders while Thomas, which upset Davis High's Wildcats in the finals of the sectional at Parsons, has improved greatly since midway in the season.

Spades Are Trumps in Conservation Course

Twelve hunters in Iowa, found guilty of killing wood ducks in violation of law, recently had occasion to learn the lesson of conservation the hard way.

When the violators were brought into court by Bureau of Biological Survey game-management agents and a State conservation officer, each hunter was fined $50 and costs of $5.50. The judges offered to suspend $25 of each fine upon condition that the defendants would work one full day on a fish and game project in their respective counties. The work was done under the direction of the local State conservation officer.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers already had one of the finest shortstops in baseball. Their crying need was power in the outfield. So what happens? Sure, they come up with another fine shortstop.

This idea of buying a second pump handle while waiting for the pump to arrive, is not as wacky as it sounds, however. In the first place, some day not far distant manager Leo Durocher is going to discover that shortstop Leo Durocher has reached a point where his spirit is willing but his legs are weak.

In the second place, this new shortstop, Pee-Wee Reese, is such a good prospect the Dodgers just couldn't pass him up, even if they were wading around in good shortstops. It's just a case of a fellow who has a good watch, but sees a pretty one and buys it, figuring he might drop his old one some time.

Anyway, the Dodgers are in the peculiar position of knowing that their star rookie won't help them much this year, because, taking Durocher's experience into consideration, the new man just couldn't be that much better than Leo and the Dodgers already had just about the best infield in the league.

Outfielders, and pitchers, are the problems, and to quell any fears that Larry McPhail and Durocher are just resting on their oars in connection with those positions, it might be pointed out that they have so many outfield candidates that they are filing them away according to size and quality.

Even Durocher isn't so sure how everything will turn out, but he opines:

"Give me power in the outfield; a good defensive infield, better than fair pitching and good catching and we'll be tough for any of them."

Getting back to the new shortstop, the situation offers the picture of a star player unselfishly doing his best to boost a man who might replace him.

Durocher, his sports get-up a symphony in powder blue, his voice ranging from a well modulated shout to an enthusiastic screech, finally ran plumb out of words just before getting back to Hans Wagner in looking for somebody who might compare with the 20-year old kid from Louisville.

"I tell you" the field man of the Brooklyn broadcasting company exclaimed, "you never saw anybody like Reese. He's a gangly kid, looks like a junior in high school, but he doesn't play at shortstop. He just floats around there.

"Donie Bush told me he had looked in vain for something to criticize about Reese's play. And I haven't been able to either."

City Service League

The Queen City Dairy lads won three from the Community Super Market with four of the six man team bowling well over the 400 set mark. R. Peterson of the losers had 394.

The Charlton outfit won two from the Swift team. None of the keglers were able to break 400.

The Bowling Green team won three from the Carl McIntyre Grocers as Phillips and Whitman spilled 436 and 480. Carl King of the losers hit down 428 pins.

The Liberty Milk team splashed the Police Department team in three games with Goodfellow and White mowing down 420 and 474. Davis and Whalley of the uniformed lads made 431 and 417 scores.

American Bowling Congress Tourney Opens in Detroit

Keglers from 729 Cities To Take Part in 62 Day Meet

Detroit, March 7 (AP)—The fortieth renewal of the world's bowling championships opened here tonight amid all the customary pomp and color attendant to the annual American Bowling Congress tourneys.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., of Detroit and former Mayor Richard W. Reading, assisted congress officials in launching the world's largest competitive sports event, which will bring 33,000 Keglers from 729 cities to Detroit during its 62-day program.

For the second time in ABC history, a battery of forty alleys will be used to determine the pin champs. In 1938 at Chicago, a similar setup accommodated the previous record entry of 4,957 teams, but the layout of the current tournament dwarfs all others, with its huge enlistment of 6,073 five-man teams.

Two hundred Detroit American Legion members fired the initial shots. Although the local veterans rolled under the "booster" division, the new drives will probably yield higher totals as out-of-town regulars swing into action over the week-end.

Many Scenic Wonders in Proposed Park Area

Several mountain peaks more than 14,000 feet high and nearly 600 Alpine lakes, together with some 438,000 acres of the most magnificent scenery in California's High Sierra are included in the area proposed for establishment as Kings Canyon National Park under the conservation program of the Department of the Interior.

In addition, some of the finest examples of young and middle-aged sequoias in existence are found in the groves of Redwood Mountain and Canyon in the proposed park area.

Six College Teams In Metropolitan Court Tournament

Combined Season's Record is 103 Victories to 15 Defeats

New York, March 7 (AP)—Six college basketball teams with a combined season's record of 103 victories and only fifteen defeats will compete in the invitational college basketball tournament next week in Madison Square Garden.

Playing hosts to as fine a field as the three-year old tournament has ever boasted are Clair Bee's Long Island University Blackbirds and St. John's University of Brooklyn.

Bringing a challenge from outside the metropolitan area are a smart DePaul team, a corking good Duquesne outfit, Colorado champions of the Big Seven conference and Henry P. Iba's mighty Oklahoma Aggies.

Everything had been done today—final acceptances were in, the draw was made, and everybody was happy—except bitterly disappointed Rice Institute, champions of the southwest, and New York University, one of the nation's finest teams.

Rice had accepted an invitation that never was sent and so excited were they that banners were hung on the campus with the words, "on to New York." New York, beaten but once in a rigorous nineteen game schedule, couldn't accept both the metropolitan invitation and the national collegiate offer, so the faculty committee on athletics made them refuse both—in spite of a demonstration by the players.

The Sportlight

attitude can change in a rush. And it is largely a game of mental attitude. In this respect Demaret carries you back to Horton Smith's brilliant round-up over ten years ago when he swept the field week after week with one of the greatest winter and spring records ever set. The Joplin kid at that time was one of the most relaxed golfers I ever saw. Nothing seemed to worry him at any time.

Jimmy Demaret is even more relaxed in his outlook on tournament play. He has a golf swing as sound as anything you'll look at for a long time, but golf is loaded with fine swings. It's tournament disposition that paves most of the way to a winning march, the ability to concentrate at the right time without getting tied into true lovers' knots.

I can't recall Demaret playing what looked to be a tightened up shot. When he had an off-spell at Phoenix all he said was, "I can't get the right feel today, so I'm not bothering about it. That's one thing in golf that you can't force. On any given day you have it, or you don't have it. That's all there is to it. You can't help yourself by tightening up and trying to steer the ball. Every golfer knows pretty well when he's hot and when he isn't. There isn't any use in burning yourself out against the breaks or an off day."

There is one feature of Demaret's swing that catches the eye—that is the ease with which he plays every type of stroke. There is no sign of any wasted effort, no matter what club he calls upon.

He plays each club for what it is worth on the easy side, something a relaxed nature can take of under pressure. Most of the headlines make the game look easy — but he makes it look even easier, take week after week.

Eight W. Va. Regional Tourneys Tonight

Winner of First Game Is Favored To Win Tourney

Charleston, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—The new faces will outnumber the old in the eight regional scholastic basketball tournaments tomorrow and Saturday, for seventeen of the thirty-two competing teams were among those absent last year.

The opening round of the eliminations for the eight places in the state tournament next week at Morgantown will begin tomorrow, with the finals Saturday.

All the teams are new this year in the region six tourney at Charleston while region three at Grafton went to the other extreme—all those competing this year won their sectional competitions last year.

Through the rest of the state it is a mixture of the perennials and those who fought their way through the sectionals for the first time in at least two years.

In region three, where they grow the basketball teams tall and tough, Fairmont West, defending state champions, Buckhannon, Grafton and Elkins again will settle things among themselves.

Kingwood Repeater

It was a wide open race in region six, however, and Madison, Mt. Hope, South Charleston and Gassaway came out on top, leaving last year's contenders—East Bank, Montgomery, Clendenin and Clay—to nurse their bruises.

Wheeling and Pine Grove replace Benwood and New Martinsville in region one, with Weirton and Sistersville back to round out the quartet. It is Washington Irving of Clarksburg, with Glenville and Victory of Clarksburg succeeding Spencer and Roosevelt-Wilson of Clarksburg.

Kingwood is the only repeater in region four, with Keyser, Thomas and Shepherdstown finishing ahead of Piedmont, Davis and Martinsburg in the sectionals. Hinton, Beckley and Richwood returned to region five while Summersville replaced Richwood.

There are three more familiar outfits in region seven, Logan, Huntington and Point Pleasant. St. Albans beat out Hurricane to round out the roster. In region eight it is half and half; Gary and Princeton to represent the old guard and Glen Rogers and Williamson to take the places of Mullens and Gilbert.

The regional pairings, with last year's winners in parenthesis:

Region one at Wheeling—Weirton vs Wheeling, Pine Grove vs Sistersville (Sistersville).

Region two at Clarksburg—Washington Irving vs Glenville, West Union vs Victory (Washington Irving).

Region three at Grafton—Fairmont West vs Elkins, Buckhannon vs Grafton (Fairmont West).

Region four at Keyser—Kingwood vs Shepherdstown, Keyser vs Thomas (Davis).

Region five at Ronceverte—Hintonvs Greenbank, Beckley vs Summersville (Hinton).

Region six at Charleston—Madison vs Gassaway, Mt. Hope vs South Charleston (East Bank).

Region seven at St. Albans—Logan vs Pt. Pleasant, Huntington vs St. Albans (Huntington).

Region eight at Bluefield—Gary vs Princeton, Glen Rogers vs Williamson (Gary).

First round games or semi-finals in the annual regional tournament at Keyser, with the winner qualifying for the West Virginia state championship tourney to be held at Morgantown March 14, 15, and 16, are on tap at Keyser with the finals to be staged Saturday evening.

It will be Shepherdstown High against Kingwood High and Keyser High against Thomas High this evening with unbeaten Kingwood and Thomas slight favorites.

Kingwood, which copped the sectional crown at Kingwood and at the same time extended its season winning streak to 23 games, should take across either Thomas or Keyser if it manages to get by Shepherdstown, which has bowed only twice this year.

Keyser has the poorest record of the four contenders while Thomas, which upset Davis High's Wildcats in the finals of the sectional at Parsons, has improved greatly since midway in the season.

Spades Are Trumps in Conservation Course

Twelve hunters in Iowa, found guilty of killing wood ducks in violation of law, recently had occasion to learn the lesson of conservation the hard way.

When the violators were brought into court by Bureau of Biological Survey game-management agents and a State conservation officer, each hunter was fined $50 and costs of $5.50. The judges offered to suspend $25 of each fine upon condition that the defendants would work one full day on a fish and game project in their respective counties. The work was done under the direction of the local State conservation officer.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Clearwater, Fla., March 7 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers already had one of the finest shortstops in baseball. Their crying need was power in the outfield. So what happens? Sure, they come up with another fine shortstop.

This idea of buying a second pump handle while waiting for the pump to arrive, is not as wacky as it sounds, however. In the first place, some day not far distant manager Leo Durocher is going to discover that shortstop Leo Durocher has reached a point where his spirit is willing but his legs are weak.

In the second place, this new shortstop, Pee-Wee Reese, is such a good prospect the Dodgers just couldn't pass him up, even if they were wading around in good shortstops. It's just a case of a fellow who has a good watch, but sees a pretty one and buys it, figuring he might drop his old one some time.

Anyway, the Dodgers are in the peculiar position of knowing that their star rookie won't help them much this year, because, taking Durocher's experience into consideration, the new man just couldn't be that much better than Leo and the Dodgers already had just about the best infield in the league.

Outfielders, and pitchers, are the problems, and to quell any fears that Larry McPhail and Durocher are just resting on their oars in connection with those positions, it might be pointed out that they have so many outfield candidates that they are filing them away according to size and quality.

Even Durocher isn't so sure how everything will turn out, but he opines:

"Give me power in the outfield; a good defensive infield, better than fair pitching and good catching and we'll be tough for any of them."

Getting back to the new shortstop, the situation offers the picture of a star player unselfishly doing his best to boost a man who might replace him.

Durocher, his sports get-up a symphony in powder blue, his voice ranging from a well modulated shout to an enthusiastic screech, finally ran plumb out of words just before getting back to Hans Wagner in looking for somebody who might compare with the 20-year old kid from Louisville.

"I tell you" the field man of the Brooklyn broadcasting company exclaimed, "you never saw anybody like Reese. He's a gangly kid, looks like a junior in high school, but he doesn't play at shortstop. He just floats around there.

"Donie Bush told me he had looked in vain for something to criticize about Reese's play. And I haven't been able to either."

City Service League

The Queen City Dairy lads won three from the Community Super Market with four of the six man team bowling well over the 400 set mark. R. Peterson of the losers had 394.

The Charlton outfit won two from the Swift team. None of the keglers were able to break 400.

The Bowling Green team won three from the Carl McIntyre Grocers as Phillips and Whitman spilled 436 and 480. Carl King of the losers hit down 428 pins.

The Liberty Milk team splashed the Police Department team in three games with Goodfellow and White mowing down 420 and 474. Davis and Whalley of the uniformed lads made 431 and 417 scores.

Smith Goes South

Green Bay, Wis.—Richard "Red" Smith, line coach of the world's champion Green Bay Packer professional football club, is enroute to the Milwaukee Brewers' Ocala, Fla., training camp. "Red", a former New York Giant catcher, will resume his duties as assistant to Mickey Heath, manager of the Brewer baseball club.

American Bowling Congress Tourney Opens in Detroit

Keglers from 729 Cities To Take Part in 62 Day Meet

Detroit, March 7 (AP)—The fortieth renewal of the world's bowling championships opened here tonight amid all the customary pomp and color attendant to the annual American Bowling Congress tourneys.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries, Jr., of Detroit and former Mayor Richard W. Reading, assisted congress officials in launching the world's largest competitive sports event, which will bring 33,000 Keglers from 729 cities to Detroit during its 62-day program.

For the second time in ABC history, a battery of forty alleys will be used to determine the pin champs. In 1938 at Chicago, a similar setup accommodated the previous record entry of 4,957 teams, but the layout of the current tournament dwarfs all others, with its huge enlistment of 6,073 five-man teams.

Two hundred Detroit American Legion members fired the initial shots. Although the local veterans rolled under the "booster" division, the new drives will probably yield higher totals as out-of-town regulars swing into action over the week-end.

Glenville, W. Va. State In Kansas City Tourney

Kansas City, March 7 (AP)—Manager Emil S. Liston of the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament, announced 19 colleges from 15 states, among them Glenville State College of Glenville, W. Va., have been certified to play.

The third annual tourney will get under way Monday and Liston, Baker University athletic director, said a full bracket of 32 teams would be certified by that time.

Crane's Clothiers Enter Petersburg Cage Tourney

The Crane's Clothiers of Cumberland, will seek honors in the eleventh annual independent basketball tournament now in progress at Petersburg, W. Va.

The Clothiers will make their first tournament start tonight at 10 o'clock in the final first-round contest engaging Fairmont (W. Va.) Palatine tossers.

Many Scenic Wonders in Proposed Park Area

Several mountain peaks more than 14,000 feet high and nearly 600 Alpine lakes, together with some 438,000 acres of the most magnificent scenery in California's High Sierra are included in the area proposed for establishment as Kings Canyon National Park under the conservation program of the Department of the Interior.

In addition, some of the finest examples of young and middle-aged sequoias in existence are found in the groves of Redwood Mountain and Canyon in the proposed park area.

Six College Teams In Metropolitan Court Tournament

Combined Season's Record is 103 Victories to 15 Defeats

New York, March 7 (AP)—Six college basketball teams with a combined season's record of 103 victories and only fifteen defeats will compete in the invitational college basketball tournament next week in Madison Square Garden.

Playing hosts to as fine a field as the three-year old tournament has ever boasted are Clair Bee's Long Island University Blackbirds and St. John's University of Brooklyn.

Bringing a challenge from outside the metropolitan area are a smart DePaul team, a corking good Duquesne outfit, Colorado, champions of the Big Seven conference and Henry P. Iba's mighty Oklahoma Aggies.

Everything had been done today—final acceptances were in, the draw was made, and everybody was happy—except bitterly disappointed Rice Institute, champions of the southwest, and New York University, one of the nation's finest teams.

Rice had accepted an invitation that never was sent and so excited were they that banners were hung on the campus with the words, "on to New York." New York, beaten but once in a rigorous nineteen game schedule, couldn't accept both the metropolitan invitation and the national collegiate offer, so the faculty committee on athletics made them refuse both—in spite of a demonstration by the players.

attitude can change in a rush. And it is largely a game of mental attitude. In this respect Demaret carries you back to Horton Smith's brilliant round-up over ten years ago when he swept the field week after week with one of the greatest winter and spring records ever set. The Joplin kid at that time was one of the most relaxed golfers I ever saw. Nothing seemed to worry him at any time.

Jimmy Demaret is even more relaxed in his outlook on tournament play. He has a golf swing as sound as anything you'll look at for a long time, but golf is loaded with fine swings. It's tournament disposition that paves most of the way to a winning march, the ability to concentrate at the right time without getting tied into true lovers' knots.

I can't recall Demaret playing what looked to be a tightened up shot. When he had an off-spell at Phoenix all he said was, "I can't get the right feel today, so I'm not bothering about it. That's one thing in golf that you can't force. On any given day you have it, or you don't have it. That's all there is to it. You can't help yourself by tightening up and trying to steer the ball. Every golfer knows pretty well when he's hot and when he is... There isn't any use in burning you... self out against the breaks or an... day."

There is one feature of Demare... swing that catches the eye—that... the ease with which he plays eve... type of stroke. There is no sign... any wasted effort, no matter wh... club he calls upon.

He plays each club for what it... worth on the easy side, someth... a relaxed nature can take of un... pressure. Most of the headlin... make the game look easy — but... makes it look even easier, tak... week after week.

HERE'S 'OLD FAITHFUL' LOMBARDI—That spouting geyser in Yellowstone hasn't much on Big Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati Reds catcher in Tampa, Fla. Maybe he's rehearsing for a liquid "Bronx cheer."

QUOTA ON THE QUEETS—Pardon the pride of Fishermen Sandy Balcom (left) and Ed Sierer after they'd taken their limit of three steelheads apiece in the Queets river in Olympic national park, Washington state. The steelhead, a species of trout, averages 10 to 16 pounds, and is considered one of the "fightin'est" of game fish.

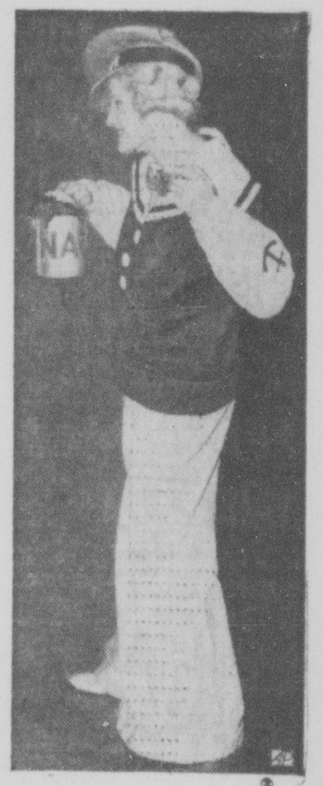

A DREAM IS BORN—More eloquent than words is the wistful expression of Jackie Kehs, 3, of Freehold, N. J., studying a miniature model of a D-16 Pennsylvania engine at National Model show in Philadelphia.

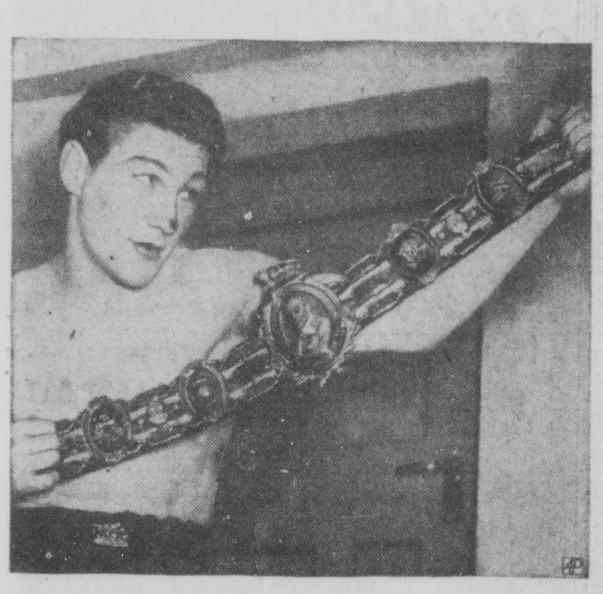

HAPPY ENDING—Plight of George W. Patten (above), who wrote the Frank Merriwell stories, using name of Burt Standish, drew aid in New York. He was facing eviction for non-payment of rent due for an apartment.

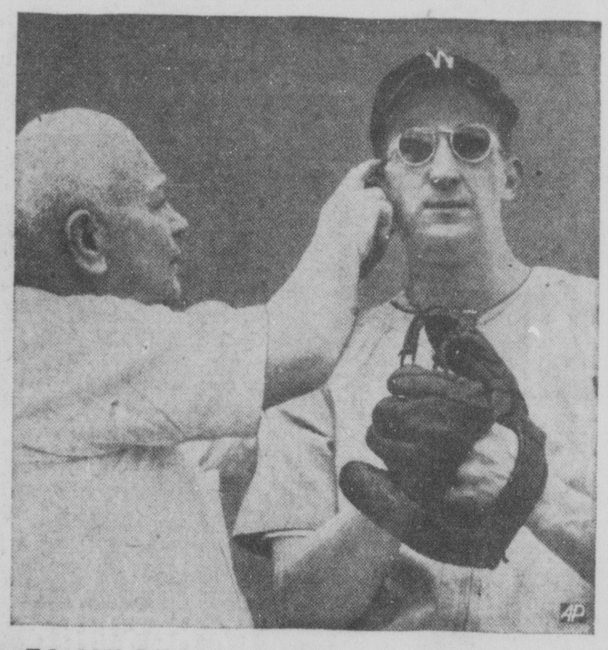

YOUR NAME, PLEASE!—This is William Austin, director of the U. S. census and unwitting figure in the lively debate provoked by inclusion of personal income questions in the 1940 census sheets. He testified before the senate commerce subcommittee. Attack on the income questions has been led by Sen. Charles Tobey (R.-N. H.).

GUESS WHO!—Playing a female version of that spinach-eating comic character, Mrs. Herbert Lehman, wife of N. Y. governor, made a hit at party in Albany, N. Y.

TO SPY THOSE 'FLIES'—Elmer Gedeon, a Washington Senators outfielder, obligingly tries on a pair of the glasses that Mike Martin (left), Senators trainer, has developed to help the lads snag those high flies in the sunlight. The glasses are graduated in color, being darker at the top. The tryout was at Orlando, Fla., camp.

DUTCH MISS—Too busy to heed the photographer, who in this case was her father, Prince Bernhard, is Princess Beatrix, 2, daughter of The Netherlands' Juliana.

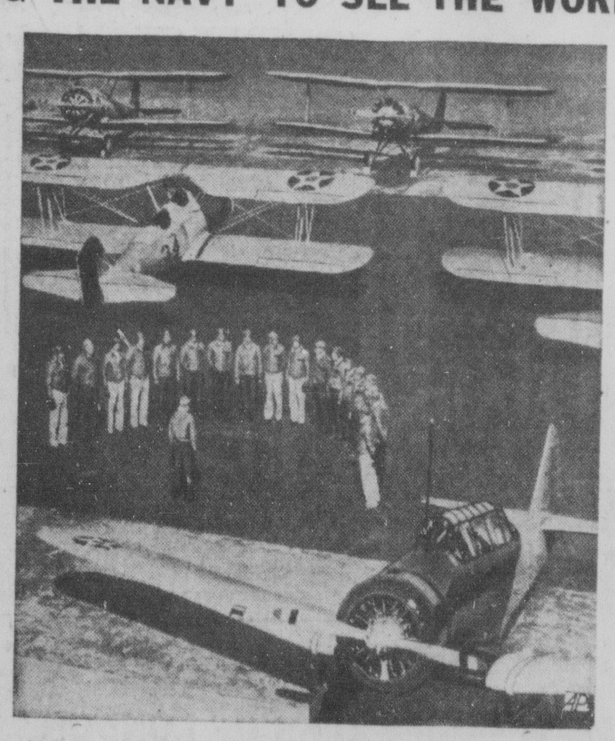

FRENCH ARMY TRAVELS—ON WHEELS—A French-approved caption says this army car seen at the western front is "capable of traveling over all kinds of ground."

MAN AT WORK—Despite appearances, that man's NOT loafing but is hard at work watching aviation cadets flying overhead at U. S. naval air station in Pensacola, Fla. A stunt check pilot, he's dictating comments to man with pencil, these for use during a later criticism of the flight.

Stocks Close Slightly Higher in Spite of Profit-Taking at Times

Specialties Are Strong, but List Is Irregular

New York, March 7 (AP) — With the aid of specialties, the stock market today succeeded in keeping its trend on the rallying side.

The list met profit taking after a fast start and early gains running to a point or so were erased in many cases.

Advances of fractions were well distributed at the finish, although minus signs were plentiful.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was up .1 of a point at 50.1. A month ago the composite stood at 50.4. On the day's turnover 324 individual stocks ended ahead, 246 behind and 205 were unchanged. Transfers amounted to 691,346 shares against 855,030 the day before.

Wall street seemed cheered by indications the business recession apparently in flattening out. Earnings statements brought support for scattered stocks and buying elsewhere was said to have been based on revived political optimism and the growing belief industry will regain its stride in the next month or two.

Given a hoist in the Curb were American Cyanamid "B", American Gas, Consolidated Gas G Electric of Baltimore, Electric Bond & Share and Gulf Oil. Transfers here approximated 162,000 shares compared with 151,000 the day before.

Japanese Troops Launch General Offensive

Honkong, March 7 (AP) —A Japanese general offensive designed to complete the conquest of Hainan island has been launched with warplanes supporting columns driving into the interior from the northern, southern and western coasts, Japanese dispatches reported.

A Japanese expedition seized the main coastal cities of Hainan, Chinese island off the south China coast, in February, 1939, but the conquest never was extended far from the coast.

The dispatches reported capture of Wenya, seventy-five miles from the east coast, described as an important base for Chinese regular troops still holding out on the island.

Hainan is near the coast of French Indo-China and the Japnnese expedition there increased Japanese-French tension.

The Japanese expedition landed on the Pearl river delta near the Portuguese colony of Macao was reported making good progress westward toward the Chungshan region of southern Kwantung province.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows feels like it will tear your chest walls apart. You need reliable and ready help. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to loosen germ laden phlegm, increase secretion and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back. Horse Race Feature Is In Strand Stage Show

Horse fans and turf lovers are due for a thrill and theater patrons generally for laughs as Andy Mayo brings a "Day at the Races," featuring Pansy the Horse, to the Strand theater today and tomorrow as a feature of "Folies De Nuit", elaborate Girl-filled revue.

Mayo offers an amusing picture of goings on behind the scenes at the track—an intimate picture of "Life among the Horses". Various touches familiar to turf fans make the offering all the more amusing.

Other outstanding features of the show include a tropical siren who headlines with a Tahitian love ritual of amorous proportions, Alphonse Berge, "Minute Man of Fashion", who drapes scantily clad models in fashion ala mode with startling rapidity; Waller and Lee, rapid fire comics; Bernhardt and Ketrow in a French comedy novelty act, the American Ambassadors, a group of personable American funsters from French night clubs, and other singing dancing funsters.

Beauty holds forth with a parade of pulchritude headed by Miss Virginia, comely blonde beauty billed as "Venus with the Million Dollar Legs", and a score of beauties. Not only do the girls look well, but they offer a variety of precision routines, smartly costumed and well executed.

The screen show has Warren William and Joan Perry starred in the Louis J. Vance story "The Lone Wolf Strikes." Added will be the Paramount and Fox combined news reel also an assortment of short hits.

Film of Early West Is Showing at Garden

A vivid chapter from the history of the American West is incorporated in "The Marshal of Mesa City," George O'Brien's starring outdoor drama now at the Garden.

During the latter part of the nineteenth century, the Western frontier was overrun with gunmen, outlaws and criminals of every description. To meet this emergency, there arose the quick-thinking, fast-shooting peace officer.

It is such a role that George O'Brien portrays in "The Marshal of Mesa City." He is seen as the honest officer prepared to defend with his life the citizens of Mesa City.

An able RKO Radio cast, including Virginia Vale, Leon Ames, Henry Brandon, Lloyd Ingraham, Mary Gordon and others supports O'Brien in this offering, which David Howard directed.

If you can picture "wacky" Joan Davis tossed into the midst of America's first fun family, you'll have an idea of the gaiety that's ahead for you when you see The Jones Family in "Too Busy To Work," now at the Garden.

Dad's duties as Mayor of Maryville causes him to neglect his business so much that Ma turns actress to teach him a lesson.

Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Ken Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan are the Joneses again, aided by Joan Davis and a fine cast.

OXFORD CHUMP

Raymond Hatton, veteran screen star, and member of the Three Mesquiteers, is on the Embassy theater screen in "The Kansas Terrors," Republic western.

Bob Livingston and Duncan Renaldo are the other members of the Mesquiteer trio, who are seen with him.

George Sherman was director and Harry Grey associate producer for Republic.

The second feature is Sylvia Sidney and Joel McCrea in "Dead End," with Humphrey Bogart and the Dead End Kids.

Specialties Are Strong, but List Is Irregular

New York, March 7 (AP) — With the aid of specialties, the stock market today succeeded in keeping its trend on the rallying side.

The list met profit taking after a fast start and early gains running to a point or so were erased in many cases.

Advances of fractions were well distributed at the finish, although minus signs were plentiful.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues was up .1 of a point at 50.1. A month ago the composite stood at 50.4. On the day's turnover 324 individual stocks ended ahead, 246 behind and 205 were unchanged. Transfers amounted to 691,346 shares against 855,030 the day before.

Wall street seemed cheered by indications the business recession apparently in flattening out. Earnings statements brought support for scattered stocks and buying elsewhere was said to have been based on revived political optimism and the growing belief industry will regain its stride in the next month or two.

Given a hoist in the Curb were American Cyanamid "B", American Gas, Consolidated Gas G Electric of Baltimore, Electric Bond & Share and Gulf Oil. Transfers here approximated 162,000 shares compared with 151,000 the day before.

Japanese Troops Launch General Offensive

Honkong, March 7 (AP) —A Japanese general offensive designed to complete the conquest of Hainan island has been launched with warplanes supporting columns driving into the interior from the northern, southern and western coasts, Japanese dispatches reported.

A Japanese expedition seized the main coastal cities of Hainan, Chinese island off the south China coast, in February, 1939, but the conquest never was extended far from the coast.

The dispatches reported capture of Wenya, seventy-five miles from the east coast, described as an important base for Chinese regular troops still holding out on the island.

Hainan is near the coast of French Indo-China and the Japnnese expedition there increased Japanese-French tension.

The Japanese expedition landed on the Pearl river delta near the Portuguese colony of Macao was reported making good progress westward toward the Chungshan region of southern Kwantung province.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows feels like it will tear your chest walls apart. You need reliable and ready help. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to loosen germ laden phlegm, increase secretion and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back. Hagerstown Lawyer Dies at Age of 52

Hagerstown, March 7 (AP) — J. Lloyd Harshman, 52, president of the Washington County Board of Education and former state's attorney, died at his home Tuesday of heart trouble.

He was a native of Wolfsville, Frederick county. After graduating from the University of Maryland law school, he came to Hagerstown and began the practice of law in 1912. From 1915 to 1921 he served as claim agent for the State Industrial Accident Commission. He returned to practice here in 1921.

Personal To Fat Girls

Now you may slim down your face and figure without starvation dieting or backbreaking exercises. Just eat sensibly and take Marmola under the conditions and according to directions on the package.

Marmola Tablets have been sold to the public for more than thirty years. More than twenty million boxes have been distributed during that period.

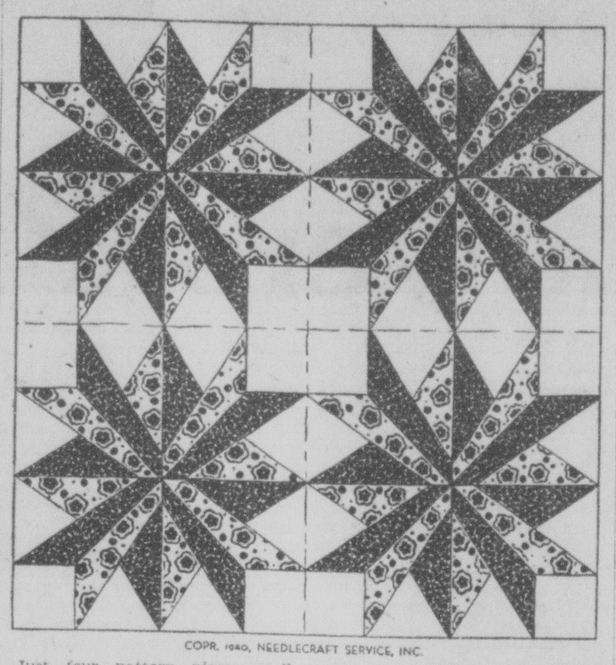

Marmola is not a cure-all. Marmola is only for adult fat persons whose fatness is caused by a thyroid deficiency (hypothyroid), but who are otherwise normal and healthy. We do not make any diagnosis as that is the function of your physician, who must be consulted for that purpose. Why not try to lose those ugly, uncomfortable pounds the Marmola way? Pick-a-Back Ride Is Fatal to Child

Minneapolis, March 7 (AP)—Six-year-old William Sisco fell to the floor as he was being carried on the back of a ten-year-old companion in a pick-a-back contest yesterday. It appeared then that he had just another fall. But late last night the child became unconscious. He died yesterday in a hospital. Physicians said he had fractured his skull.

Navy Gets Better Armor And Better Shells

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A House naval subcommittee got the low-down today on how the navy stimulates rivalry among private manufacturers.

Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, chief of the bureau of ordnance, put it this way:

"We keep working on the steel fellows until they develop armor that will stop our test shells. Then we take that armor to the shell people and say 'look here, what's the matter? Your shells won't even go through the armor.'"

The air in the Arctic is filled in summer with a hum and song of billions of insects and millions of birds.

Charm Is the Word In Best Leap-Year Matrimonial Circles

College Park, Md., March 7 (AP)—Take it or leave it, girls—the young lady says this "oomph" stuff is out. And she sounds—and looks—as though she knows what she's talking about.

"Charm" is the word in best leap-year matrimonial circles, dark-haired, attractive Hester Beall Provenson told coeds of the University of Maryland's novel class in conduct and etiquette.

"Men are simple creatures—as a general rule," the youthful professor of public speaking, dramatics and radio technique said brightly. "Get that 'you're wonderful' look in your eye and let them talk."

When a girl has something to say, she should know how to say it, Professor Provenson continued, the approved time-tested manslayer is a low, rich, modulated voice—available to many women at the slight cost of standing before a mirror and reading poetry aloud.

Mixed in with it must be plenty of vitality and warmth, none of this too-precise enunciation, plenty of expressive words, but not too much slang.

Good, natural posture will help enunciation, she told the class.

"Usually, careless enunciation means a careless person," she said. "Everyone has a good speaking voice unless there's a speech impediment to consider. All most voices need is development—and that doesn't mean talking too much."

4,500 Cars 1,000 Days Without a Death

Southbridge, Mass., March 7 (AP)—This town of 18,000 and 4,500 automobiles has chalked up a safety record of 1,000 days without an automobile fatality.

Excited at the record, which Police Chief Ulric Brault believed was the best in the nation, police of the day shift remained up until midnight to make sure no accident occurred.

Brault would only comment: "We are working on 2,000 days now."

Mountain Folks Say It Is Time To Thin Out Blood

Huntington, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Warmer weather is on the way and it's almost time, say the mountain folks, to "thin out your blood."

Bad attacks of spring fever are held in store for those who fail.

Shortly now the people who live in the uplands will be gathering wild sassafras root to make the succulent teas which is both one of their remedies and their delicacies. And then there's the witch hazel, the wild cherry, the hop tree and other roots and herbs whose medicinal value is unquestioned by some.

Sulphur and molasses—a vile smelling evil-tasting concoction—is recommended to cure the pre-spring blues.

All winter long, say those who advocate a spring tonic, your system has been accustomed to fighting chilly blasts and by some unknown alchemy, your blood has thickened to withstand the winter cold. The thick blood, they go on, results in spring fever if it isn't thinned out.

Another remedy which Randolph Norton, columnist for the Raleigh Register at Beckley, W. Va., says some advocate to cure influenza is the bark of a "white" walnut tree which has to be "scraped down, not up," in collecting.

United States cruisers and gunboats are named for cities.

Advertising Lowers Prices!

ARE you willing to spend 45 cents to save $15? Of course you are — if you know the facts. Sometimes advertising performs a miracle like that.

Ten years ago, a certain camera sold for $30. It was advertised extensively, sales increased, and overhead costs were reduced. Now, with larger production, the manufacturer is able to operate more economically and to sell a better camera for $15. The advertising cost amounts to 45 cents for each camera. The saving to the customer is $15.

In a similar way, advertising has helped to lower prices in many other specific cases. Yet there seems to be a common impression that advertising represents an extra cost, something that must be added to the price of what you buy.

Everybody knows that advertising costs money and that it is used to help sell goods. Less known is the fact that good advertising sells goods so well that it is the cheapest way of selling them. This is one of the reasons why it is possible to sell well-advertised goods at a lower price than if they were not advertised.

Then there is the other important reason. As advertising builds the sales volume of a company faster and greater than any other method, it makes large-scale manufacturing possible, and that reduces the cost of making each article. When there is competition, which there usually is, manufacturers and dealers lower their prices as rapidly as they can. In this way, consumers get the benefit of the savings that advertising effects in the costs of selling and manufacturing.

When you see thousands of dollars spent for a single advertisement it is only natural to assume that you have to pay for it when you buy the advertised article. But few people realize how little this cost really is when spread over the large number of units sold through the advertisement and how large a saving this makes in the total cost. On canned food, the average cost of advertising is less than one-half cent per can. On one of the most widely advertised soft drinks the advertising cost is less than one-fiftieth of a cent per glass!

Lumping together all the advertising in the country, the total expenditures amount to less than 2 per cent of the value of all goods sold. This is very small in comparison with other selling and distributing costs. The Department of Commerce estimates that in 1935 the total cost of distribution was 28 per cent. So it appears that the total amount spent for advertising is only one-fourteenth of the whole cost of distribution.

If no money were spent for advertising, the cost of selling and distributing would be far higher than it is now, and prices would have to be higher. More important still, a smaller volume of goods would be sold and produced, and there would be less employment, and a smaller share of the world's goods for each of us. Advertising puts money in your pocket.

Advertising Lowers Prices!

ARE you willing to spend 45 cents to save $15? Of course you are — if you know the facts. Sometimes advertising performs a miracle like that.

Ten years ago, a certain camera sold for $30. It was advertised extensively, sales increased, and overhead costs were reduced. Now, with larger production, the manufacturer is able to operate more economically and to sell a better camera for $15. The advertising cost amounts to 45 cents for each camera. The saving to the customer is $15.

In a similar way, advertising has helped to lower prices in many other specific cases. Yet there seems to be a common impression that advertising represents an extra cost, something that must be added to the price of what you buy.

The Odor of Danger

Kansas City, Mo. (AP)—It's part of the kindergarten course for coyotes now—learning that the smell of gunpowder means trouble. Turkey farmers in Kiowa county, Kans., have discovered that all they have to do is to shoot off a few firecrackers among the turkeys, and as long as the smell of gunpowder lingers the coyotes remain away.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER ONE

"YOU WON'T gain anything by being sulky about it," I called back over my shoulder. My voice shook.

Out here in the garden all was quiet. The full moon glistened on the placid river just beyond the willows. The tall figure of Alfred Markham, with whom I had been talking, leaned against the railing at the end of the rose arbor, face tilted up toward the stars.

Through the partly opened glass doors of the clubhouse I had seen Jerry Montcalm approaching across the lighted hallway, staggering a bit as though he would welcome fresh air. I met him in the doorway. Laughter and the clink of glasses sounded from the clubroom beyond.

"What's matter dear old Al-Alfred?" Jerry asked, clutching the handle of one of the doors for support. "Heard you quarreling. Bill, you — hic — look sick. What's wrong?"

I waved him back inside and wiped my perspiring forehead nervously. "Nothing, Jerry. Please leave him alone. We've had a row."

"What? You and Al? Good old Al. Best of friends. What would you—hic—row about?"

I moved into the hall, pushing Jerry with me, and determinedly shut the door. "It really wasn't important, Jerry. Forget it. Everything will be all right. I don't know how it started. I'm sure he didn't mean it."

"'Course he didn't. I'll speak to him!"

I put an arm around Jerry's shoulders and guided him away. "Come upstairs and soak that head of yours in cold water," I suggested. "You're a little under the weather, old man."

"Never felt better in my life," he protested, stubbornly, pulling loose. "Go upstairs yourself!"

"Okay, if you'll go back to the party."

"A bargain—a bargain, pal."

My head swam. My fingers welcomed the cool, solid support of the stair rail. I started up the deep carpeted steps to the living quarters on the second floor. At the landing, turning to look back, I made sure that Jerry was stumbling back toward the double doors of the main clubroom. Someone had started to play a lively tune on the piano and the crowd was singing. Jerry was singing, too, off key.

My hands still were trembling as I washed them. I hadn't realized how the quarrel with Alfred had frightened me. I had suspected lately that there was something wrong with him, but I hadn't known until tonight that he might become violent.

Through an open window I faced the opposite "L" of the clubhouse, jutting out toward the river on the south side of the garden court. On the far shore slumbered the long wharf at which the river steamers discharged their cargoes of potatoes. Beyond, the lights of the city marched away until they blended and glowed in wisps of fog drifting over the theatrical district in the distance.

The clubhouse had been built for quiet and privacy near the end of a narrow peninsula around which the river made a sharp bend. The building cut across the neck of land so that the rear court on which I looked down was enclosed by the two "L's" and by the river flowing past on the west. It was in this enclosed court that I had left my friend.

I was glad there was no one else on the second floor, and that my absence from the party aroused no attention. The singing and piano playing continued.

But just before I stepped out of the room ten minutes later, the music drifting up the stairs stopped. A man in the hall below was speaking excitedly. A sudden confusion of other voices broke in upon him. A chair overturned.

I ran around the corner of the hall to the top of the stairs and looked down. The speaker had come in through the glass doors from the court.

I didn't recognize him until someone in the startled group in the clubroom doorway noticed me and pointed up. He tilted his head back, and I saw he was John St. Clair, the self-assured young broker and president of the club.

What he had been telling the others I could only guess. Everyone was staring at me in peculiar silence.

I descended the stairway, my fingers sliding uncertainly on the bannister. There were more than twenty in the group facing me, the ladies mostly still inside the clubroom, standing on tiptoe to peek over the shoulders of the men, and they all seemed to be holding their breaths.

"Jerry says you were quarreling with Al," St. Clair announced in a strange tone of voice. "Is that right?"

"It was a personal quarrel," I told him, stopping on the bottom step. "I shouldn't have said anything about it. It doesn't affect the rest of you."

"Oh, yes, it does! I'm sorry, Bill, but you've got to tell us what it was about. You've got to clear yourself—if you can."

"I—I can't tell you."

There was a sharp collective intake of breath.

"What do you mean?" snapped St. Clair. "Don't you know what's happened?"

"Easy!" expostulated Jerry, who had sobered surprisingly. "He's been upstairs. He didn't hear you. Forget what I said about him and —and Al." His voice was rising in pitch. "It doesn't mean a thing. It really doesn't."

I took the last step slowly and mechanically. "What doesn't mean a thing? What's this I don't know about?"

"It's Al." St. Clair turned and pointed through the door toward the court. Even St. Clair, master of most any situation, was upset. "I found him out there by the lily pond—lying—stabbed through the heart!"

Muriel Benson, who with frightened brown eyes had been staring at me from the parlor doorway, gave a weak, far-away cry and collapsed. It was as though a taut string holding her had broken.

Muriel and I, only a year ago, had been engaged to be married. Jerry had won her from me, but it was still a shock to hear me accused of murder.

J. Austin Meanrs To Take Rest

Summersville, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—No more work for J. Austin Meanrs. It'll be sitting in the sun, fishing and plenty of rest for him after this.

Mearns, one of the oldest merchants in the state in point of service, is retiring after sixty-five years of almost unremitting toil. He has spent almost all of it in this Nicholas county town.

Back in 1874 Mearns started in the merchandise business as a driver for his brother. His job was to cart groceries and other staples from Kanawha Falls to Summersville, driving his mule or horse team over road which frequently was axle-deep in mud and in all types of weather.

Three years of that and Mearns became a clerk in the store which his brother operated. Strict frugality and odd jobs enabled him on his salary of $25 a month to purchase the store in 1879.

The store branched out. Additional space was needed and Mearns became a stock trader on the side, dealing in sheep, horses, cattle and other trading.

Going out of business brings its twinges, says Mearns. He looked up from his place behind the counter and remarked:

"That young fellow that was just in here is the fourth generation of his family who has traded with me. I'm going to miss all of that."

But he still looks forward to the long rest.

Vermont derives its name from two French words, verd and mont, meaning "Green Mountains."

Harpers Ferry Park Asked by Randolph

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A Harpers Ferry National Historical park would be created in West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland under a bill introduced by Representative Randolph (D-WVa).

The measure would authorize the secretary of the interior to accept donations of land, buildings or other property within boundaries to be determined. The area which would not exceed 1,500 acres, already has been designated an historical site by Secretary Ickes at Randolph's request.

Included in the park would be Harpers Ferry, W. Va.; John Brown's Fort, the arsenal and surrounding fortifications; Jefferson Rock, where Thomas Jefferson was said to have done much of his writing; Loudoun at Loudoun Heights, across the Shenandoah river in Virginia; Maryland Heights, across the Potomac River in Maryland, and Bolivar Heights, W. Va.

The measure also would authorize a $40,000 appropriation.

Warnings Take Beating

Gallup, N. M. (AP)—The life-size steel dolls, resembling little school girls, which Gallup placed at its school intersections to remind motorists to drive carefully, have taken a beating this winter. Les J. Mahoney, assistant police chief, said two of the dolls were completely destroyed when struck by "careless motorists" and five others were damaged badly.

Harpers Ferry Park Asked by Randolph

Washington, March 7 (AP) — A Harpers Ferry National Historical park would be created in West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland under a bill introduced by Representative Randolph (D-WVa).

The measure would authorize the secretary of the interior to accept donations of land, buildings or other property within boundaries to be determined. The area which would not exceed 1,500 acres, already has been designated an historical site by Secretary Ickes at Randolph's request.

Included in the park would be Harpers Ferry, W. Va.; John Brown's Fort, the arsenal and surrounding fortifications; Jefferson Rock, where Thomas Jefferson was said to have done much of his writing; Loudoun at Loudoun Heights, across the Shenandoah river in Virginia; Maryland Heights, across the Potomac River in Maryland, and Bolivar Heights, W. Va.

The measure also would authorize a $40,000 appropriation.

Warnings Take Beating

Gallup, N. M. (AP)—The life-size steel dolls, resembling little school girls, which Gallup placed at its school intersections to remind motorists to drive carefully, have taken a beating this winter. Les J. Mahoney, assistant police chief, said two of the dolls were completely destroyed when struck by "careless motorists" and five others were damaged badly.

Human Tongue Tells Tales To Physician

Old-Fashioned Practice Still Followed by Many Doctors

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What has become of the oldfashioned practice of looking at the patient's tongue?

Good doctors still look at the tongue, although probably they do not claim to gather as much information from it as the old general practitioner who used to take the temperature, look at the tongue, feel the pulse, look at the skin and call it a day so far as physical examination was concerned.

Like everything else, practice in examination of the tongue brings out a number of things which gain in significance as they are studied. The tongue is a good organ for the household doctor or house mother to study for this reason.

The state of moisture of the tongue is fraught with important information. A dry, brown, furred tongue is of serious import,, whereas the return of moisture and the disappearance of the fur indicate improvement.

Movements Important

The movements of the tongue are of significance. The way in which it is protruded may indicate slight or marked paralysis in elderly people.

The tongue plays an important part in digestion, in mastication and also in the formulation of speech. In health it can be moved quickly or slowly in all directions, protruded straight in the middle line, maintained there and withdrawn. In nervous people the movements of the tongue tend to be made quickly or jerkily. Weakness or exhaustion may cause the tongue to be protruded only slightly on command. In apoplexy half the tongue muscles very frequently are paralyzed so that the healthy half pushes the tongue over towards the affected side.

Tremor of the tongue tremulousness, may be a sign of nervousness in a healthy person or weakness in an exhausted one. It is not infrequently a sign of over-indulgence in alcohol and one that cannot be concealed.

Taste Disorders

Disturbances of taste may occur in fever, in shock and in nerve disease. In facial palsy taste is lost over the anterior two-thirds of the tongue. When the nerve of taste, the glossopharyngeal nerve, is paralyzed, loss of taste occurs over the posterior third of the tongue.

Taste is tested by using the four primary sensations — bitter, sweet, sour and salt, with solutions of quinine, sugar, vinegar and salt.

Coating of the tongue probably has not as much significance as was once believed. It usually meant upset of the stomach or of the digestive tract generally. Of course, a dry tongue, such as occurs in fever and shock, will be accompanied by furring.

Changes in the color of the tongue are important. The bright red, strawberry tongue of scarlet fever may be the first sign of the presence of this disease in a sick infant. The pale, smooth, bald tongue of blood diseases, such as anemia and pellagra, is an important diagnostic sign.

Questions and Answers

T. G.: "Please give me information to prevent the recurrence of rectal fissures. Are these fissures dangerous?"

Answer: Certain people are subject to these no matter whether they have scybalous stools or not. The best plan is to take a heavy ointment, such as rose-water ointment, and annoint the anus before every stool.

LENTEN REDUCING DIET FOR SATURDAY

"Nothing needs reforming like other people's habits."
—Mark Twain

Breakfast: Fruit, cereal, coffee—half a cup with half a cup of warm skimmed milk, with one lump of sugar.

Lunch: One corn muffin with butter; generous helping shredded red cabbage, glass of milk, black coffee or tea with lemon.

Dinner: Consomme, chicken, brussels sprouts, one slice bread with butter; fresh pineapple—six slices; coffee with warm skimmed milk—half and half, and one lump of sugar.

Survey Shows Differing Views About Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Lash week in Washington, D. C., Friend Husband was pinned to a board, even as entomologists exhibit butterflies after scientific study.

This general vivisection was taken in hand by the American Association of University Women, which reported that fifty-seven per cent of the rural husbands, whose wives were polled, were accredited with willingness to assume "some domestic responsibility to free their wives for outside interests," as against forty per cent of city husbands, whose wives answered a questionnaire.

Nobly, city wives flew to the rescue of their husbands by saying this might mean that the city husband's spare time was not as flexible as the farmer's hours.

Not Hastily Done

Of the two surveys, one covered 252 rural women in Michigan, and the other reached 52 groups of college alumnae in cities and small towns. There was nothing hasty about the survey, prepared by Mrs. Harriet Ahlers Houdlette, based on a five-year study of family problems most generally discussed. Mrs. Houdlette is the association in education at the headquarters office of the A. A. U. W. in Washington.

The first four topics discussed were found to be "Power Versus the Human Hand;" "Has the Homemaker Lost Her Job;" "Marriage Upheaval, Whose Fault Is It?" and "There's No Place Like Home."

Other factors discussed were religion of partners, nationality or partners, similarity of social interests, similarity of intellectual interests, age of partners, education of partners, ideals of childhood in respect to material wealth and culture, relations with in-laws, and childhood environment.

Most Important Factor

The country women considered the attitude of their partners toward marriage the most important factor of all, and the sharing of responsibility in marriage, the second most important.

Their city sisters listed these points but not as the most important factors of marital bliss. Town ladies regarded similarity of social interests and similarity of intellectual interests as the most important.

It was discovered that husbands of both the urban and rural classification had become less possessive than in grandad's day. In both groups a majority of the wives were encouraged by their husbands to participate in activities outside the home, and both groups used electricity as a home helper.

Occupations Vary

Naturally the occupations of the husbands in the two groups varied, most of the rural women being married to farmers and most of the A. A. U. W. to business and professional men, both groups, as stated, being in favor of outside interests for their wives. If this generosity on the part of the gentlemen was inspired by desiring a little time for themselves, that question did not arise.

In the discussion on Power Versus the Human Hand, it was revealed that the farm women baked more bread, canned more food, and made more clothes than their urban sisters with college training, and also made more use of the electric washing machine. On wash-day ninety-four per cent of the country women are at work, against seventy-nine per cent of the town women.

Going back to the happy marriage theme, important factors were a similar religion of the partners, similar nationality of partners and congeniality of tastes. Everyone seemed to have a grand time in discussing husbands and marriage, and went back home to her partner in high feather.

Can't Persuade Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

She seems to enjoy my company and treats me swell, though she refuses when it comes to going out with me. What would you suggest is the best way to persuade her to go places?

PERPLEXED.

With almost the entire sex "rarin' fur to go" this lady must have her own reasons for clinging to the hearthstone. If she belongs to a church, how about suggesting she let you go with her to some of the church entertainments? As an entering wedge, you might suggest a movie given at one of the suburban theaters, if her idea of declining to go with you is that she doesn't want the neighbors to know she's "keeping company."

SPEED CHAMPION

Gale Swanson, 13 months old, of Forest Hills, N. Y., poses with her cup after winning the first round of the General Diaper Derby in New York, first of a series to be climaxed by a "world championships finals." Tots up to 14 months are eligible. Contestants who stand up instead of crawling are disqualified.

How To Hold
FALSE TEETH
More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Survey Shows Differing Views About Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Lash week in Washington, D. C., Friend Husband was pinned to a board, even as entomologists exhibit butterflies after scientific study.

This general vivisection was taken in hand by the American Association of University Women, which reported that fifty-seven per cent of the rural husbands, whose wives were polled, were accredited with willingness to assume "some domestic responsibility to free their wives for outside interests," as against forty per cent of city husbands, whose wives answered a questionnaire.

Nobly, city wives flew to the rescue of their husbands by saying this might mean that the city husband's spare time was not as flexible as the farmer's hours.

Not Hastily Done

Of the two surveys, one covered 252 rural women in Michigan, and the other reached 52 groups of college alumnae in cities and small towns. There was nothing hasty about the survey, prepared by Mrs. Harriet Ahlers Houdlette, based on a five-year study of family problems most generally discussed. Mrs. Houdlette is the association in education at the headquarters office of the A. A. U. W. in Washington.

The first four topics discussed were found to be "Power Versus the Human Hand;" "Has the Homemaker Lost Her Job;" "Marriage Upheaval, Whose Fault Is It?" and "There's No Place Like Home."

Other factors discussed were religion of partners, nationality or partners, similarity of social interests, similarity of intellectual interests, age of partners, education of partners, ideals of childhood in respect to material wealth and culture, relations with in-laws, and childhood environment.

Most Important Factor

The country women considered the attitude of their partners toward marriage the most important factor of all, and the sharing of responsibility in marriage, the second most important.

Their city sisters listed these points but not as the most important factors of marital bliss. Town ladies regarded similarity of social interests and similarity of intellectual interests as the most important.

It was discovered that husbands of both the urban and rural classification had become less possessive than in grandad's day. In both groups a majority of the wives were encouraged by their husbands to participate in activities outside the home, and both groups used electricity as a home helper.

Occupations Vary

Naturally the occupations of the husbands in the two groups varied, most of the rural women being married to farmers and most of the A. A. U. W. to business and professional men, both groups, as stated, being in favor of outside interests for their wives. If this generosity on the part of the gentlemen was inspired by desiring a little time for themselves, that question did not arise.

In the discussion on Power Versus the Human Hand, it was revealed that the farm women baked more bread, canned more food, and made more clothes than their urban sisters with college training, and also made more use of the electric washing machine. On wash-day ninety-four per cent of the country women are at work, against seventy-nine per cent of the town women.

Going back to the happy marriage theme, important factors were a similar religion of the partners, similar nationality of partners and congeniality of tastes. Everyone seemed to have a grand time in discussing husbands and marriage, and went back home to her partner in high feather.

Can't Persuade Her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

She seems to enjoy my company and treats me swell, though she refuses when it comes to going out with me. What would you suggest is the best way to persuade her to go places?

PERPLEXED.

With almost the entire sex "rarin' fur to go" this lady must have her own reasons for clinging to the hearthstone. If she belongs to a church, how about suggesting she let you go with her to some of the church entertainments? As an entering wedge, you might suggest a movie given at one of the suburban theaters, if her idea of declining to go with you is that she doesn't want the neighbors to know she's "keeping company."

How To Hold FALSE TEETH More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Alumni Planning Farewell Party At Beall High

All Classes, Beginning with 1896, Will Participate

Frostburg, March 7—The moving of Beall high school from the present group of buildings on East Loo street to the new quarter million dollar structure now being erected on Eckhart Flat this coming summer will be an occasion of mingled joy and sorrow for Frostburgers, young and old—joy for the present students who are eager to avail themselves of the privileges and modern appointments of the new building and sorrow for the alumni whose happiest days in most instances were spent in the halls and class rooms and on the play grounds of the present school.

For the purpose of renewing old friendships and reviving the pleasant memories of school days in the old buildings soon to be but a memory so far as high school activities are concerned, a home-coming of Beall high school students of former years is being planned for June 14, 15 and 16, with Prof. James E. Spitznas, a member of the class of 1911, a former principal of the school and the present state supervisor of secondary high schools of Maryland, as general chairman.

The general program for the three-day celebration will be in charge of a committee consisting of Mrs. Thomas W. Price, chairman; Richard T. Rizer, Walter Jeffries, Thomas G. Davis, Principal Arthur W. Taylor, Miss Leviah Daniels, Miss Katherine Close, and Beverly Hayes.

Committee chairmen who will name their assistants are: Ralph M. Race, dance; Thomas G. Davis, assembly program; Miss Sally Price and Miss Gertrude Williams, pageants; Earl Metger, banquet; Mrs. Margaret Minnick, publicity; Miss Leviah Daniells, registration; Lee Morgan, of Hagerstown, and Miss Katherine Close, decorations; Walter E. Jeffries and Richard T. Rizer, finances.

Class reunion chairmen already named are as follows: 1896, Mrs. Grace J. Graham; 1898, Miss Nan Jeffries; 1900, Mrs. A. Charles Stewart; 1901, Miss Eva H. Jeffries; 1906, Mrs. Thomas W. Price; 1907, Mrs. Robert Llewellyn; 1908, Miss Bessie Carson; 1909, Mrs. Bernadette Sweitzer; 1910, Mrs. Thomas Lewis; 1911, Mrs. Rachel Runn; 1912, Miss Marie Donahue; 1913, F. Earle Krietzburg; 1914, Miss Agnes Howat; 1915, Mrs. Frederick Boettner; 1916, James Chambers; 1917, Mrs. Arch Davis; 1918, Mrs. Earl Ward; 1919, Miss Sarah Wright; 1920, Miss Datha Thomas; 1921, Mrs. Martin Hartig; 1922, Noel S. Cook; 1923, Miss Margaret Jones; 1924, Richard MacMannis; 1925, Joseph Downey; 1928, Thomas G. Davies; 1929, Mrs. Ralph M. Race; 1930, Miss Mary Hanson; 1931, Miss Helen Prichard; 1932, Miss Laura Lyons; 1933, Miss Sally Price; 1934, Mrs. Howard Ward; 1935, William J. Elvin, Jr.; 1936, Miss Margaret Hohing; 1937, Miss Mary Wilson; 1938, Miss Isabelle McKenzie and 1939, Beverly Hayes.

There were no graduating classes in 1897, 1899, 1903, 1904, or 1905.

Mrs. Harriett Finzel Dies

Mrs. Harriett Finzel, widow of Edward Finzel, died Thursday afternoon at her home in Finzel, Garrett county, after a long illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Finzel was a native of Mt. Savage and lived for several years in Frostburg. She was a member of Salem Reformed church in Frostburg.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Henry Burkhart, of Mt. Savage, Mrs. John Warner, of Finzel, and Mrs. Ira Finzel, Frostburg; two sons, George Finzel, of Finzel, and Joseph Finzel, of Mt. Savage; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Hice, of Mt. Savage; and two brothers, James Jenkins, of Mt. Savage, and Samuel Jenkins, of Cumberland.

Jaycees Plan Dance

The Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce has completed plans for its first annual spring dance to be held April 5 at the Clary Club. This is scheduled to be the first of a series of dances by the Jaycees, and a number of fun provoking innovations have been planned for the opening dance.

Miss Jeffries Honored

A picture of Miss Jane Jeffries, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter E. Jeffries, this city, appeared last Sunday in a Birmingham, Ala., newspaper, receiving a silver loving cup an award from Howard College where Miss Jeffries has been a student since she graduated from Beall high school with the class of 1939.

Miss Jeffries, a pledge of the Beta Sigma Omiorom Sororiety at Howard college, was presented with a silver loving cup, given each year to the outstanding freshman of the Chapter, the presentation being a feature event of the annual initiation banquet given by the Birmingham alumnae group.

The cup was awarded to Miss Jeffries, Monday evening, Feb. 26, by Mrs. Alfred Mitchell, alumnae pledge advisor, at Highland Terrace Gardens where the annual banquet was held. Miss Alibane Kight, vice-president of the Chapter, made the presentation.

While a student at Beall high school, Miss Jeffries was active in the Dance Club, the Girls' Glee Club, Math Club, was one of the performers in the Mountain Minstrels, and took part in the track meet in her freshmen and sophomore years.

ROYALTY ON VIEW

Archduke Otto

In the United States to "study democracy at work," the Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, 27-year-old pretender to the non-existent throne of a non-existent Austro-Hungary, is shown in his New York hotel room. Interviewed by newsmen, the archduke indicated he refuses to mix pleasure with his serious business in America.

Frostburg Briefs

At the meeting of Frostburg Lodge, No. 470, B. P. O. Elks, held Tuesday evening, the following nominations for the various offices were made for the ensuing year: William W. Sluss, Jr., exalted ruler; Thomas G. Davis, leading knight; Richard Holben, loyal knight; Robert Lemmert, lecturing knight; John L. Casey, treasurer; Joseph M. Condon, secretary; Duncan E. Shaffer, tiler; Maxwell Mathias, trustee for three years; W. W. Sluss, Jr., representative to the grand lodge at Dallas, Tex., and John Durst, alternate Frank R. Keane is the retiring exalted ruler and William Jeffries and Samuel Walker are the hold-over trustees.

Mrs. Leslie Brode's Sunday school class of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church will hold a bake sale Saturday at the Gift Shop, Broadway.

Frostburg Chapter, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a dance Saturday night at their headquarters, Betz building, East Main street. Music will be furnished by the Marylanders. The committee in charge of the dances is arranging to have floor shows as a feature of its Saturday night dances which are being held for charity work among World war veterans and their dependants.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard Martin, Clarysville, entertained Monday night in honor of their daughter, the occasion being her fourteenth birthday. The guests included Wilda Eisel, Buddy Skidmore, Ralph Michaels, Pauline Briner, Jack Hayes, Mary and Bertha Clise, Wanda Plummer, Louis Wilson, James Harper, Joan Hess, Jack Williams, William Donahue, Emma Eisentrout, Daniel McMurdo, Marie, Margaret, Agnes and Thomas Martin.

The Senior Baptist Young People's Union of First English Baptist church entertained with an Easter tea as the feature of its March meeting, the event being held in the parsonage, with Mrs. Melvin Libengood and Mrs. C. B. Jones, wife of the pastor, serving. The devotions were in charge of the Rev. C. B. Jones and Miss Betty Libengood.

Much fun was occasioned by a display of Easter bonnets by the girls and spring neckties by the men. Miss Betty Libengood won the prize for the funniest Easter bonnet and Howard Geary for the loudest necktie.

The Brotherhood of the First English Baptist church will hold a special meeting Friday night at 7:30 at the church when the Rev. E. S. Price, of Cumberland, will speak.

Principal Foots Bills as Cagers Dine, See Movie

Arthur F. Smith Host to Coney Basketball Team on Old Promise

Lonaconing, March 7 — Principal Arthur F. Smith was host last night to members of the Central high school boys basketball team, when he treated the members to a chicken dinner and a movie at Cumberland.

Quite a few years ago the principal promised the boys a chicken dinner if it would defeat Allegany high. They did it this year, and the principal came through with his part of the bargain last night.

Mr. Smith stated that this year was the most successful campaign in his memory for at least thirteen years. The team won sixteen and lost seven games this year.

Short talks were made by Bill Main, honorary captain of this year's team, and Coach Melvin "Newt" Henry. Other guests were Dundas Orr, John Muster, Gus Frizzell, Calvin James, George Eichhorn, Thomas Timney, Jack Getty, Harry Dixon, John Hohing and Charles Cook, members of the squad; John Jaugen of the faculty; and Gene Gunning, sports editor of the Evening Times.

The party attended the showing of "Grapes of Wrath" at the Strand theater following the dinner.

Former Resident Dies

Frederick W. Udy, formerly of Lonaconing died Feb 25, at Bluefield, W. Va., of a cerebral hemorrhage, it was learned here today.

Mr. Udy was the manager of a wholesale grocery company at the West Virginia city.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Katherine Fouple Udy; a daughter, Gladys; a son, Paul; and two grandchildren.

Scholarship Announced

It was announced at Central high school that Strayer Business college, Washington, D. C., is again offering a scholarship of one years' tuition to a senior of the high schools in Allegany and Garrett counties on the basis of an examination to be conducted March 16.

Mary Blair, a graduate of Central in June, 1939, is now the beneficiary of a scholarship awarded last year.

Lonaconing Briefs

Miss Eleanor Turnbull, Detmold street, is visiting her sister, Miss Janet Marie Turnbull, Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ambrose visited in Pearisburg, Va., and returned yesterday.

Mrs. D. A. Edwards, East Main street, left yesterday to visit in Westminister.

Disabled River Steamer Aided in Time To Prevent Crackup

Point Pleasant, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Whistled distress signals from a disabled river steamer brought another craft to her aid today in time to prevent a crash into the rollers of the big Gallipolis dam.

The Slack Barrett blew a cylinder head as the large boat steamed upstream less than a half-mile above the dam. The swift current carried her back toward the dam.

Captain Homer Varian of the Julius Fleischman heard the frantic whistle blasts, cut loose his tow and sped to the aid of the Slack Barrett, pulling it to shore before it drifted into the rollers.

Chief Engineer Russell Stone of the Barrett, Point Pleasant, broke his ankle when he leaped ashore to fasten a line.

Boy Dies after Fall

Webster Springs, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Feldon Armentrout, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Armentrout, of Excelsior, died from injuries received in a fall down a flight of steps.

Cause of Mine Blast Unknown

Coal Company Official Testifies Before Coroner's Jury

Bartley, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—A former U. S. Bureau of Mines employe testifying at a coroner's inquest today, said he found "no evidence that machinery had caused" the blast which killed ninety-one men in Bartley No. 1 mine last January 10.

The witness, Jess Redyard, identified himself as safety inspector of the Koppers Company, formerly attached to a U. S. Bureau of Mines rescue car and formerly chief of the Arkansas State Mines Department.

Says Blast Due to Gas

Redyard said he "did not know" what caused the explosion, but declared it was a result of gas and that "very little" dust was involved.

W. H. Prentice, inspector for the Pocahontas Fuel Company, and a former district inspector of the State Mines Department, testified the explosion occurred in No. 6 heading and "could not" have centered in "third left," where earlier testimony had made reference to a splendid cable.

Throughout today's testimony, no mention was made directly to a U. S. Bureau of Mines report which placed the probable cause of the disaster upon sparks from "faulty electrical equipment."

'Propaganda' Use Charged

(Secretary Ickes was accused by the American Mining Congress in a statement of having released the Bureau of Mines' report for "propaganda" purposes in behalf of a bill to provide federal inspection of all coal mines).

Raymond E. S. Salvati, vice-president of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Company, which operates Bartley No. 1, asserted at the inquest called by Coroner J. A. Bennett of McDowell county, that the cause of the blast remained undetermined.

Salvati said it was decided the blast, occurred in No. 6 heading.

Smoking Hinted

Chester Ritchie and Robert Ritchie, brothers, said they worked at Bartley No. 1 mine between August and December, 1939.

Chester declared he "once smelled tobacco smoke" in the mine but could not specify the exact time, while his brother said he once saw a miner about to go underground slipping cigarettes into his trouser's leg.

Both inspectors Prentice and Redyard, asked a direct question, said the explosion "could" have been caused by smoking.

N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state mines department, Rolla D. Campbell, attorney for the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Company which operates the mine, and Dr. Bennett questioned Salvati, who directed rescue operations in the country's worst mien disaster in ten years.

Personal Inspection

Salvati said he made a personal inspection January 24, accompanied by Rhinehart, C. E. McCall of the U. S. Bureau of Mines and others. He said:

"In my judgment, the explosion was caused by the ignition of gas in the No. 6 heading and it carried over into the third left and fourth right."

There had been a roof fall in No. 6 sometime during the day of January 10, he added, and that might have released a gas pocket.

Cables in Good Shape

The Pond Creek official testified all cables from batteries, motors and cutting machines were found in good shape. One sliced cable was discovered but there was no evidence of fusing or burning. The body of the shotfirer was in such a position as to indicate he had not been 'shooting" coal at the time of the explosion.

Neither was there evidence that any miners had been smoking, Salvati said, although two unsmoked cigarettes an da burned match were found in one man's pockets.

Former General Manager E. J. Stolling, of Bartley No. 1, and H. S. Schweinberg, safety director, testified briefly.

Dr. Frank Butler Trotter Dies At His Home in Morgantown

Morgantown, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Dr. Frank Butler Trotter, 77, educator who served for twelve years as president of West Virginia University, died today of a heart ailment.

A short time after the retired professor died at 4 a. m. his wife suffered a stroke and relatives said her condition was serious.

Dr. Trotter, who gave up last fall the position as Latin professor he had held since leaving the presidency in 1928, became seriously ill last week and physicians ordered hi mto bed for three months.

He was born in Washington county, O., coming to Preston county at the age of thirteen. He began teaching in Preston county when he was twenty but later entered Roanoke College and was graduated in 1890 at the head of his class. He went to Harvard in 1891-92.

Dr. Trotter became professor of Latin and modern languages at the West Virginia Conference Seminary, now West Virginia Wesleyan College, after graduating from Roanoke and served as vice president in 1894 and acting president in 1898.

He was appointed professor of Latin at the University in 1907, was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences from 1911-16, serving as acting president from 1914-16.

Dr. Trotter was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Gamma Delta fraternities and was a prominent lay member of the Methodist Episcopal church. He was a delegate to the general M. E. Conference in 1900, 1912, 1916 and 1920.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian List Steele Trotter, formerly of Buckhannon; one son, L. Steele Trotter, Charleston attorney; a sister, Miss Jessie Trotter, member of the Shepherd State College faculty, Shepherdstown; and a brother, Milo H. Trotter, of Washington, D. C.

Five Fined for Taking Unemployment Benefits While Earning Wages

Huntington, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Five men, charged with receiving unemployment benefits while earning wages, in violation of the West Virginia unemployment compensation law, were fined $10 to $30 each today by Magistrate Ezra Midkiff.

In addition, all were directed to return to the compensation funds the sums received since the start of their reemployment.

J. A. Bilby, Jr., attorney for the compensation department, described the penalties as "lenient." He added that in most cases violations were believed due to misunderstanding of the law.

Alumni Planning Farewell Party At Beall High

All Classes, Beginning with 1896, Will Participate

Frostburg, March 7—The moving of Beall high school from the present group of buildings on East Loo street to the new quarter million dollar structure now being erected on Eckhart Flat this coming summer will be an occasion of mingled joy and sorrow for Frostburgers, young and old—joy for the present students who are eager to avail themselves of the privileges and modern appointments of the new building and sorrow for the alumni whose happiest days in most instances were spent in the halls and class rooms and on the play grounds of the present school.

For the purpose of renewing old friendships and reviving the pleasant memories of school days in the old buildings soon to be but a memory so far as high school activities are concerned, a home-coming of Beall high school students of former years is being planned for June 14, 15 and 16, with Prof. James E. Spitznas, a member of the class of 1911, a former principal of the school and the present state supervisor of secondary high schools of Maryland, as general chairman.

The general program for the three-day celebration will be in charge of a committee consisting of Mrs. Thomas W. Price, chairman; Richard T. Rizer, Walter Jeffries, Thomas G. Davis, Principal Arthur W. Taylor, Miss Leviah Daniels, Miss Katherine Close, and Beverly Hayes.

Committee chairmen who will name their assistants are: Ralph M. Race, dance; Thomas G. Davis, assembly program; Miss Sally Price and Miss Gertrude Williams, pageants; Earl Metger, banquet; Mrs. Margaret Minnick, publicity; Miss Leviah Daniells, registration; Lee Morgan, of Hagerstown, and Miss Katherine Close, decorations; Walter E. Jeffries and Richard T. Rizer, finances.

Class reunion chairmen already named are as follows: 1896, Mrs. Grace J. Graham; 1898, Miss Nan Jeffries; 1900, Mrs. A. Charles Stewart; 1901, Miss Eva H. Jeffries; 1906, Mrs. Thomas W. Price; 1907, Mrs. Robert Llewellyn; 1908, Miss Bessie Carson; 1909, Mrs. Bernadette Sweitzer; 1910, Mrs. Thomas Lewis; 1911, Mrs. Rachel Runn; 1912, Miss Marie Donahue; 1913, F. Earle Krietzburg; 1914, Miss Agnes Howat; 1915, Mrs. Frederick Boettner; 1916, James Chambers; 1917, Mrs. Arch Davis; 1918, Mrs. Earl Ward; 1919, Miss Sarah Wright; 1920, Miss Datha Thomas; 1921, Mrs. Martin Hartig; 1922, Noel S. Cook; 1923, Miss Margaret Jones; 1924, Richard MacMannis; 1925, Joseph Downey; 1928, Thomas G. Davies; 1929, Mrs. Ralph M. Race; 1930, Miss Mary Hanson; 1931, Miss Helen Prichard; 1932, Miss Laura Lyons; 1933, Miss Sally Price; 1934, Mrs. Howard Ward; 1935, William J. Elvin, Jr.; 1936, Miss Margaret Hohing; 1937, Miss Mary Wilson; 1938, Miss Isabelle McKenzie and 1939, Beverly Hayes.

There were no graduating classes in 1897, 1899, 1903, 1904, or 1905.

Jaycees Plan Dance

The Frostburg Junior Chamber of Commerce has completed plans for its first annual spring dance to be held April 5 at the Clary Club. This is scheduled to be the first of a series of dances by the Jaycees, and a number of fun provoking innovations have been planned for the opening dance.

Miss Jeffries Honored

A picture of Miss Jane Jeffries, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter E. Jeffries, this city, appeared last Sunday in a Birmingham, Ala., newspaper, receiving a silver loving cup an award from Howard College where Miss Jeffries has been a student since she graduated from Beall high school with the class of 1939.

Miss Jeffries, a pledge of the Beta Sigma Omiorom Sororiety at Howard college, was presented with a silver loving cup, given each year to the outstanding freshman of the Chapter, the presentation being a feature event of the annual initiation banquet given by the Birmingham alumnae group.

The cup was awarded to Miss Jeffries, Monday evening, Feb. 26, by Mrs. Alfred Mitchell, alumnae pledge advisor, at Highland Terrace Gardens where the annual banquet was held. Miss Alibane Kight, vice-president of the Chapter, made the presentation.

While a student at Beall high school, Miss Jeffries was active in the Dance Club, the Girls' Glee Club, Math Club, was one of the performers in the Mountain Minstrels, and took part in the track meet in her freshmen and sophomore years.

Dr. Frank Butler Trotter Dies At His Home in Morgantown

Morgantown, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Dr. Frank Butler Trotter, 77, educator who served for twelve years as president of West Virginia University, died today of a heart ailment.

A short time after the retired professor died at 4 a. m. his wife suffered a stroke and relatives said her condition was serious.

Dr. Trotter, who gave up last fall the position as Latin professor he had held since leaving the presidency in 1928, became seriously ill last week and physicians ordered hi mto bed for three months.

He was born in Washington county, O., coming to Preston county at the age of thirteen. He began teaching in Preston county when he was twenty but later entered Roanoke College and was graduated in 1890 at the head of his class. He went to Harvard in 1891-92.

Dr. Trotter became professor of Latin and modern languages at the West Virginia Conference Seminary, now West Virginia Wesleyan College, after graduating from Roanoke and served as vice president in 1894 and acting president in 1898.

He was appointed professor of Latin at the University in 1907, was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences from 1911-16, serving as acting president from 1914-16.

Dr. Trotter was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Gamma Delta fraternities and was a prominent lay member of the Methodist Episcopal church. He was a delegate to the general M. E. Conference in 1900, 1912, 1916 and 1920.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian List Steele Trotter, formerly of Buckhannon; one son, L. Steele Trotter, Charleston attorney; a sister, Miss Jessie Trotter, member of the Shepherd State College faculty, Shepherdstown; and a brother, Milo H. Trotter, of Washington, D. C.

Funeral serrvices will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Wesleyan Methodist church, of which he was a trustee.

Cause of Mine Blast Unknown

Coal Company Official Testifies Before Coroner's Jury

Bartley, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—A former U. S. Bureau of Mines employe testifying at a coroner's inquest today, said he found "no evidence that machinery had caused" the blast which killed ninety-one men in Bartley No. 1 mine last January 10.

The witness, Jess Redyard, identified himself as safety inspector of the Koppers Company, formerly attached to a U. S. Bureau of Mines rescue car and formerly chief of the Arkansas State Mines Department.

Says Blast Due to Gas

Redyard said he "did not know" what caused the explosion, but declared it was a result of gas and that "very little" dust was involved.

W. H. Prentice, inspector for the Pocahontas Fuel Company, and a former district inspector of the State Mines Department, testified the explosion occurred in No. 6 heading and "could not" have centered in "third left," where earlier testimony had made reference to a splendid cable.

Throughout today's testimony, no mention was made directly to a U. S. Bureau of Mines report which placed the probable cause of the disaster upon sparks from "faulty electrical equipment."

'Propaganda' Use Charged

(Secretary Ickes was accused by the American Mining Congress in a statement of having released the Bureau of Mines' report for "propaganda" purposes in behalf of a bill to provide federal inspection of all coal mines).

Raymond E. S. Salvati, vice-president of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Company, which operates Bartley No. 1, asserted at the inquest called by Coroner J. A. Bennett of McDowell county, that the cause of the blast remained undetermined.

Salvati said it was decided the blast, occurred in No. 6 heading.

Smoking Hinted

Chester Ritchie and Robert Ritchie, brothers, said they worked at Bartley No. 1 mine between August and December, 1939.

Chester declared he "once smelled tobacco smoke" in the mine but could not specify the exact time, while his brother said he once saw a miner about to go underground slipping cigarettes into his trouser's leg.

Both inspectors Prentice and Redyard, asked a direct question, said the explosion "could" have been caused by smoking.

N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state mines department, Rolla D. Campbell, attorney for the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Company which operates the mine, and Dr. Bennett questioned Salvati, who directed rescue operations in the country's worst mien disaster in ten years.

Personal Inspection

Salvati said he made a personal inspection January 24, accompanied by Rhinehart, C. E. McCall of the U. S. Bureau of Mines and others. He said:

"In my judgment, the explosion was caused by the ignition of gas in the No. 6 heading and it carried over into the third left and fourth right."

There had been a roof fall in No. 6 sometime during the day of January 10, he added, and that might have released a gas pocket.

Cables in Good Shape

The Pond Creek official testified all cables from batteries, motors and cutting machines were found in good shape. One sliced cable was discovered but there was no evidence of fusing or burning. The body of the shotfirer was in such a position as to indicate he had not been 'shooting" coal at the time of the explosion.

Neither was there evidence that any miners had been smoking, Salvati said, although two unsmoked cigarettes an da burned match were found in one man's pockets.

Former General Manager E. J. Stolling, of Bartley No. 1, and H. S. Schweinberg, safety director, testified briefly.

Five Fined for Taking Unemployment Benefits While Earning Wages

Huntington, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Five men, charged with receiving unemployment benefits while earning wages, in violation of the West Virginia unemployment compensation law, were fined $10 to $30 each today by Magistrate Ezra Midkiff.

In addition, all were directed to return to the compensation funds the sums received since the start of their reemployment.

J. A. Bilby, Jr., attorney for the compensation department, described the penalties as "lenient." He added that in most cases violations were believed due to misunderstanding of the law.

Train Victim Dies

Charleston, W. Va., March 7 (AP)—Mrs. Ida Mae Simmons, 36, of Charleston, mother of six children, died today seven hours after she was struck by a train. Her husband, Walter Simmons, who identified the body, said she left home yesterday to sell a piece of property.

Veteran Members Of Fire Company Feted at Oakland

Turkey Dinner Held To Mark Department's 15th Anniversary

Oakland, March 7 — Nineteen members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, Inc., were honored at the fifteenth anniversary celebration held Tuesday night at the Manhattan hotel for their continuous service to the community and organization over a long period of years. Other members of the department were also recognized for their years of service and activity.

The occasion was observed with a turkey dinner to which members of the fire company and about twenty-five other citizens of the community were invited. About sixty-five attended.

An organization to fight fires in Oakland had been active at various times since 1894, but was not officially formed until fifteen years ago, in the early spring of 1925.

Those who had been charter members of the company and who are still members received the maximum of three 5-year stars and included Edward A. Shaffer, president; Walter W. Dawson, Emory Bolden, John J. Sweeney, James Carney, Eugene Carney, Leo Helbig, W. L. Davis, L. M. Fraley, A. G. Gortner, William Gower, James Hart, Grover C. Stemple, C. Milton Sincell, Howard P. Stuck, Robert Wolfe, Ernest Townshend Sr., Arthur Lawton, William R. Browning. Mr. Browning in a brief speech, accepted the honors for the entire group.

Those having been members for ten years, who received two 5-year stars were James Kerins, James Lewis, Ernest Townshend Jr., Frank Blake and Abraham Lawton.

Those having been members for five years and who received one star, included Lee R. Mason, Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Michael Maroney, Howard White, Robert Lohr, Clarence Spear, Paul Turney, Ralph T. Thayer, Charles C. "Dick" Helbig, and Robert Stanton.

Membership cards were presented to John Criss, Joseph Stanton, George T. Kerins, Michael DeWitt, A. G. Hesen, Richard Glotfelty and Bud Lewis.

Walter W. Dawson, as toastmaster called on Grover Stemple, assistant chief, as a representative of the fire company and the following as representatives of the groups present: Blaine Giessman, for the County Commissioners; Clifford Friend, State Senator; F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools; Neil C. Fraley, State's attorney, for enforcement officers; Dr. C. Oscar Hall, mayor of Mt. Lake Park; George Hanst, for the press; and Julius C. Renninger, for the town council.

The Oakland Fire company has an investment of $19,000 in its trucks and equipment and during the past fifteen years has answered an average of thirty-three calls annually for a total of 418. Drownings, various calls for resuscitation of individuals overcome by gas and other causes, and journeys to places as far distant as twenty-five miles were pointed out by Dr. Dawson.

Sanish War Veteran Dies

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Simon Myers, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, who died of pneumonia Tuesday evening at the home of his brother on Oak street. Services were in charge of the Rev. A. B. Leamer, D. D., pastor of the Lutheran church. Interment was in Oakland cemetery with members of Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion, in charge of final rites at the grave.

Mr. Myers was 76. When hostilities between the United States and Spain began, he enlisted as a private in the First Maryland Infantry and served from June until February of the following year, being honorably discharged from the service at the close of the war.

Sportsmen Meet Tonight To Map Recommendation

Grantsville Group To Prepare for Federation Meeting Sunday

Grantsville, March 7—Members of the Grantsville sportsmens organization have received an invitation to attend a meeting of the Western Maryland Out-door Life Federation at the Y. M. C. A. in Cumberland Sunday afternoon.

Representatives of the local group are asked to be present to make recommendations for any changes they wish in the present state fish and game laws governing Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

In order to comply with this request, J. Urban Stanton, president of the Grantsville unit of the Garrett County Sportsmens Association, has called a special meeting of members in this community for Friday evening. The purpose of the meeting, which is to be held in the Woodmen Building, is to make a study of the fish and game laws of Maryland in order that delegates may be named to make recommendations for any changes desired. Any other persons interested are invited to sit in at this meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association is scheduled to be held at Friendsville Monday evening and a number of local members plan to attend. The Grantsville unit will hold its monthly meeting as usual on Tuesday evening, March 12.

Ladies Aid Meets

Misses Clara and Leanna Layman entertained the Mt. Zion Ladies' Aid Society last evening at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Layman, Long Stretch. Miss Leanna Layman presided, and Mrs. Scott Layman and the Rev. D. R. Carder participated in the devotionals. Miss Leanna Layman presided over the meeting. A committee comprised of Miss W. Zeola Layman, Miss Laura Turner, Mrs. Marshall Layman, Mrs. Charles Durst and Mrs. Henry Michael, was appointed to arrange a program for the purpose of raising funds.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Carder, Mrs. Grace Jenkins, Miss Ethel Simpson, Miss Margaret Trozzo and Miss Geraldine Carder were guests in addition to the sixteen members present. A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served. The society will meet again Wednesday evening, April 3, at the home of Mrs. Marshall Layman.

Community Club Program

The Grantsville Community Club met with Mrs. C. C. Beachy at her home here yesterday afternoon.

Miss Mildred Barton, county home demonstration agent, Oakland, was present and chose as the topic for her discussion and demonstration, "Kitchen Background," bringing out the most suitable colors for walls floor coverings, etc. Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer, peace chairman, gave her report and presented a letter which is received each month from a peace organization at Washington. Because of its length it was not read, but instead will be circulated among the members .

A poem, "Song of the Homemaker," which had been composed by a member of the Allegany County Homemakers Club, was read and received much favorable comment.

A social hour followed the meeting during which refreshments was served. Mrs. A. Emmons Warnick was the only guest present in addition to the eleven members who attended. Mrs. Raymond Klotz will entertain at the April meeting, when the topic will be "Cleaning Methods in the Home."

4-H Meets Tonight

The meeting of the 4-H Club scheduled for last night was again postponed and will be held instead on Friday evening in the Firemen's quarter.

Crop-Feed Loans Now Available

Tucker Farmers May Apply at Parsons Office Tuesday Afternoon

Parsons, W. Va., March 7—It was announced here today that emergency crop and feed loans are now available to farmers in Tucker county. Applications for these loans will be received at the county agent's office next Tuesday from 2 to 3 p. m. by H. B. McPherson, field supervisor.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source. As in former years, the money lent will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Indictments Returned

The following felony indictments were returned by the grand jury here yesterday:

Lee Reed and Walter Fox, cattle rustling; Joseph Turner, statutory rape; Clarence Gallagher and William Shears, two indictments, breaking and entering Davis Coal & Coke Company stores in the upper end of the county; and Owen McDaniel, assault and battery.

Misdemeanor indictments were returned against Wayne and Wade Hebb for game law violations.

Former Resident Dies

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Harry K. Grubb, 74, former official of the Parsons tannery, who died at his home in Indianapolis, Ind., where he has been engaged in the automobile business. He lived in Parsons for many years and was well known here.

Parsons Briefs

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Harper was completely destroyed by fire yesterday at Dry Fork. Details of the fire have not been received except that all contents were destroyed.

The Petersburg Kiwanis Club basketball team defeated the Parsons Kiwanis Club here last night by a score of 46-45. The Parsons club defeated the visitors at Petersburg earlier this season.

Welfare Official To Be Transferred

Executive Secretary of Garrett Board Named to Baltimore Post

Oakland, March 7—At a meeting of the County Welfare Board this week, the members present approved the request of the State Department of Welfare for the transfer of Miss Ethel A. Miller, executive secretary, to the position of field supervisor in the state office in Baltimore. This transfer of Miss Miller will take place as soon as a successor can be secured through the Civil Service office, it was announced, probably about April 1.

Miss Miller has been executive secretary of the Welfare Board here since August, 1933. Her new position is an advancement for her.

The financial report given at the meeting showed that $12,800.57 had been disbursed during February, divided as follows: General public assistance, $1,502.47; old age assistance, $5,980.92; aid to dependent children, $3,022.68; needy blind, $171.00; foster homes, $220.87; administration, $1,763.90; child welfare service, $138.73.

Mt. Savage Chapter Honors Charter Members at Special Program

Mt. Savage, March 7 — Rebecca Arnold Chapter No. 57 of the Eastern Star celebrated its eighteenth anniversary Tuesday evening in the Junior Order hall. Seven charter members of the organization, were guests of honor.

The chapter was organized March 13, 1922, and Mrs. Anna Uhl was elected the first worthy matron. Charter members who attended were Mrs. Minnie Sweene, Mrs. Anna Uhl, Mrs. Mary Pollock, Mrs. Mary Koontz, Mrs. Agnes Crump and Mrs. Adam Rice.

A special program, consisting of songs, recitations and drills, was given by the members. A candle was burned for each deceased charter member.

Mrs. Minnie Sweene, Mrs. Emily Wilson, Mrs. Mary Koontz, Mrs. Etta Daniels, Mrs. Minnie Lashley, Mrs. Florence Best, Miss LaVerne Uhl and Miss Gertrude Haus were honored as past worthy matrons. Mrs. Pearl Sampson presided as present worthy matron.

Quiz Program

A meeting of the Catholic Youth Club wes held Wednesday evening in the Knights of Columbus Hall. The Rev. Francis J. Egan conducted an oral quiz, which was won by Miss Mary Jo Logsdon.

Farmers Meet

R. F. McHenry, county farm agent, gave an address Wednesday evening in the Mt. Savage high school auditorium, explaining to a group of district farmers the benefits which may be had under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program for Allegany county. He said that the chief aim of the program was to conserve and cultivate farmlands in this area. Within the next few weeks a session will be held in the auditorium at which the farmers may draw up farm plans and submit them for approval.

Mt. Savage Briefs

An educational and instructional motion picture featured the entertainment of the Parent-Teacher Association meeting last evening. The picture showed principal news events of the preceding year.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caldara, Roanoke, Va., are visiting Mrs. Minnie Caldara and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Finzel.

Church Honored

A certificate of honor for having fulfilled its quota in the Million Unit Followship Movement has been awarded St. Paul's Methodist church in Oakland, according to Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor. The local church is one of approximately 1,500 churches, over 7.5 percent of the denomination's 20,000 congregations in the United States, which have already reached their goals.

This is the second consecutive year that the local church has been thus honored.

Quotas for the individual churches were set when the movement, now in its third year, was inaugurated and were based on a communion-wide goal of 500,000 "units"—persons who will subscribe one dollar a month as well as undertake the spiritual obligations of the fellowship. Thus far the movement has added more than $1,370,000 to the church income for missions and benevolences.

Farm Benefits

Another group of checks for forty-eight farmers in connection with the 1939 soil conservation program has been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent. The additional checks total $1,687.98 and make a total of 480 persons in the county who have received an aggregate of $18,152.82.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SEE THE LITTLE CARDS

FAILURE to note the size of the small cards, and make the logical inferences from them, can prove as costly to you as failure to notice what suit has been led and therefore suffer a revoke penalty. Many a time your partner's lead may prove that he has not a four-card suit and consequently enable you to count the number of cards in the suit held by the declarer. That knowledge, added to what you already know, may enable you to deduce other important facts and point the way to correct defense.

3 ♦	Pass	4 ♦	Pass

South's only possible excuse for his bidding was that he rated himself as a fine player of the cards and his opponents as very weak on defense. He was right on half of his hypothesis.

West led the heart 9 to the K, South playing the Q. East next took his heart A, South playing the J and West the 6. He then led his diamond 3. South ran three trumps, the spade Q and J, entered dummy with the heart 10 and ran three more spades, discarding all of his clubs and making five-odd.

East defended his diamond return, arguing that he feared South had the club A, in which event a club switch would have cost a trick. His safe return was a heart. Had West held four hearts, his correct lead would have been the fourth-best 3. So either South had one more heart, making the 10 a dangerous entry to dummy, or two more, in which event West could have ruffed a third heart lead. West's failure to open the heart 3 originally was the key to the hand and, if read rightly, would have resulted in a two-trick set.

Petersburg Scouts To Meet Friday

South Branch Committee Calls Meeting at Hermitage

Petersburg, W. Va., March 7 — Boy Scout leaders of the South Branch District Committee will meet at the Hermitage hotel Friday night at 7:45. Notice of this meeting is being sent the committee by W. B. Michael, Romney, district chairman.

The Petersburg Kiwanis club, sponsor for the Boy Scout troop here, of which Leonard Smith is scoutmaster, is having its regular weekly meeting just prior to this business meeting of the Boy Scout leaders. And scout leader who desires to join with the Kiwanis club for dinner may do so by notifying the Hermitage hotel.

The meeting will concern itself with a report of the results of the finance drive of the Potomac Council in the South Branch District and make arrangements for spring and summer activities. Scoutmaster Sparks is inviting the district to have an April rally on the grounds of the West Virginia Schol for Deaf and Blind, Romney. Some leaders are interested in arranging for a training course, and all of the scouts and troops are looking forward to the Council compore and camp.

Literary Contest

The Upper Potomac Valley Literary Association sponsors annual literary contests between its high schools. There are five schools in the association this year: Franklin, Circleville, Keyser, Capon Bridge, and Petersburg. It is divided into triangles, and this triangle includes Circleville, Franklin and Petersburg.

The finals for the Potomac Valley will be held in Petersburg on March 16th. The state contest for this district is in Keyser the third week of March, and the finals in Morgantown. The Petersburg triangular meets tonight in the high school auditorium. The team competing with the local school is from Circleville.

Petersburg will send contestants to Franklin and Franklin will have participants in the contest at Circleville.

Short Cut to Hair Chic

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF YOU are a busy girl with time nipping at your heels, and if you are sick of trying to keep your back curls neat and orderly, suppose you try a new coiffure which is as nifty as a red feather in a cap.

Make a left side parting. Then, bringing the front and side portions of the hair forward, do them up in metal curlers. Comb the back hair straight and smooth down to the nape line; tie it with a ribbon. You can use satin or grosgrain; velvet is too heavy to form a tight knot. The width of the ribbon is a matter of choice, also the color. Brown is pretty on brown hair, black brings out the bright lights of blond locks.

When the curls are dry, sweep the top portion to the right, fluff out the ends to form a partial bang. Form side locks in three or four rolls, place them back of the ears to fill in the blank space produced by the bow arrangement. Everybody will tell you that you are following a fashion set by the father of your country, but what does that matter? Let 'em have their fun.

Keeping the coiffure in perfect form has got to be a woman's sized job, what with the daily grooming and trot-trotting every week to the beautery. It's no wonder that some hard-working women are in a state of rebellion.

What is known as the dowager's hump can come to plumpies quite early in life. A roll of flesh appears across the upper portion of the back. The cause is not only too much adipose upholstery but poor posture that permits the muscles of the back and shoulders to soldier on the job.

If you, my paper friend, happen to be among the afflicted, clasp your hands at the lower portion of the back of your neck, send the head far back, lifting the elbows high. Then drop the head forward, relax and repeat.

Brisk pummeling with the fists will dissolve fat cells. Follow with a sponging of cold salt water.

Dawson, as toastmaster called on Grover Stemple, assistant chief, as a representative of the fire company and the following as representatives of the groups present: Blaine Giessman, for the County Commissioners; Clifford Friend, State Senator; F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools; Neil C. Fraley, State's attorney, for enforcement officers; Dr. C. Oscar Hall, mayor of Mt. Lake Park; George Hanst, for the press; and Julius C. Renninger, for the town council.

The Oakland Fire company has an investment of $19,000 in its trucks and equipment and during the past fifteen years has answered an average of thirty-three calls annually for a total of 418. Drownings, various calls for resuscitation of individuals overcome by gas and other causes, and journeys to places as far distant as twenty-five miles were pointed out by Dr. Dawson.

Sanish War Veteran Dies

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Simon Myers, a veteran of the Spanish-American War, who died of pneumonia Tuesday evening at the home of his brother on Oak street. Services were in charge of the Rev. A. B. Leamer, D. D., pastor of the Lutheran church. Interment was in Oakland cemetery with members of Proctor Kildow Post 71, American Legion, in charge of final rites at the grave.

Mr. Myers was 76. When hostilities between the United States and Spain began, he enlisted as a private in the First Maryland Infantry and served from June until February of the following year, being honorably discharged from the service at the close of the war.

Sportsmen Meet Tonight To Map Recommendation

Grantsville Group To Prepare for Federation Meeting Sunday

Grantsville, March 7—Members of the Grantsville sportsmens organization have received an invitation to attend a meeting of the Western Maryland Out-door Life Federation at the Y. M. C. A. in Cumberland Sunday afternoon.

Representatives of the local group are asked to be present to make recommendations for any changes they wish in the present state fish and game laws governing Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties.

In order to comply with this request, J. Urban Stanton, president of the Grantsville unit of the Garrett County Sportsmens Association, has called a special meeting of members in this community for Friday evening. The purpose of the meeting, which is to be held in the Woodmen Building, is to make a study of the fish and game laws of Maryland in order that delegates may be named to make recommendations for any changes desired. Any other persons interested are invited to sit in at this meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Garrett County Sportsmen's Association is scheduled to be held at Friendsville Monday evening and a number of local members plan to attend. The Grantsville unit will hold its monthly meeting as usual on Tuesday evening, March 12.

Ladies Aid Meets

Misses Clara and Leanna Layman entertained the Mt. Zion Ladies' Aid Society last evening at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Layman, Long Stretch. Miss Leanna Layman presided, and Mrs. Scott Layman and the Rev. D. R. Carder participated in the devotionals. Miss Leanna Layman presided over the meeting. A committee comprised of Miss W. Zeola Layman, Miss Laura Turner, Mrs. Marshall Layman, Mrs. Charles Durst and Mrs. Henry Michael, was appointed to arrange a program for the purpose of raising funds.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Carder, Mrs. Grace Jenkins, Miss Ethel Simpson, Miss Margaret Trozzo and Miss Geraldine Carder were guests in addition to the sixteen members present. A social hour followed, during which refreshments were served. The society will meet again Wednesday evening, April 3, at the home of Mrs. Marshall Layman.

Community Club Program

The Grantsville Community Club met with Mrs. C. C. Beachy at her home here yesterday afternoon.

Miss Mildred Barton, county home demonstration agent, Oakland, was present and chose as the topic for her discussion and demonstration, "Kitchen Background," bringing out the most suitable colors for walls floor coverings, etc. Mrs. Leonard B. Schaefer, peace chairman, gave her report and presented a letter which is received each month from a peace organization at Washington. Because of its length it was not read, but instead will be circulated among the members.

A poem, "Song of the Homemaker," which had been composed by a member of the Allegany County Homemakers Club, was read and received much favorable comment.

A social hour followed the meeting during which refreshments was served. Mrs. A. Emmons Warnick was the only guest present in addition to the eleven members who attended. Mrs. Raymond Klotz will entertain at the April meeting, when the topic will be "Cleaning Methods in the Home."

4-H Meets Tonight

The meeting of the 4-H Club scheduled for last night was again postponed and will be held instead on Friday evening in the Firemen's quarter.

Crop-Feed Loans Now Available

Tucker Farmers May Apply at Parsons Office Tuesday Afternoon

Parsons, W. Va., March 7—It was announced here today that emergency crop and feed loans are now available to farmers in Tucker county. Applications for these loans will be received at the county agent's office next Tuesday from 2 to 3 p. m. by H. B. McPherson, field supervisor.

These loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain a loan from any other source. As in former years, the money lent will be limited to the applicant's necessary cash needs in preparing and cultivating his 1940 crops or in purchasing or producing feed for his livestock.

Indictments Returned

The following felony indictments were returned by the grand jury here yesterday:

Lee Reed and Walter Fox, cattle rustling; Joseph Turner, statutory rape; Clarence Gallagher and William Shears, two indictments, breaking and entering Davis Coal & Coke Company stores in the upper end of the county; and Owen McDaniel, assault and battery.

Misdemeanor indictments were returned against Wayne and Wade Hebb for game law violations.

Former Resident Dies

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Harry K. Grubb, 74, former official of the Parsons tannery, who died at his home in Indianapolis, Ind., where he has been engaged in the automobile business. He lived in Parsons for many years and was well known here.

Parsons Briefs

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Harper was completely destroyed by fire yesterday at Dry Fork. Details of the fire have not been received except that all contents were destroyed.

The Petersburg Kiwanis Club basketball team defeated the Parsons Kiwanis Club here last night by a score of 46-45. The Parsons club defeated the visitors at Petersburg earlier this season.

Welfare Official To Be Transferred

Executive Secretary of Garrett Board Named to Baltimore Post

Oakland, March 7—At a meeting of the County Welfare Board this week, the members present approved the request of the State Department of Welfare for the transfer of Miss Ethel A. Miller, executive secretary, to the position of field supervisor in the state office in Baltimore. This transfer of Miss Miller will take place as soon as a successor can be secured through the Civil Service office, it was announced, probably about April 1.

Miss Miller has been executive secretary of the Welfare Board here since August, 1933. Her new position is an advancement for her.

The financial report given at the meeting showed that $12,800.57 had been disbursed during February, divided as follows: General public assistance, $1,502.47; old age assistance, $5,980.92; aid to dependent children, $3,022.68; needy blind, $171.00; foster homes, $220.87; administration, $1,763.90; child welfare service, $138.73.

Birthday Marked By Eastern Star

Mt. Savage Chapter Honors Charter Members at Special Program

Mt. Savage, March 7 — Rebecca Arnold Chapter No. 57 of the Eastern Star celebrated its eighteenth anniversary Tuesday evening in the Junior Order hall. Seven charter members of the organization, were guests of honor.

The chapter was organized March 13, 1922, and Mrs. Anna Uhl was elected the first worthy matron. Charter members who attended were Mrs. Minnie Sweene, Mrs. Anna Uhl, Mrs. Mary Pollock, Mrs. Mary Koontz, Mrs. Agnes Crump and Mrs. Adam Rice.

A special program, consisting of songs, recitations and drills, was given by the members. A candle was burned for each deceased charter member.

Mrs. Minnie Sweene, Mrs. Emily Wilson, Mrs. Mary Koontz, Mrs. Etta Daniels, Mrs. Minnie Lashley, Mrs. Florence Best, Miss LaVerne Uhl and Miss Gertrude Haus were honored as past worthy matrons. Mrs. Pearl Sampson presided as present worthy matron.

Quiz Program

A meeting of the Catholic Youth Club wes held Wednesday evening in the Knights of Columbus Hall. The Rev. Francis J. Egan conducted an oral quiz, which was won by Miss Mary Jo Logsdon.

Farmers Meet

R. F. McHenry, county farm agent, gave an address Wednesday evening in the Mt. Savage high school auditorium, explaining to a group of district farmers the benefits which may be had under the 1940 Agricultural Conservation Program for Allegany county. He said that the chief aim of the program was to conserve and cultivate farmlands in this area. Within the next few weeks a session will be held in the auditorium at which the farmers may draw up farm plans and submit them for approval.

Mt. Savage Briefs

An educational and instructional motion picture featured the entertainment of the Parent-Teacher Association meeting last evening. The picture showed principal news events of the preceding year.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caldara, Roanoke, Va., are visiting Mrs. Minnie Caldara and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Finzel.

Church Honored

A certificate of honor for having fulfilled its quota in the Million Unit Followship Movement has been awarded St. Paul's Methodist church in Oakland, according to Rev. Minor Sprague, pastor. The local church is one of approximately 1,500 churches, over 7.5 percent of the denomination's 20,000 congregations in the United States, which have already reached their goals.

This is the second consecutive year that the local church has been thus honored.

Quotas for the individual churches were set when the movement, now in its third year, was inaugurated and were based on a communion-wide goal of 500,000 "units"—persons who will subscribe one dollar a month as well as undertake the spiritual obligations of the fellowship. Thus far the movement has added more than $1,370,000 to the church income for missions and benevolences.

Farm Benefits

Another group of checks for forty-eight farmers in connection with the 1939 soil conservation program has been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent. The additional checks total $1,687.98 and make a total of 480 persons in the county who have received an aggregate of $18,152.82.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SEE THE LITTLE CARDS

FAILURE to note the size of the small cards, and make the logical inferences from them, can prove as costly to you as failure to notice what suit has been led and therefore suffer a revoke penalty. Many a time your partner's lead may prove that he has not a four-card suit and consequently enable you to count the number of cards in the suit held by the declarer. That knowledge, added to what you already know, may enable you to deduce other important facts and point the way to correct defense.

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♦	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	4 ♦	Pass

South's only possible excuse for his bidding was that he rated himself as a fine player of the cards and his opponents as very weak on defense. He was right on half of his hypothesis.

West led the heart 9 to the K, South playing the Q. East next took his heart A, South playing the J and West the 6. He then led his diamond 3. South ran three trumps, the spade Q and J, entered dummy with the heart 10 and ran three more spades, discarding all of his clubs and making five-odd.

East defended his diamond return, arguing that he feared South had the club A, in which event a club switch would have cost a trick. His safe return was a heart. Had West held four hearts, his correct lead would have been the fourth-best 3. So either South had one more heart, making the 10 a dangerous entry to dummy, or two more, in which event West could have ruffed a third heart lead. West's failure to open the heart 3 originally was the key to the hand and, if read rightly, would have resulted in a two-trick set.

Petersburg Scouts To Meet Friday

South Branch Committee Calls Meeting at Hermitage

Petersburg, W. Va., March 7 — Boy Scout leaders of the South Branch District Committee will meet at the Hermitage hotel Friday night at 7:45. Notice of this meeting is being sent the committee by W. B. Michael, Romney, district chairman.

The Petersburg Kiwanis club, sponsor for the Boy Scout troop here, of which Leonard Smith is scoutmaster, is having its regular weekly meeting just prior to this business meeting of the Boy Scout leaders. And scout leader who desires to join with the Kiwanis club for dinner may do so by notifying the Hermitage hotel.

The meeting will concern itself with a report of the results of the finance drive of the Potomac Council in the South Branch District and make arrangements for spring and summer activities. Scoutmaster Sparks is inviting the district to have an April rally on the grounds of the West Virginia Schol for Deaf and Blind, Romney. Some leaders are interested in arranging for a training course, and all of the scouts and troops are looking forward to the Council compore and camp.

Literary Contest

The Upper Potomac Valley Literary Association sponsors annual literary contests between its high schools. There are five schools in the association this year: Franklin, Circleville, Keyser, Capon Bridge, and Petersburg. It is divided into triangles, and this triangle includes Circleville, Franklin and Petersburg.

The finals for the Potomac Valley will be held in Petersburg on March 16th. The state contest for this district is in Keyser the third week of March, and the finals in Morgantown. The Petersburg triangular meets tonight in the high school auditorium. The team competing with the local school is from Circleville.

Petersburg will send contestants to Franklin and Franklin will have participants in the contest at Circleville.

Short Cut to Hair Chic

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF YOU are a busy girl with time nipping at your heels, and if you are sick of trying to keep your back curls neat and orderly, suppose you try a new coiffure which is as nifty as a red feather in a cap.

Make a left side parting. Then, bringing the front and side portions of the hair forward, do them up in metal curlers. Comb the back hair straight and smooth down to the nape line; tie it with a ribbon. You can use satin or grosgrain; velvet is too heavy to form a tight knot. The width of the ribbon is a matter of choice, also the color. Brown is pretty on brown hair, black brings out the bright lights of blond locks.

When the curls are dry, sweep the top portion to the right, fluff out the ends to form a partial bang. Form side locks in three or four rolls, place them back of the ears to fill in the blank space produced by the bow arrangement. Everybody will tell you that you are following a fashion set by the father of your country, but what does that matter? Let 'em have their fun.

Keeping the coiffure in perfect form has got to be a woman's sized job, what with the daily grooming and trot-trotting every week to the beautery. It's no wonder that some hard-working women are in a state of rebellion.

What is known as the dowager's hump can come to plumpies quite early in life. A roll of flesh appears across the upper portion of the back. The cause is not only too much adipose upholstery but poor posture that permits the muscles of the back and shoulders to soldier on the job.

If you, my paper friend, happen to be among the afflicted, clasp your hands at the lower portion of the back of your neck, send the head far back, lifting the elbows high. Then drop the head forward, relax and repeat.

Brisk pummeling with the fists will dissolve fat cells. Follow with a sponging of cold salt water.

ETTA KETT By ROBINSON

Big GOP Rally Drafts Lowndes for Senate

But Bank President Hasn't Said Yet He Wants To Run

Over 300 Allegany county Republicans last night staged an enthusiastic demonstration at the Old Barrel Factory on North Centre street when Captain J. Philip Roman proposed that Tasker G. Lowndes be drafted to run for the U. S. Senate.

Following a blistering denunciation of the New Deal and the declaration "that it's time us old timers quit being groundhogs," the Republicans present roared their approval as Roman presented Lowndes as a "sound, practical business man."

Old Guard Republicans last night entered into the spirit of the meeting with plenty of zest as they fondly recalled former rig-roaring politcal meetings in the picturesque Old Barrel Factory.

Calls New Deal Junk

"We've got to get rid of this junk," Roman roared, referring to the entire New Deal and everything connected with it." "I tell you a national debt of forty-five billion dollars is just beyond my mathematical conception.

"This meeting tonight was called to get old timers together. First we want to nominate a real candidate and then we want to elect him.

"It's time some of us come out of our holes and quit being groundhogs. I'm here to tell you that I've got something on my chest. And I'm going to get it off.

Praises Governor Lowndes

"I'm talking for the good of the whole Republican party. That's what we should all talk about. And you men all know that this county sent George L. Wellington to the U. S. Senate and that there never was a better one from this state.

"And there was Governor Lowndes. What kind of a governor was Lowndes. Why, a magnificent governor. He gave this state free school books. I'm telling you Allegany county has produced some of the best men that ever were produced in this state.

"Now take Baltimore. I spent a month down there. This fight between Bruce and Radcliffe is one of the bitterest things I've ever seen. And, gentlemen, we sometimes talk about knifing methods in politics. Why, I'm telling you I'm an infant when it comes to this knifing business compared to those Baltimore Democrats.

Believes Chances Brightest

"Now, what about the U. S. Senate. I never saw a better chance to elect a U. S. Senator from Allegany county than right now.

"Gentlemen, we've got to put this president in the ashcan. But if we can't do that, we've got to do the next best thing. We've got to tie his hands by sending so many Republicans to Washington that they can straighten things out down there.

"We don't want an old-time politician. What we want is some practical, down-to-earth fellow, a business man.

Says Other Republicans Can't Win

"I'm not saying a word about our candidates. You may think one of them can win. I don't think so. We've got to get a Republican who can get the Republican vote plus the knifers in Baltimore.

"And the man I have in mind is Tasker G. Lowndes."

As Captain Roman concluded his bristling speech, Republicans present cheered and applauded.

W. R. E. King, host of the evening and chairman, using a pop bottle for a gavel, then called for order and proceeded to back up Roman's remarks, calling on county Republicans to draft Lowndes.

Following these talks, the crowd fell to on a bountiful repast and a limitless amount of beer which was served up in tin cups by two jovial bartenders.

Queries about his Lowndes-for-U. S.-Senator movement, Roman declared, "As far as I know Lowndes doesn't know a thing about it. But if he gets into it I know one thing. And that is that he'll win.

Meeting Not Official

Col. George Henderson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, emphatically told a News reporter that "this meeting was not sponsored by the State Central Committee. We were invited and just happen to be here."

A reporter milling around in the crowd heard considerable enthusiasm expressed over the Lowndes-for-U. S.-Senator movement. The consensus voiced was that in view of the bitter squabble down east a strong Allegany county man with the Lowndes background would have a splendid chance.

Tasker G. Lowndes is a son of the late Governor Lowndes.

Among Those Present

DRAFTED—Tasker G. Lowndes

Brooke Whiting, who was giving old friends a big hello; Roman and King, who were all over the place; Mayor Harry Irvine, who was introduced as "a man who wants to get his job back again;" Paul Fletcher, attorney; Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, Deputy Sheriff Edward P. "Mose" Kaylor; Frederick C. "Buck" Dreyer, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, James M. Conway, Edgar Lewis and many others.

Lowndes Out of Town

Lowndes could not be reached last night. Associates stated that he was "out of town." One Republican leader close to the bank president stated that Lowndes might be induced to run as a compromise candidate, but that as things stand now he probably would not.

From the standpoint of enthusiasm and spirit, last night's party was one of the gayest political affairs in some time in Allegany county. Once in the picturesque Old Barrel Factory, old timers quickly started reminiscing as they downed mugs of beer and sampled the food furnished for the occasion.

High School Students To Visit College For Play Day

More than sixty students from Fort Hill, Bruce, Grantsville, Barton, Central, St. Mary's and Girls' Central high schools will be guests at the Frostburg State Teachers college tomorrow, at a play Day.

During the morning the students will participate in group games of ping pong, shuffleboard, badminton, indoor soccer, and volley ball. The morning program has been planned under the direction of Miss Lillian Wellner, instructor of physical education, and Miss Dorothy Mont, president of the Women's Athletic Association.

A tour of buildings has been planned by the Future Teachers of America chapter of the college under the leadership of Walter Hedrick.

The afternoon will present a program of music and dramatics. The musical program will be under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Matteson of the faculty. The dramatics will be sponsored by the Little Theater under the direction of Miss Ruby Dalgren and Miss Margaret La Far.

Legion Post Seeks Membership of 500

In a drive to boost their membership to 500 before the Maryland Department convention here in August, prizes have been offered Cumberland American Legion members who bring in a paid-up member at next Tuesday's meeting.

Harry G. Spiker, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, said that there are now 350 paid up members and that they hope to get 115 delinquent members to pay their dues. Spiker said also a class of initiates will join the post at Tuesday's meeting.

Maryland Gives $27,000 To Finnish Relief

Bringing the state total to $27,000, the Maryland committee of the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc., yesterday sent another check for $1,500 to National Chairman Herbert Hoover for civilian relief in war-beleaguered Finland.

Collection boxes are being distributed throughout the state to supplement newspaper collections, according to State Chairman W. Frank Roberts, of Baltimore.

Nearly $600 has been contributed to the Times-News fund, and donations will continue to be accepted by the papers.

In New Job

John E. Sharp, formerly affiliated with the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company at Frostburg, is now connected with the Cumberland Electric Company, 59 North Centre street.

Barrel Factory History Repeating? Phil Roman Hopes So, and Tells Why

Will political history repeat itself?

That was the question raised last night by Captain J. Philip Roman following a spirited meeting of Republicans at the Old Barrel Factory where a movement was started to draft Tasker G. Lowndes for U. S. Senator.

"It was right in this hall that we started the drive to put Lloyd Lowndes in the governor's chair," Roman reminisced last night. "That was in 1895. I was just a youngster and I didn't count for much but I was there.

"We had a crowd of workers that night just like the one tonight. There were Judge David W. Sloan, William E. Griffiths, Senator Wellington, William R. Percy, and lots of others.

"Those were good days but these can be just as good if we get going." Captain Roman declared. "We've got a chance to put a home-town boy in the Senate. And I say let's get behind him and put him in there."

Tax Researchers Ask and Receive More City Data

Mayor and Council Order Fuller Report Given Committee

A request from the Allegany County Taxpayers Research Association for more dope on the City of Cumberland's financial situation yesterday was furnished by City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson on the order of the mayor and city council.

The original report furnished the tax research group by Mr. Gibson resulted in another request for more data, including:

1—the amount of unpaid taxes
2—amount of uncollected water rentals
3—amount of uncollected liens
4—amount of uncollected annexation taxes

Commenting on the initial report from the auditor, Frank Smith, chairman of the tax group, commented, "I also notice there is no record of floating indebtedness on the statement furnished. We therefore would like to ask that you give us the information covering this subject. In other words, the amount of all notes payable as of Jan. 31."

The auditor's second report released yesterday revealed the following facts.

Uncollected taxes in the city proper for six fiscal years starting with 1933-34 and including the present year are $141,066.56. In the annexes the uncollected total is $17,166.77, making a grand total of $158,233.33. In the city the amounts range from $295.81 for 1933-34 to $80,058.87 for this year.

Money Owed City

Uncollected water rents total $70,590.83. Money owed the city on liens is as follows: Paving $13,984.25; street $107,654.03; repaving $453.35; frontage $4,221.29; sewer frontage $17,359.27; 1931 sewer bonds $51,327.37; liens and agreements $5,576.86; flood liens $1,413.35.

Notes payable are: Water $111,200; general improvement bond $137,000; 1931 sewer bond $25,000, and paving $6,800.

Mr. Gibson explained that water rents due the city are in reality $80,000 more than shown because bills for the last period are not due but the water has been used and the money is owed. He also said money owed the city for street and other improvements is greater than shown because in some cases it is not time to file liens and in others work has not been completed.

He stressed that the picture was much better at the end of January than it was at the beginning of the fiscal year when notes payable totaled $405,000 as compared to $280,000 January 31.

Funds Transferred

The Council also made the annual transfer of funds from one account to another. An order authorized the transferring of the various accounts to the contingent account as follows: City code revision $1,350; city hall annex $450; fire department $2,500; garbage $1,000; humane department $100; legal department $150; mosquito control $110.89; salaries $400; streets and alleys $6,000; general improvement bond $15,000.

Another order transferred the following amounts from the contingent account to the named accounts: Accident award $150; city hall $600; errors and insolvencies $4,100; elections $1,000; Fort Hill park $700; Niagara street $3,336.42; parks $1,000; playgrounds $1,340.37; sewer department $1,700; street cleaning $6,000; street lighting $2,000; warehouse $2,000, and police $500.

Mr. Gibson said unused balances totaled $32,060.89 and that overdrawn accounts totaled $26,926.79.

Roman Goes East After Lowndes Speech

Captain J. Philip Roman left for the East last night after making a vigorous political speech at the Old Barrel Factory proposing Tasker G. Lowndes as a candidate for the U. S. Senate. Mr. Roman said he was going as far as New York and would return to Cumberland Sunday.

Capper to Baltimore

Attorney Walter C. Capper will be in Baltimore today to attend a meeting of the committee of thrifty lawyers appointee by the Court of Appeals to investigate and recommend means of simplifying the rules and procedure in all civil court actions, both in law and equity.

SKI CONDITIONS

A week-end of good spring skiing is in prospect for New Germany.

The snow cover is still from six inches to a foot deep on the slope at Otto's farm.

A heavy crust made the snow unskiable earlier in the week, but warm weather weakened this crust so that it can easily be broken for skiing.

Even if a considerable thaw sets in, skiing should be fair because of the grainy texture given to the snow as the ice crust breaks up. This produces what is known as "corn snow."

The weather forecast calls for light to moderate snow today. Several inches of new powder snow on top of the existing crust would make skiing perfect for the week-end.

Roads yesterday were slippery, and skiers will probably find chains necessary.

Man Lived with Wife After Asking Divorce, Case Ordered Dropped

Admission of a husband that he had lived with his wife since filing suit for divorce resulted in dismissal of the case in Circuit court yesterday.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan ordered the suit of Albert W. Klavuhn dismissed, commenting that divorce means separation which must be continuous from the date of application for legal dissolution of the wedding tie.

Klavuhn, a coal dealer, of 633 Yale street, had docketed suit Dec. 7, through Attorney F. Brooke Whiting, for a divorce from Mrs. Hazel M. Klavuhn. Mrs. Klavuhn subsequently countered the suit with a cross-bill of complaint filed by Attorney Estel C. Kelley.

More than a score of witnesses summoned in the case left without testifying after Klavuhn, first witness on the stand, admitted that he and his wife had lived together since litigation was started.

Clifton A. Appel Promoted by B&O

Clifton A. Appell, 19 West First street, has been named supervisor of water stations for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Cumberland division, to succeed Charles A. Wigal, who retired March 1 after twenty-five years at the position.

Appell started with the B. & O. in 1917 and was foreman in the carpenter shop until the recent promotion.

Railroad Trespasser Goes to Jail

James Dunn, of Cleveland, Ohio, was committed to the county jail for five days yesterday in default of a $5 fine after he pleaded guilty in Trial Magistrate court to trespassing on B&O property.

Dunn was arrested early yesterday morning by Howard J. Decker, railroad policeman.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McLaughlin, 6, Euclid Place, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beck, 105 Decatur street, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis May, 202 Wilmont avenue, announce the birth of a daughter Wednesday night at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Twigg, of Spring Gap, announce the birth of a daughter Wednesday night at Memorial hospital.

Wins Floral Award

Mrs. J. Elmer Bopp, of Bopp's Flower Shop here, was one of the few florists to be designated a "floral artist" at the school of design for the Mid-Atlantic Unit of the Society of American Florists held at the University of Maryland this week. Mrs. Bopp was unable to attend the session on account of illness.

Roller Skater Hurt

Dale O'Baker, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred O'Baker, of Locust Grove, was treated last night at Allegany hospital for a lacerated right arm, suffered when he fell while roller skating near his home shortly after 6 p. m.

Little Finger Crushed

Homer Landis, 34, of Ridgeley, had the little finger of his left hand crushed yesterday morning when it was caught between an iron bar and the floor of the truck he was loading. He was treated at Allegany hospital.

Beth Jacob Service

"The Ideal of Universal Peace" will be the sermon-subect of Rabbi Aaron Gorbaty at the 7:30 o'clock service tonight at Beth Jacob synagogue, North Centre street.

Rummage Sale Saturday

A rummage sale will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Central Methodist church on South George street.

Dentists To Hold Centennial Fete

Plan Banquet Monday At Shrine Club

Thirty members of the Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society will meet for dinner Monday evening at the Shrine Country club to commemorate the 100th aniversary of organized, scientific dentistry.

On the same evening, according to Dr. John A. Stehley, members of the American Dental Association will meet throughout the country to make the dental centennial a nation-wide celebration.

On March 18, 19, and 20, members of the dental profession from all parts of the world will meet in Baltimore to pay tribute to Dr. Horance A. Hayden and Dr. Chapin A. Harris, who laid the cornerstones of modern dentistry. Hayden and Harris founded the first dental school in the world in Baltimore in 1840.

After the diner, Dr. Karl W. Kobb will transmit a message from Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, president of the American Dental Association. Chief speakers and their topics will be Dr. Stehley, "A century of Progress in Dentistry"; Dr. A. P. Dixon, "Our Contribution"; Dr. W. H. Ryan, "On to Baltimore"; and Dr. J. Russell Cook, "Looking Forward."

Deaths

Charles M. Potter

Charles M. Potter, a well-known figure in Cumberland and State firemen's circles, died yesterday at his home in Baltimore at the age of 72.

Mr. Potter was a native of Cumberland, but left here forty years ago to go to Baltimore, where he became a member of the fire department.

He maintained his interest, however, in Cumberland and especially in the old Canada Hose Company, which he had joined as a youth of nineteen. The fire company is now inactive, of course, but still maintains its organization, and Mr. Potter had retained his membership.

Retired from the Baltimore department for several years, he made frequent visits here, recalled the old days of fire-fighting with fellow-veterans, and made the rounds of the fire stations.

His most recent visit was just a month ago when he came here, against doctor's orders, for the funeral of his old friend, Cornelius C. Chandler, who died at his home, 332 Baltimore avenue, Feb. 7.

Mr. Potter was stricken Monday by a heart attack, to which he succumed yesterday afternoon.

He was a member of the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias and was a perennial delegate to conventions of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Clara Sawyer, with whom he lived, and Miss Katherine Potter; and two sons, Charles Jr. and Jacob Potter, all of Baltimore. Mrs. Potter died many years ago.

Funeral services will be held in Baltimore Monday.

Mary Omer Thompson

Miss Mary Omer Thompson died yesterday morning at her home, 618 Frederick street. She was 50.

She was a daughter of the late James and Elizabeth McCaughan Thompson, and a native of Frostburg. She lived for a while in Mt. Savage before coming to Cumberland. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Miss Thompson was bookkeeper for the Fleigh Motor Co., until it went out of business, and was a sister of the late Jerome Thompson, who had the Studebaker agency here for many years.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. John Gallagher, of Mt. Savage, Mrs. Andrew Laughlin and Miss Mary Thompson, both at home; and two brothers, Joseph, of Frostburg, and Gerard, of Cumberland.

Edward A. Barnett

Edward A. Barnett, 211 Bedford street, a retired leather inspector, died yesterday morning. He was 90.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Wurtzbacher Barnett, and a son, John Edward Barnet, both of Cumberland. The body will remain at Stein's Chapel.

Mrs. Erasmus H. Kloman

Funeral services were held in Baltimore yesterday for Mrs. Louise Geppart Kloman, wife of Dr. Erasmus H. Kloman, Mrs. Kloman died Tuesday.

Mrs. Kloman was a native of Cumberland, formerly lived with her family on Columbia street, and was graduated from the Allegany County academy with the class of 1909. Dr. Kloman is a brother of the Rev. Felix Kloman, former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church here.

George Merkel

George Merkel, of Fairhope, Pa., died last night at Allegany hospital where he was admitted yesterday morning. He was 44.

Surviving are his wife, Hulda; and father, Harry J. Merkel.

Franklin To Discuss Socialized Medicine

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, will speak to the Junior Association of Commerce Tuesday of "Socialized Medicine".

The Association's semi-monthly dinner meeting will be held at the Golden Gate Tea Room at 6:30 p. m.

TWINS RE-UNITED—Last May 25, Veronica Grace Broadwater was run down by an auto as she darted across the highway in front of her home. For months she lay seriously injured in Miners hospital, Frostburg. Now, however, she has been pronounced well and sound again, and her happy and thankful parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manley J. Broadwater, celebrated the occasion with this picture of Veronica and her twin brother, Vernon Joseph. The twins missed having their fifth birthday party last September, but there's going to be a big celebration next September, when they're six years old and ready for school. The Broadwaters live on Route 40 a mile west of Frostburg.

Seven Women Riding in Ford Hurt When Car Overturns Near Dixie Inn

Seven young women and one man, all from West Virginia, escaped serious injury yesterdaw afternoon when the car in which they were riding swerved to miss another car but struck a ditch and turned over three times at Dixie Inn, a mile south of Ridgeley.

The women, all employes of the Allegany Glass Co., were en route home from work. All were taken to Allegany hospital for theatment, but only two were admitted for observation.

The accident happened about 4:30 p. m. when the crowded car, headed south on Route 28, turned to the right to avoid hitting a car driven by David E. Lichliter, of Patterson's Creek, who entered the highway from Dixie Inn.

Cars Play "Tag"

Lichliter told Ridgeley Chief of Police C. V. Barncord that he stopped at the edge of the road and didn't see the car driven by Mrs. Ruby Bidinger, 22, of Green Spring, until he had started to turn right onto Route 28. He then speeded up his car and went straight across the space between the forks of the road to allow Mrs. Bidinger to pass behind him.

Meanwhile Mrs. Bidinger turned to the right to avoid hitting the car and struck a rough ditch. The 1937 Ford she was driving turned end-over-end once and rolled sideways twice and ended on its top in the driveway of Dixie Inn.

All eight passengers crawled from the wrecked car and the seven women were taken to the hospital by passing motorists. Hospital attendants treated and discharged five of the young women and admitted Miss Irma Crock, 17, of Springfield, and Miss Imelda Fields, 26, also of Springfield, for observation.

Miss Crock was cut and bruised about the head, it was said at the hospital. Both were resting comfortably last night.

Those treated at the hospital and discharged were Miss Pauline Crock, 20, who had an eye hurt; Miss Evelyn Crock, 18, bruised about the head; Miss Viola Landis, 19, of Green Spring, scratch on forehead; Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman, 21, wife of Michael Coleman, of Fort Ashby, scratched; and Mrs. Bidinger, wife of James Bidinger, injured forehead and left elbow. Irma, Evelyn, and Pauline Crock, Mrs. Bidinger, and Harry Crock, 25, who was also in the car, are brother and sisters.

Reckless driving charges were placed by Chief Barncord against both drivers and a hearing was set for next Friday.

Scouter Training Course Opens at Frostburg

Earl F. Brain, district chairman of leadership training under the Frostburg Boy Scout Committee, has arranged a training course that opened yesterday at the State Teachers College.

The first meeting covered scouting, its aims and objectives. The instructors were John L. Dunkle, president of the Potomac Council, and Raymond C. Lalor, Scout executive.

The next meeting will be on March 14 and the third meeting of Part I of the training course on March 28. All courses will be credited in the Scout leaders' five-year training program. It is hoped that many of the Scouters in the Frostburg area will avail themselves of these training courses.

'X' Marks the Spot, Voters Must Learn

Many ballots in Tuesday's primary election — apparently cast by young voters — were thrown out because of improper marking, Council Candidate James Orr reported last night.

Sounding the warning to prevent a repetition in the general election March 19, Mr. Orr said that a total of twenty-two ballots were thrown out in Precincts 3-1 and 3-2 because selections were designated with a V-shaped check-mark, rather than the prescribed X-mark.

Instructions in the polling places call attention to the proper mark, but the ballots do not carry such instructions, Candidate Orr pointed out.

Post Prepares To 'Turn on Heat' Throughout City

Fifty Campaigners Meet at Queen City, Express Confidence

Fifty wheel horses in the Post-for-Mayor campaign, representing each of the twenty Cumberland precincts, met last night at the Queen City hotel for a political pow-wow.

Jubilant over the showing made by their candidate in the Tuesday primary, the workers called on Post for a speech. Post responded with a few words of thanks.

Post workers confident that their candidate will get 90 per cent of John W. Harper's 1,138 votes, last night prepared to turn on the heat throughout the entire city after analyzing the primary returns.

Post backers scoffed at the generally admitted power of the City Hall machine, declared they had over 500 hard workers compared to "a hundred or so City Hall payroll workers, some of them disgruntled and tired of being bossed around."

Meanwhile, Irvine administration workers quietly continued to outline plans for a campaign that would take their workers into every precinct in the city.

Mayor Harry Irvine and James M. Conway, the mayor's trusted political friend and adviser, last night were among the prominent members present at the Republican shindig at the Old Barrel Factory.

Nothing new came out of the Harper quarters last night, although the eliminated mayoral candidate has advised his supporters to watch for an important announcement in the near future.

Eight candidates for City Council were reported working, with Candidates James Orr and Joseph M. Fradiska putting on the keenest scrap for election votes.

Runaways Hunt Beds, Get Caught by Cops And Sleep on Bus

Two 19-year-old Washington, Pa., youths enroute to Philadelphia to look for work picked the wrong place to stand while worrying about their bed for the night and in a few hours were on a bus headed home under protest.

Oscar Lawther and Robert Carpenter left their homes yesterday afternoon. Their parents, assuming their hitch-hiking would bring them to Cumberland, called police here to ask that their sons be stopped. That was at 5:15 p. m.

Two hours later Officer John Powers saw two boys standing around in front of headquarters apparently in a quandary, and he went out to talk with them. When he learned they were looking for a place to spend the night, Officer Powers invited them inside.

Inside they were detained while Desk Sergeant Bert B. Browne telephoned their parents. The boys' parents wired money to police and the boys were put on a westbound Blue Ridge bus at 12:50 a. m., still wanting to go to Philadelphia to look for work.

Walter Clay Improved; Hires Extra Workers

Walter Clay, well-known manager of the Clay Detective Agency, who has been ill at his home for the last few days, yesterday was reported improved by his physician.

Mr. Clay reported yesterday that several additional trained operators had been added to his force to take care of his enterprises until he is back on his feet.

Clay, one of the veteran investigators in the Cumberland area, lives at the Boulevard hotel where he has been confined the last few days.

Tavern Bar Burned, Business As Usual

Awakened at 3:15 yesterday morning by the smell of smoke, Miss Loretta Blaul, owner and operator of the Mayfair Tavern, on the Winchester Road, called firemen in time to save the building from serious damage by fire.

Miss Blaul said she called others staying in the adjoining apartment and then called Cresaptown Volunteer firemen before she was driven from the telephone by the dense smoke. She and four others fought the fire with buckets of water and had it nearly out when firemen arrived.

The bar and fixtures of the tavern were damaged but business has not been interruupted. Cause of the fire is not known.

Celanese Worker Fined For Speeding

William E. Crane, 100 Seymour street, a Celanese worker, paid $1 fine and 75 cents costs yesterday in Trial Magistrate court after he pleaded guilty to exceeding thirty miles per hour on McMullen highway.

Crane was arrested Saturday by State Trooper Austin H. Bikle.

Library Celebration Features Display of Beautiful Volumes

Several outstanding exhibits will supplement the program arranged for the Cumberland Free Public Library's birthday party tonight, according to an announcement by Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

Valuable non-circulating reference works will be on dispiay from the collection made possible by the gift of the late Ferman G. Pugh. Also on exhibit will be some of the beautiful volumes recently presented to the library by Mrs. Wallace McKaig.

Another feature will be "The Book Hospital," a puppet show presided over by "Dr. Ike N. Mendem." This clever display of one of the library's activities was designed and constructed by Miss Lois Fisher, librarian of the South End branch.

Miniature Library Displayed

Among the exhibits, too, will be a miniature library constructed by a special class at Hammond Street school in Westernport, of which Miss Marie Meyers is teacher. The cleverly designed and constructed miniature was lent to the library through the courtesy of Mrs. Cora G. Perry, county supervisor of library projects.

The exhibits are being arranged under the general direction of Miss Codie Whitman, of the library staff.

Tonight's program, scheduled to begin at 8:30 p. m., is sponsored by the Friends of the Library in observance of the institution's sixteenth birthday.

To Present Check

President James Alfred Avirett will present a birthday check to Miss Walsh on behalf of the Friends. Former Judge Albert A. Doub Sr., president of the library's board of directors, and Miss Walsh will make short acceptance talks.

Also on the program will be violin selections by Miss Ruth Dicken, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Thomas P. Richards, and readings of original poems by Mrs. Sara Roberta Getty.

Punch and cake will be served following the program, to which all who are interested in the library are invited.

The party will be held in the second-floor assembly room of the library.

But Bank President Hasn't Said Yet He Wants To Run

Over 300 Allegany county Republicans last night staged an enthusiastic demonstration at the Old Barrel Factory on North Centre street when Captain J. Philip Roman proposed that Tasker G. Lowndes be drafted to run for the U. S. Senate.

Following a blistering denunciation of the New Deal and the declaration "that it's time us old timers quit being groundhogs," the Republicans present roared their approval as Roman presented Lowndes as a "sound, practical business man."

Old Guard Republicans last night entered into the spirit of the meeting with plenty of zest as they fondly recalled former rig-roaring politcal meetings in the picturesque Old Barrel Factory.

Calls New Deal Junk

"We've got to get rid of this junk," Roman roared, referring to the entire New Deal and everything connected with it." "I tell you a national debt of forty-five billion dollars is just beyond my mathematical conception.

"This meeting tonight was called to get old timers together. First we want to nominate a real candidate and then we want to elect him.

"It's time some of us come out of our holes and quit being groundhogs. I'm here to tell you that I've got something on my chest. And I'm going to get it off.

Praises Governor Lowndes

"I'm talking for the good of the whole Republican party. That's what we should all talk about. And you men all know that this county sent George L. Wellington to the U. S. Senate and that there never was a better one from this state.

"And there was Governor Lowndes. What kind of a governor was Lowndes. Why, a magnificent governor. He gave this state free school books. I'm telling you Allegany county has produced some of the best men that ever were produced in this state.

"Now take Baltimore. I spent a month down there. This fight between Bruce and Radcliffe is one of the bitterest things I've ever seen. And, gentlemen, we sometimes talk about knifing methods in politics. Why, I'm telling you I'm an infant when it comes to this knifing business compared to those Baltimore Democrats.

Believes Chances Brightest

"Now, what about the U. S. Senate. I never saw a better chance to elect a U. S. Senator from Allegany county than right now.

"Gentlemen, we've got to put this president in the ashcan. But if we can't do that, we've got to do the next best thing. We've got to tie his hands by sending so many Republicans to Washington that they can straighten things out down there.

"We don't want an old-time politician. What we want is some practical, down-to-earth fellow, a business man.

Says Other Republicans Can't Win

"I'm not saying a word about our candidates. You may think one of them can win. I don't think so. We've got to get a Republican who can get the Republican vote plus the knifers in Baltimore.

"And the man I have in mind is Tasker G. Lowndes."

As Captain Roman concluded his bristling speech, Republicans present cheered and applauded.

W. R. E. King, host of the evening and chairman, using a pop bottle for a gavel, then called for order and proceeded to back up Roman's remarks, calling on county Republicans to draft Lowndes.

Following these talks, the crowd fell to on a bountiful repast and a limitless amount of beer which was served up in tin cups by two jovial bartenders.

Queries about his Lowndes for-U. S.-Senator movement, Roman declared, "As far as I know Lowndes doesn't know a thing about it. But if he gets into it I know one thing. And that is that he'll win.

Meeting Not Official

Col. George Henderson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, emphatically told a News reporter that "this meeting was not sponsored by the State Central Committee. We were invited and just happen to be here."

A reporter milling around in the crowd heard considerable enthusiasm expressed over the Lowndes-for-U. S.-Senator movement. The consensus voiced was that in view of the bitter squabble down east a strong Allegany county man with the Lowndes background would have a splendid chance.

Tasker G. Lowndes is a son of the late Governor Lowndes.

Among Those Present

Prominent personages spotted at the party included A. Charles Stewart, candidate for Congress; F. Brooke Whiting, who was giving old friends a big hello; Roman and King, who were all over the place; Mayor Harry Irvine, who was introduced as "a man who wants to get his job back again;" Paul Fletcher, attorney; Sheriff Lucian Radcliffe, Deputy Sheriff Edward P. "Mose" Kaylor; Frederick C. "Buck" Dreyer, State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, James M. Conway, Edgar Lewis and many others.

DRAFTED—Tasker G. Lowndes

Lowndes Out of Town

Lowndes could not be reached last night. Associates stated that he was "out of town." One Republican leader close to the bank president stated that Lowndes might be induced to run as a compromise candidate, but that as things stand now he probably would not.

From the standpoint of enthusiasm and spirit, last night's party was one of the gayest political affairs in some time in Allegany county. Once in the picturesque Old Barrel Factory, old timers quickly started reminiscing as they downed mugs of beer and sampled the food furnished for the occasion.

Tax Researchers Ask and Receive More City Data

Mayor and Council Order Fuller Report Given Committee

A request from the Allegany County Taxpayers Research Association for more dope on the City of Cumberland's financial situation yesterday was furnished by City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson on the order of the mayor and city council.

The original report furnished the tax research group by Mr. Gibson resulted in another request for more data, including:

1—the amount of unpaid taxes
2—amount of uncollected water rentals
3—amount of uncollected liens
4—amount of uncollected annexation taxes

Commenting on the initial report from the auditor, Frank Smith, chairman of the tax group, commented, "I also notice there is no record of floating indebtedness on the statement furnished. We therefore would like to ask that you give us the information covering this subject. In other words, the amount of all notes payable as of Jan. 31."

The auditor's second report released yesterday revealed the following facts.

Uncollected taxes in the city proper for six fiscal years starting with 1933-34 and including the present year are $141,066.56. In the annexes the uncollected total is $17,166.77, making a grand total of $158,233.33. In the city the amounts range from $295.81 for 1933-34 to $80,058.87 for this year.

Money Owed City

Uncollected water rents total $70,590.83. Money owed the city on liens is as follows: Paving $13,984.25; street $107,654.03; repaving $453.35; frontage $4,221.29; sewer frontage $17,359.27; 1931 sewer bonds $51,327.37; liens and agreements $5,576.86; flood liens $1,413.35.

Notes payable are: Water $111,200; general improvement bond $137,000; 1931 sewer bond $25,000, and paving $6,800.

Mr. Gibson explained that water rents due the city are in reality $80,000 more than shown because bills for the last period are not due but the water has been used and the money is owed. He also said money owed the city for street and other improvements is greater than shown because in some cases it is not time to file liens and in others work has not been completed.

He stressed that the picture was much better at the end of January than it was at the beginning of the fiscal year when notes payable totaled $405,000 as compared to $280,000 January 31.

Funds Transferred

The Council also made the annual transfer of funds from one account to another. An order authorized the transferring of the various accounts to the contingent account as follows: City code revision $1,350; city hall annex $450; fire department $2,500; garbage $1,000; humane department $100; legal department $150; mosquito control $110.89; salaries $400; streets and alleys $6,000; general improvement bond $15,000.

Another order transferred the following amounts from the contingent account to the named accounts: Accident award $150; city hall $600; errors and insolvencies $4,100; elections $1,000; Fort Hill park $700; Niagara street $3,336.42; parks $1,000; playgrounds $1,340.37; sewer department $1,700; street cleaning $6,000; street lighting $2,000; warehouse $2,000, and police $500.

Mr. Gibson said unused balances totaled $32,060.89 and that overdrawn accounts totaled $26,926.79.

Another order transferred $1,350 from the crosstown water line account to the general account for engineering fees.

Man Lived with Wife After Asking Divorce, Case Ordered Dropped

Admission of a husband that he had lived with his wife since filing suit for divorce resulted in dismissal of the case in Circuit court yesterday.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan ordered the suit of Albert W. Klavuhn dismissed, commenting that divorce means separation which must be continuous from the date of application for legal dissolution of the wedding tie.

Klavuhn, a coal dealer, of 633 Yale street, had docketed suit Dec. 7, through Attorney F. Brooke Whiting, for a divorce from Mrs. Hazel M. Klavuhn. Mrs. Klavuhn subsequently countered the suit with a cross-bill of complaint filed by Attorney Estel C. Kelley.

More than a score of witnesses summoned in the case left without testifying after Klavuhn, first witness on the stand, admitted that he and his wife had lived together since litigation was started.

Clifton A. Appel Promoted by B&O

Clifton A. Appell, 19 West First street, has been named supervisor of water stations for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, Cumberland division, to succeed Charles A. Wigal, who retired March 1 after twenty-five years at the position.

Appell started with the B. & O. in 1917 and was foreman in the carpenter shop until the recent promotion.

William Amey was transferred March 1 from division claim representative in Cumberland to the Baltimore office, and A. G. Moler, of Brunswick, succeeded him here.

Railroad Trespasser Goes to Jail

James Dunn, of Cleveland, Ohio, was committed to the county jail for five days yesterday in default of a $5 fine after he pleaded guilty in Trial Magistrate court to trespassing on B&O property.

Dunn was arrested early yesterday morning by Howard J. Decker, railroad policeman.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Richard McLaughlin, 6, Euclid Place, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beck, 105 Decatur street, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis May, 202 Wilmont avenue, announce the birth of a daughter Wednesday night at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Twigg, of Spring Gap, announce the birth of a daughter Wednesday night at Memorial hospital.

Wins Floral Award

Mrs. J. Elmer Bopp, of Bopp's Flower Shop here, was one of the few florists to be designated a "floral artist" at the school of design for the Mid-Atlantic Unit of the Society of American Florists held at the University of Maryland this week. Mrs. Bopp was unable to attend the session on account of illness.

Roller Skater Hurt

Dale O'Baker, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred O'Baker, of Locust Grove, was treated last night at Allegany hospital for a lacerated right arm, suffered when he fell while roller skating near his home shortly after 6 p. m.

Little Finger Crushed

Homer Landis, 34, of Ridgeley, had the little finger of his left hand crushed yesterday morning when it was caught between an iron bar and the floor of the truck he was loading. He was treated at Allegany hospital.

Beth Jacob Service

"The Ideal of Universal Peace" will be the sermon-subect of Rabbi Aaron Gorbaty at the 7:30 o'clock service tonight at Beth Jacob synagogue, North Centre street.

Rummage Sale Saturday

A rummage sale will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Central Methodist church on South George street.

Dentists To Hold Centennial Fete

Plan Banquet Monday At Shrine Club

Thirty members of the Allegany-Garrett County Dental Society will meet for dinner Monday evening at the Shrine Country club to commemorate the 100th aniversary of organized, scientific dentistry.

On the same evening, according to Dr. John A. Stehley, members of the American Dental Association will meet throughout the country to make the dental centennial a nation-wide celebration.

On March 18, 19, and 20, members of the dental profession from all parts of the world will meet in Baltimore to pay tribute to Dr. Horance A. Hayden and Dr. Chapin A. Harris, who laid the cornerstones of modern dentistry. Hayden and Harris founded the first dental school in the world in Baltimore in 1840.

After the diner, Dr. Karl W. Kobb will transmit a message from Dr. Arthur H. Merritt, president of the American Dental Association. Chief speakers and their topics will be Dr. Stehley, "A century of Progress in Dentistry"; Dr. A. P. Dixon, "Our Contribution"; Dr. W. H. Ryan, "On to Baltimore"; and Dr. J. Russell Cook, "Looking Forward."

Deaths

Charles M. Potter

Charles M. Potter, a well-known figure in Cumberland and State firemen's circles, died yesterday at his home in Baltimore at the age of 72.

Mr. Potter was a native of Cumberland, but left here forty years ago to go to Baltimore, where he became a member of the fire department.

He maintained his interest, however, in Cumberland and especially in the old Canada Hose Company, which he had joined as a youth of nineteen. The fire company is now inactive, of course, but still maintains its organization, and Mr. Potter had retained his membership.

Retired from the Baltimore department for several years, he made frequent visits here, recalled the old days of fire-fighting with fellow-veterans, and made the rounds of the fire stations.

His most recent visit was just a month ago when he came here, against doctor's orders, for the funeral of his old friend, Cornelius C. Chandler, who died at his home, 332 Baltimore avenue, Feb. 7.

Mr. Potter was stricken Monday by a heart attack, to which he succumed yesterday afternoon.

He was a member of the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias and was a perennial delegate to conventions of the Maryland State Firemen's Association.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Clara Sawyer, with whom he lived, and Miss Katherine Potter; and two sons, Charles Jr. and Jacob Potter, all of Baltimore. Mrs. Potter died many years ago.

Funeral services will be held in Baltimore Monday.

Mary Omer Thompson

Miss Mary Omer Thompson died yesterday morning at her home, 618 Frederick street. She was 50.

She was a daughter of the late James and Elizabeth McCaughan Thompson, and a native of Frostburg. She lived for a while in Mt. Savage before coming to Cumberland. She was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church.

Miss Thompson was bookkeeper for the Fleigh Motor Co., until it went out of business, and was a sister of the late Jerome Thompson, who had the Studebaker agency here for many years.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. John Gallagher, of Mt. Savage, Mrs. Andrew Laughlin and Miss Mary Thompson, both at home; and two brothers, Joseph, of Frostburg, and Gerard, of Cumberland.

Edward A. Barnett

Edward A. Barnett, 211 Bedford street, a retired leather inspector, died yesterday morning. He was 90.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Wurtzbacher Barnett, and a son, John Edward Barnet, both of Cumberland. The body will remain at Stein's Chapel.

Mrs. Erasmus H. Kloman

Funeral services were held in Baltimore yesterday for Mrs. Louise Geppart Kloman, wife of Dr. Erasmus H. Kloman, Mrs. Kloman died Tuesday.

Mrs. Kloman was a native of Cumberland, formerly lived with her family on Columbia street, and was graduated from the Allegany County academy with the class of 1909. Dr. Kloman is a brother of the Rev. Felix Kloman, former rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church here.

George Merkel

George Merkel, of Fairhope, Pa., died last night at Allegany hospital where he was admitted yesterday morning. He was 44.

Surviving are his wife, Hulda; and father, Harry J. Merkel.

Franklin To Discuss Socialized Medicine

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, will speak to the Junior Association of Commerce Tuesday of "Socialized Medicine".

The Association's semi-monthly dinner meeting will be held at the Golden Gate Tea Room at 6:30 p. m.

TWINS RE-UNITED—Last May 25, Veronica Grace Broadwater was run down by an auto as she darted across the highway in front of her home. For months she lay seriously injured in Miners hospital, Frostburg. Now, however, she has been pronounced well and sound again, and her happy and thankful parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manley J. Broadwater, celebrated the occasion with this picture of Veronica and her twin brother, Vernon Joseph. The twins missed having their fifth birthday party last September, but there's going to be a big celebration next September, when they're six years old and ready for school. The Broadwaters live on Route 40 a mile west of Frostburg.

Seven Women Riding in Ford Hurt When Car Overturns Near Dixie Inn

Seven young women and one man, all from West Virginia, escaped serious injury yesterdaw afternoon when the car in which they were riding swerved to miss another car but struck a ditch and turned over three times at Dixie Inn, a mile south of Ridgeley.

The women, all employes of the Allegany Glass Co., were en route home from work. All were taken to Allegany hospital for theatment, but only two were admitted for observation.

The accident happened about 4:30 p. m. when the crowded car, headed south on Route 28, turned to the right to avoid hitting a car driven by David E. Lichliter, of Patterson's Creek, who entered the highway from Dixie Inn.

Cars Play "Tag"

Lichliter told Ridgeley Chief of Police C. V. Barncord that he stopped at the edge of the road and didn't see the car driven by Mrs. Ruby Bidinger, 22, of Green Spring, until he had started to turn right onto Route 28. He then speeded up his car and went straight across the space between the forks of the road to allow Mrs. Bidinger to pass behind him.

Meanwhile Mrs. Bidinger turned to the right to avoid hitting the car and struck a rough ditch. The 1937 Ford she was driving turned end-over-end once and rolled sideways twice and ended on its top in the driveway of Dixie Inn.

All eight passengers crawled from the wrecked car and the seven women were taken to the hospital by passing motorists. Hospital attendants treated and discharged five of the young women and admitted Miss Irma Crock, 17, of Springfield, and Miss Imelda Fields, 26, also of Springfield, for observation.

Miss Crock was cut and bruised about the head, it was said at the hospital. Both were resting comfortably last night.

Those treated at the hospital and discharged were Miss Pauline Crock, 20, who had an eye hurt; Miss Evelyn Crock, 18, bruised about the head; Miss Viola Landis, 19, of Green Spring, scratch on forehead; Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman, 21, wife of Michael Coleman, of Fort Ashby, scratched; and Mrs. Bidinger, wife of James Bidinger, injured forehead and left elbow. Irma, Evelyn, and Pauline Crock, Mrs. Bidinger, and Harry Crock, 25, who was also in the car, are brother and sisters.

Reckless driving charges were placed by Chief Barncord against both drivers and a hearing was set for next Friday.

Tavern Bar Burned, Business As Usual

Awakened at 3:15 yesterday morning by the smell of smoke, Miss Loretta Blaul, owner and operator of the Mayfair Tavern, on the Winchester Road, called firemen in time to save the building from serious damage by fire.

Miss Blaul said she called others staying in the adjoining apartment and then called Cresaptown Volunteer firemen before she was driven from the telephone by the dense smoke. She and four others fought the fire with buckets of water and had it nearly out when firemen arrived.

The bar and fixtures of the tavern were damaged but business has not been interruupted. Cause of the fire is not known.

Scouter Training Course Opens at Frostburg

Earl F. Brain, district chairman of leadership training under the Frostburg Boy Scout Committee, has arranged a training course that opened yesterday at the State Teachers College.

The first meeting covered scouting, its aims and objectives. The instructors were John L. Dunkle, president of the Potomac Council, and Raymond C. Lalor, Scout executive.

The next meeting will be on March 14 and the third meeting of Part I of the training course on March 28. All courses will be credited in the Scout leaders' five-year training program. It is hoped that many of the Scouters in the Frostburg area will avail themselves of these training courses.

'X' Marks the Spot, Voters Must Learn

Many ballots in Tuesday's primary election — apparently cast by young voters — were thrown out because of improper marking, Council Candidate James Orr reported last night.

Sounding the warning to prevent a repetition in the general election March 19, Mr. Orr said that a total of twenty-two ballots were thrown out in Precincts 3-1 and 3-2 because selections were designated with a V-shaped check-mark, rather than the prescribed X-mark.

Instructions in the polling places call attention to the proper mark, but the ballots do not carry such instructions, Candidate Orr pointed out.

Fifty Campaigners Meet at Queen City, Express Confidence

Fifty wheel horses in the Post-for-Mayor campaign, representing each of the twenty Cumberland precincts, met last night at the Queen City hotel for a political pow-wow.

Jubilant over the showing made by their candidate in the Tuesday primary, the workers called on Post for a speech. Post responded with a few words of thanks.

Post workers confident that their candidate will get 90 per cent of John W. Harper's 1,138 votes, last night prepared to turn on the heat throughout the entire city after analyzing the primary returns.

Post backers scoffed at the generally admitted power of the City Hall machine, declared they had over 500 hard workers compared to "a hundred or so City Hall payroll workers, some of them disgruntled and tired of being bossed around."

Meanwhile, Irvine administration workers quietly continued to outline plans for a campaign that would take their workers into every precinct in the city.

Mayor Harry Irvine and James M. Conway, the mayor's trusted political friend and adviser, last night were among the prominent members present at the Republican shindig at the Old Barrel Factory.

Nothing new came out of the Harper quarters last night, although the eliminated mayoral candidate has advised his supporters to watch for an important announcement in the near future.

Eight candidates for City Council were reported working, with Candidates James Orr and Joseph M. Fradiska putting on the keenest scrap for election votes.

Runaways Hunt Beds, Get Caught by Cops And Sleep on Bus

Two 19-year-old Washington, Pa., youths enroute to Philadelphia to look for work picked the wrong place to stand while worrying about their bed for the night and in a few hours were on a bus headed home under protest.

Oscar Lawther and Robert Carpenter left their homes yesterday afternoon. Their parents, assuming their hitch-hiking would bring them to Cumberland, called police here to ask that their sons be stopped. That was at 5:15 p. m.

Two hours later Officer John Powers saw two boys standing around in front of headquarters apparently in a quandary, and he went out to talk with them. When he learned they were looking for a place to spend the night, Officer Powers invited them inside.

Inside they were detained while Desk Sergeant Bert B. Browne telephoned their parents. The boys' parents wired money to police and the boys were put on a westbound Blue Ridge bus at 12:50 a. m., still wanting to go to Philadelphia to look for work.

Walter Clay Improved; Hires Extra Workers

Walter Clay, well-known manager of the Clay Detective Agency, who has been ill at his home for the last few days, yesterday was reported improved by his physician.

Mr. Clay reported yesterday that several additional trained operators had been added to his force to take care of his enterprises until he is back on his feet.

Clay, one of the veteran investigators in the Cumberland area, lives at the Boulevard hotel where he has been confined the last few days.

Celanese Worker Fined For Speeding

William E. Crane, 100 Seymour street, a Celanese worker, paid $1 fine and 75 cents costs yesterday in Trial Magistrate court after he pleaded guilty to exceeding thirty miles per hour on McMullen highway.

Crane was arrested Saturday by State Trooper Austin H. Bikle.

Valuable non-circulating reference works will be on display from the collection made possible by the gift of the late Ferman G. Pugh. Also on exhibit will be some of the beautiful volumes recently presented to the library by Mrs. Wallace McKaig.

Another feature will be "The Book Hospital," a puppet show presided over by "Dr. Ike N. Mendem." This clever display of one of the library's activities was designed and constructed by Miss Lois Fisher, librarian of the South End branch.

Miniature Library Displayed

Among the exhibits, too, will be a miniature library constructed by a special class at Hammond Street school in Westernport, of which Miss Marie Meyers is teacher. The cleverly designed and constructed miniature was lent to the library through the courtesy of Mrs. Cora G. Perry, county supervisor of library projects.

The exhibits are being arranged under the general direction of Miss Codie Whitman, of the library staff.

Tonight's program, scheduled to begin at 8:30 p. m., is sponsored by the Friends of the Library in observance of the institution's sixteenth birthday.

To Present Check

President James Alfred Avirett will present a birthday check to Miss Walsh on behalf of the Friends, Former Judge Albert A. Doub Sr., president of the library's board of directors, and Miss Walsh will make short acceptance talks.

Also on the program will be violin selections by Miss Ruth Dicken, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Thomas P. Richards, and readings of original poems by Mrs. Sara Roberta Getty.

Punch and cake will be served following the program, to which all who are interested in the library are invited.

The party will be held in the second-floor assembly room of the library.

Legion Post Seeks Membership of 500

In a drive to boost their membership to 500 before the Maryland Department convention here in August, prizes have been offered Cumberland American Legion members who bring in a paid-up member at next Tuesday's meeting.

Harry G. Spiker, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, said that there are now 350 paid up members and that they hope to get 115 delinquent members to pay their dues. Spiker said also a class of initiates will join the post at Tuesday's meeting.

Maryland Gives $27,000 To Finnish Relief

Bringing the state total to $27,000, the Maryland committee of the Finnish Relief Fund, Inc., yesterday sent another check for $1,500 to National Chairman Herbert Hoover for civilian relief in war-beleaguered Finland.

Collection boxes are being distributed throughout the state to supplement newspaper collections, according to State Chairman W. Frank Roberts, of Baltimore.

Nearly $600 has been contributed to the Times-News fund, and donations will continue to be accepted by the papers.

In New Job

High School Students To Visit College For Play Day

More than sixty students from Fort Hill, Bruce, Grantsville, Barton, Central, St. Mary's and Girls' Central high schools will be guests at the Frostburg State Teachers college tomorrow, at a play Day.

During the morning the students will participate in group games of ping pong, shuffleboard, badminton, indoor soccer, and volley ball. The morning program has been planned under the direction of Miss Lillian Wellner, instructor of physical education, and Miss Dorothy Mont, president of the Women's Athletic Association.

A tour of buildings has been planned by the Future Teachers of America chapter of the college under the leadership of Walter Hedrick.

The afternoon will present a program of music and dramatics. The musical program will be under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Matteson of the faculty. The dramatics will be sponsored by the Little Theater under the direction of Miss Ruby Dalgren and Miss Margaret La Far.

Roman Goes East After Lowndes Speech

Captain J. Philip Roman left for the East last night after making a vigorous political speech at the Old Barrel Factory proposing Tasker G. Lowndes as a candidate for the U. S. Senate. Mr. Roman said he was going as far as New York and would return to Cumberland Sunday.

Capper to Baltimore

Attorney Walter C. Capper will be in Baltimore today to attend a meeting of the committee of thrifty lawyers appointee by the Court of Appeals to investigate and recommend means of simplifying the rules and procedure in all civil court actions, both in law and equity.

SKI CONDITIONS

A week-end of good spring skiing is in prospect for New Germany.

The snow cover is still from six inches to a foot deep on the slope at Otto's farm.

A heavy crust made the snow unskiable earlier in the week, but warm weather weakened this crust so that it can easily be broken for skiing.

Even if a considerable thaw sets in, skiing should be fair because of the grainy texture given to the snow as the ice crust breaks up. This produces what is known as "corn snow."

The weather forecast calls for light to moderate snow today. Several inches of new powder snow on top of the existing crust would make skiing perfect for the week-end.

Roads yesterday were slippery, and skiers will probably find chains necessary.

Barrel Factory History Repeating? Phil Roman Hopes So, and Tells Why

Will political history repeat itself?

That was the question raised last night by Captain J. Philip Roman following a spirited meeting of Republicans at the Old Barrel Factory where a movement was started to draft Tasker G. Lowndes for U. S. Senator.

"It was right in this hall that we started the drive to put Lloyd Lowndes in the governor's chair," Roman reminisced last night. "That was in 1895. I was just a youngster and I didn't count for much but I was there.

"We had a crowd of workers that night just like the one tonight. There were Judge David W. Sloan, William E. Griffiths, Senator Wellington, William R. Percy, and lots of others.

"Those were good days but these can be just as good if we got going." Captain Roman declared. "We've got a chance to put a home-town boy in the Senate. And I say let's get behind him and put him in there."
